Johnson on Viet Nam: U.S. Will Stay until aggression has stopped

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Wednesday night he will pursue peace but the United States will stay in Viet Nam "until aggression has stopped." He backed this pledge with a record $112-800,000,000 budget that did not call for a general tax boost. Johnson reported to Congress in person and to the people of the United States by radio and television on the state of the home front and on efforts to bring about peace talks in Viet Nam. He said the peace campaign so far has produced "no response to prove either success or failure."

Johnson sounded no threats or ultimatums, but he said "we do not intend to abandon Asia to conquest."

At the end of his lengthy address, Johnson said "I am hopeful, and I will try, to end this battle and return our sons to their desires."

Johnson did not say how long the United States might continue its pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam. Viet Nam was the overriding item of interest and attention in this year's State-of-the-Union address.

Johnson dealt also with the domestic scene and said that the war in Viet Nam must not halt the drive towards what he calls "the Great Society."

In the new budget, however, the increased spending will go largely towards military purposes. Officials said the defence budget will climb to $58,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year starting July 1, from about $54,400,000,000 this year. The non-military budget would increase by only $600,000,000. Johnson said he will not hesitate to ask for more appropriations and revenues "if the necessities of Viet Nam require it."

Johnson set forth a 10-point domestic program and said: "I believe we can continue."

South Backs Truce

SAIGON (Reuters) — The South Vietnamese "armed forces will observe a three-day truce during the lunar new year holiday starting next week, the official government press agency reported today. The agency said details are still under study and there may be no official announcement about it.

The Viet Cong have already proposed a ceasefire for four days beginning at midnight Thursday, Jan. 13.

U.S., Russia 'Using' Shastri Rites

HONG KONG (Reuters) — A Communist newspaper claimed Wednesday that the United States and the Soviet Union were using the funeral of Indian Prime Minister Shastri to develop backstage contacts on Viet Nam. (See also Page 21.)

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao noted that U.S. Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin were represented at the cremation in New Delhi Wednesday.

Peking Stop Indicated For Shelepin

BELGRADE (AP)—Soviet trouble-shooter Alexander Shelepin will talk with the Chinese on a 24-hour stopover in Peking en route home from Hanoi, the official Yugoslav news agency said Wednesday night. Quoting sources in Peking, the Tass news agency's correspondent said "the Soviet delegation will receive semi-official treatment and have talks on a corresponding level."

Shelepin is due to leave Hanoi today. He has been in the North Vietnamese capital since Jan. 7, discussing the Viet Nam war. He made a brief stop in Peking en route to Hanoi. Reporting his imminent departure, Moscow radio made no mention of a stay in Peking.

But No Thanks, Says Strachan

Premier Babysits Yale While Hartley Appeals

Premier Bennett has appointed himself as watchdog during the coming session for the interests of Yale constituency whose New Democrat member was ousted by a court ruling this week.

William Hartley was ousted Tuesday by a Supreme Court ruling.

TWO SEATS VACANT
Yale's seat is one of two that will be vacant during the session. The North Okanagan seat was vacated by the recent death of Socred member George McLeod.

Premier Bennett said that because these two constituencies will be unrepresented in the House he will pay special attention to representations which are made to the government from these areas.

'SPECIAL WATCHDOG'

"The premier will be a special watchdog," he said.

But Opposition members said, no thanks, they would prefer to see Mr. Hartley back in the seat which he has held for two sessions since the controversial election case began.

Vancouver lawyer Gordon Dowling, an NDP MLA who represented Hartley in the case, said he will file an appeal against the decision which was brought down in the Supreme Court Tuesday by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

BOTH CLEARED

Both Mr. Hartley and Social Credit candidate Irvine Corbett, who had held the seat since 1952, were cleared of any involvement when Mr. Justice Ruttan handed down his decision.

In nullifying the 1963 election, Judge Ruttan said he had found at least nine irregularities which were more than enough to offset Hartley's six-vote win over Corbett.

VOTERS BLAMED

Blame for these irregularities was attached to the returning officers and voters of the Yale constituency.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged Wednesday that Corbett had waited for two years before starting court action because the Socreds were afraid provincial Conservative leader, David Fulton might split the vote and allow the NDP to walk into office.

'CROOKED POLITICS'

"This is the political convenience I was talking about, it's crooked politics," said Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Dowling said he had advised Mr. Hartley not to try to take his seat in the House this session because it would be illegal until such time as the Supreme Court decision is set aside by the B.C. Appeal Court.

But Mr. Strachan said that because legal procedures are still pending he could see no

Pearson Plan Wins at Lagos

FORCE LEASHED FOR WATCHDOG ROLE

LAGOS (CP) — Commonwealth leaders, acting on a suggestion by Prime Minister Pearson, set up a watchdog committee Wednesday to check on results of economic sanctions against Rhodesia. They agreed to meet again in July if the Rhodesian rebellion was not ended.

They decided not to use force now against the white-minority government in Rhodesia, but said in a communique issued at the end of the Commonwealth conference in Nigeria, they agreed use of force "could not be precluded if this proved necessary to restore law and order."

The meeting of 20 Commonwealth countries set up the watchdog committee to assess the effectiveness of economic sanctions against Rhodesia, to advise Commonwealth governments on possible action by them or by the United Nations, and to provide help for Zambia, Rhodesia's northern neighbor.

Conference sources described Pearson as confident the sanctions will work. He also proposed a committee to consider means of Commonwealth co-operation in planning Rhodesia's future, particularly by training people for jobs. The communique indicated that a committee of this kind will be set up also, to work in conjunction with the Commonwealth Secretariat in London.

The watchdog committee, whose makeup has not been disclosed, will sit in London.

ONLY TWO

One conference source said that while there was a good deal of talk about aid to Zambia, it seemed clear to many delegates that the only countries that will be able to provide meaningful aid are the two already on the scene, Britain and Canada.

The communique said the Commonwealth leaders affirmed their determination "that the rebellion must be brought to an end."

NOT SWAYED

It made clear that the conference had not been swayed by the demands of some of its most militant members for immediate military and air action to bring down the Rhodesian government.

Pearson told the conference additional measures against Rhodesia should be considered, unless there are indications "within a matter of weeks" that existing sanctions are taking effect.

MUST END

The Commonwealth leaders affirmed their determination "that the rebellion must be brought to an end," the communique said.

Mr. Pearson said addi-

Invitation to Citizens

Budget Kibitzing A Sharp Idea

OTTAWA (UPI)—Any ideas on what Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp should do with his budget?

Now's your chance. He has invited representations from taxpayers or associations on the budget.

Mr. Sharp wants any ideas in writing before Feb. 12. He said he will even try to squeeze in time for a conference with the people behind some of the more important budget briefs sent him.

The invitation for ideas is traditional and all are taken into consideration in the preparation of the budget.

Presentation of the budget is not expected until March.

Mr. Sharp has said the report of the Royal Commission on Taxation will not be presented before March.

Sir John A's Home Soon Parking Lot

TORONTO (CP)—Sir John A. Macdonald's former city home will soon become a parking lot.

The Ontario Conservative party has appar-

B.C. Sightings Whet Official Curiosity

Either It Is, Oryx Not

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Persistent reports of sightings of an African type of antelope in the frigid northwestern tip of British Columbia have whetted the curiosity of provincial game officials.

The thing has been sighted from the Stikine River through the Atlin Lake region near the top of the Alaska Panhandle.

It has been described by eyewitnesses as an African oryx, an animal which is sun-colored and has horns curving back from its head toward its haunches.

But fish and game branch information officer Bill Ward said Wednesday, "It is impossible for this species to be there."

"There is not one within

5,000 miles of there, and if they were introduced they could not live there—it is not the right terrain for them and the winters are too tough."

Game officials say there may be an animal which was mistaken for the oryx, but what it can be is anybody's guess.

This creature is like the Sasquatch—B.C.'s version of the abominable snowman of the Himalayas—in that its existence has never been proved and its species has not been identified.

"It has been popping up over the past years, much the same as the Sasquatch or Ogopogo type of thing. It is strictly a fanciful thing, with no shred of evidence—except that it is reported by people who sound reasonable," said Mr. Ward.

Cong Flushed Out In Tunnel Raids

SAIGON (AP)—New fighting Wednesday brought Viet Cong dead to 107 in an American-Australian drive north of here. A U.S. military spokesman reported 23 additional Viet Cong killed Tuesday. Earlier fighting killed 84 guerrillas. New Viet Cong tunnel complexes were uncovered and destroyed, a spokesman said Wednesday.

In action elsewhere, B-52 bombers from Guam plastered two areas, one more than 300 miles northeast of here and the other west of Pleiku, 240 miles to the north.

The lull in the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam continued into its 20th day.

The U.S. spokesman said 43 Americans were killed, 203 wounded and two missing or captured in the week, an increase over the 34 dead, 116 wounded and five missing reported last week. The South Vietnamese reported 118 killed and 73 missing.

CONG CASUALTIES
Viet Cong casualties were reported at 714 killed or captured.

Meanwhile, Saigon waited the arrival of the U.S. presidential envoy, W. Averell Harriman today for talks with South Vietnamese leaders.

Results of the B-52 raids west of Pleiku near the Cambodian border were not reported. The 1st Cavalry operating there reported encountering only an occasional sniper.

Aiding Vietnamese Prime Target Of Village Effort

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. aid officials outlined Wednesday a long-term plan aimed at permanently wiping out Viet Cong control in the South Vietnamese countryside.

The new pacification program, in a successor to the ill-fated strategic hamlet program of the early 1960s.

The core of the new effort will be assignment of specially-trained teams of 50 to 100 South Vietnamese to villages that have been freed from the threat of large-scale guerrilla attacks.

TRAINING
The teams are being trained to ferret out hidden Viet Cong cells remaining in the villages, nurture respected local governments based on the existing village council system, establish good police, health, schooling and other community facilities, and maintain security.

About one-half of the team members are to be armed and the teams will be prepared to stay in each village a year or as long as necessary.

The strategic hamlet concept was unable to withstand continued pressure from the guerrillas.

The strategic hamlet operation tended to destroy the existing village governmental system. Saigon government cadres would move people into a location, give pep talks and distribute a few pigs, see that limited fortifications were constructed and then move on to another site.

Eventual success of the new program hinges on the success

Johnson Pledges U.S. Will Stay

the Great Society while we fight in Viet Nam.

In his address, prepared for delivery in the House of Representatives to a joint session of Congress, Johnson estimated federal government revenues will be $111,000,000,000 and the deficit will be $1,800,000,000 lowest in several years.

White House records showed this would be the closest matching of income and expenditures since a surplus of $1,200,000,000 in 1960.

Johnson wrote his annual report to Congress in two sections, one dealing primarily with domestic affairs and the other international problems and policies and the Vietnamese conflict—a conflict he said "must be at the centre of our concerns."

The White House released the text of the presidential address one half at a time.

On domestic and trade matters, Johnson laid down these 10 goals:

● To carry forward health and education programs enacted last year.

● To provide funds to "procure with vigor and determination our war on poverty" on a speeded-up basis.

● To take "a new and daring direction" in the foreign aid program to help needy countries to help themselves and help those trying to control the population explosion.

● To make it possible to expand trade between the United States and the Soviet bloc.

● To rebuild on an unprecedented scale central and slum areas of several cities.

● To attack poisoning of rivers and to "clean completely" entire large river basins.

● To meet the growing menace of crime in the streets.

ROME (AP)—Electric workers launched a three-day strike against Italy's power industry today in a nationwide walkout for higher pay. Thousands of workers and management personnel moved into plants to keep power flowing. About 100,000 workers were involved in the walkout.

● To take added steps to ensure equal justice to all the people. He called for legislation to establish "unavoidable" requirements for non-discriminatory jury selection, with necessary enforcement power lodged with the attorney-general.

He urged legislation to bar racial discrimination in sale or rental of housing and to strengthen authority of federal courts to try those who murder, attack or intimidate civil rights workers or others exercising constitutional rights.

● To set up a federal department of transportation—the 12th cabinet department.

● To amend the constitution to provide after 1972 a four-year term for members of the House of Representatives coinciding with the presidential term, to "make it possible for members of the House of Representatives to work more effectively in the service of the nation." Without raising taxes or increasing the total bill paid, Johnson said, the U.S. should "improve our withholding system so that Americans can more realistically pay-as-they-go."

Aides said this would mean an increase in the amount of taxes withheld from pay cheques, but not in the total amount of taxes due. Johnson said it is desirable, because of increased military expenditures, to restore temporarily auto and telephone excise-tax cuts that took effect only 12 days ago, Jan. 1.

Without particular reference to New York bus and subway stop or any other stoppage, Johnson said he intends to ask Congress to consider measures that "will enable us effectively to deal with strikes which threaten irreparable damage to the national interest."

He didn't go into detail, but said this should be done without improperly invading state and local authority.

Somebody Blundered

ATTORNEY-GENERAL Robert Bonner, QC, is not exactly enthusiastic about the achievements of the federal-provincial crime conference. It failed, he believes, to take what he considers necessary steps to amend the Criminal Code of Canada to make it more effective in combatting criminal syndicates.

Moreover, he does not think it was necessary to call a conference to approve a $15,000,000, five-year program to modernize and expand the Royal Canadian Mounted Police criminal intelligence team.

But there will be others who will commend the federal government for this initial effort, this meeting of minds to ponder a problem of increasing concern to the authorities and the public.

The conference was a direct result of the Dorion inquiry findings that influence-peddling had reached into high places in the government of the country, suspected to have been on behalf of a narcotics syndicate with which Lucien Rivard was associated.

The prime minister's decision to overhaul the criminal investigation resources of the nation stemmed directly from this disclosure; and the assumption of responsibility for the RCMP at cabinet level being switched from the overburdened justice department to the solicitor-general was another development.

Solicitor-General Larry Pennell appears to be taking seriously his responsibilities in the matter and his first moves in the game could prove of strategic value.

He was ill-advised, however, in his failure to have representation at the Ottawa crime conference from the police forces of metropolitan areas, which, after all, are the agencies which come face to face with the criminal.

Chief constables from such centres as Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, it must be assumed, would have been able to give expert and valuable advice.

There is an organization, let Mr. Pennell be reminded, known as the Chief Constables' Association of Canada which has been operative and active since 1905 in just such a field in which the Ottawa conference was skirmishing. With representation from municipal, provincial, federal and railway police forces, this association has unique knowledge and experience, and its members are veterans in the war on crime.

To have overlooked so obvious a source of advice will hardly win confidence for the crime war's general, and Mr. Pennell would be well advised to solicit the vigorous support of the association without delay.

War on Paper

INTEGRATION is a word that in Canada has come to be synonymous with the merging of the armed forces, but it means more than a unified command structure, a common uniform for all three services, or a name that will designate all servicemen. It means also a war on paper.

Paperwork, of course, is a debit that marches with the progress of modern civilization. This is the yet one which speeds the tempo of life but paradoxically it is burdened by the vast dedication to forms and documentary paraphernalia of which there often seems no end.

This is particularly so in realms of governance, although known therein by those having to do business in these circles as red tape. The paper need not necessarily be red or have any tape attached but this is the oft-exaggerated term for official forms.

So it is with integration of the armed services. As well as men there are forms to be filled out. Thousands of them. And according to the new Canadian defence journal, Sentinel, a trio of civil servants at defence headquarters in Ottawa is grappling with a torrent of paper in an effort to cut the flow down.

There would seem to be ample cause for their efforts. One military command alone sent in more than 4,000 forms, all locally produced. Such forms, from units and supply depots as well as from higher echelons, come in various types, old and new, and the samples pour in each day.

There are, to quote the Sentinel, "big forms, pink forms, little forms, yellow forms, French forms, English forms, navy forms, army forms, and air force forms."

It is the job of the "Forms Management Office" at defence HQ to integrate the forms, to standardize them where possible, to cut down the number and the variety, and so save time and money by screening and processing them. As an example 21 fire extinguisher tags have been reduced to one, and 32 tab stops required to type old forms have been reduced to eight.

This war on paper is apt to be a battle of no little magnitude, recalling the fondness in official circles for duplicates, triplicates and all the other facets of documentation. If the processors succeed in their aims they can plume themselves on what should be regarded as a distinct victory.

The Short End

MUNICIPAL leaders of the Greater Victoria area naturally don't cotton to the suggestion of Attorney-General Bonner that they should cut their expenditures. This is much easier said than done.

Many operational costs are fixed or beyond their control, for one thing, and for another their sources of revenue are limited and they have more work and service demands than they have enough funds to cope with.

Mr. Bonner says more aid to municipalities can't be given without revising federal-provincial cost-sharing formulas. The answer to this, as Reeve Bryant pointed out, is that Mr. Bonner's government doesn't hesitate to ask Ottawa to revise such formulas. What goes for senior levels of government should go for junior administrations also.

Municipalities are the constitutional creatures of the provincial government, but they have their own civic lives to lead and frankly don't get equitable financial consideration from the authority that begets them.

The anomaly of the situation is that James Bay is always pressing Ottawa for a bigger share of national revenues, while at the same time paying scant attention to the corollary of a larger share of provincial revenues for municipalities.

Nor is it likely that the forthcoming budget of Premier Bennett will illustrate any cost-cutting on the part of the federal government; in all probability it will total more than last year and be of record size.

Mr. Bonner thus doesn't speak from a very logical standpoint.

As Mayor Toone says it is time for a new look at the sources of revenue on which all levels of government depend. At present the municipalities are on the short end of the stick.

"I'm withholding 56 of your marks in protest, Ellison."

A Problem Posed in Dialectics

Must the United States Surrender in Honor's Cause?

By DR. ARNOLD TOYNBEE

TWO psychological "road blocks" are obstructing the path that might lead America out of war in Viet Nam.

They spring from two misconceptions: the first on a point of fact, the second on a point of morals. As I see it, the American misconception on a point of fact is the belief that, in Viet Nam, the United States is engaged in a crusade, on behalf of human freedom, to stop an aggressive, evil power called "World Communism," whose objective is deemed to be the conquest of the world. The misconception on a point of morals is that, now that America has involved herself in this war, she cannot afford to forsake a military victory. If she does not win, she will be humiliated; if she wins, she will have saved her honor.

Among Americans with whom I talked about Viet Nam, the majority believe that, in this war, America is genuinely crusading. A more discerning and more idealistic minority was skeptical about this, but I found that even some of the most liberal-minded would wince at the suggestion by saying: "Yes, we know that America is doing wrong, but we cannot now reverse our policy because honor forbids us to accept military defeat." In saying this, they were giving to prestige the priority over righteousness and they seemed to be blind to the truth that, where there is no righteousness, there cannot be honor either.

These misconceptions are grave in themselves, and they are particularly grave when they are entertained by a nation that, for the moment, is the strongest military power in the world. On the chance that I may be able to have an influential influence on American thinking, I am now reopening my discussion with my American friends.

First, then, is the question of fact. In Viet Nam is the U.S. truly fighting for freedom? Well, there is no freedom today in those parts of Viet Nam that the U.S. is holding under its military and political control. None of the successive South Vietnamese governments has been a democratic government. None of them has been truly representative of the people of Viet Nam. Not one of them could have survived for a day if U.S. military support had been withdrawn.

Freedom means, in politics, being able to express political wishes freely, and being able to get these wishes translated effectively into political action. Under the 1954 settlement it was provided that the people of both parts of Viet Nam should have a free vote about their common country's future, and that its future should be decided in accordance with the country's wishes. The United States government intervened to prevent the Vietnamese people from casting this free vote, because it believed that, if they were left free, the Vietnamese would vote for the reunification of Viet Nam under the leadership of Ho Chi Minh, and the U.S. government held that this would be contrary to America's national interest in the competition for world power with Russia and China.

In Viet Nam, America is fighting, not for Vietnamese freedom, but for American power. America is engaging here in the Communism which she has condemned so persistently and so rightly when it has been practiced by other nations. She is fighting to ensure that, in a new partition of Southeast Asia between the United States, Russia, and China, America's slice shall be as big a slice as possible. Besides using military force for this purpose, she is using a Soviet Vietnamese puppet government. This was a cynical device of 19th century European colonialism.

And what about "monolithic World Communism"? On my recent visit to the United States, I kept underlining the fact that Russia and China, just like the United States, were both pursuing their own national interests. It is clear that when there is a conflict of interests between nationalism and ideology, ideology always goes to the wall. But I found that my American audience disliked being reminded that Russia and China had quarrelled. At first I was surprised; for if one assumes for the sake of argument that Russia and China, in contrast to America, are a brace of thieves, one remembers the old saying that "when thieves fall out, honest men come into their own." Surely the rupture between Russia and China must be to America's advantage; so why is it distasteful to Americans instead of being welcome to them?

In the end I saw why. The Russo-Chinese break is to America's military and political advantage, of course. But it is not to her psychological advantage. No dragon, no Saint George. But if America is no Saint George in Viet Nam, then she becomes a commensurate colonialist and imperialist. Therefore, for the maintenance of America's belief in the purity and nobility of her own motives in Viet Nam, the dragon of "monolithic World Communism" is a precious mascot. In showing the unreality of America's pet imaginary monster, I was asking Americans to strip away the mask of idealism from their country's conduct, and to face the ugly reality.

The second American misconception, on the moral plane, the belief that a military victory will save America's honor, is a misunderstanding of what physical power can do and what it cannot do. Physical power can destroy; overwhelming physical power can annihilate; but no amount of physical power can turn a bad deed into a good deed, or make a detestable action admirable, or kill the nerve in the conscience of the human being who releases his power to commit a crime and a sin. The list of victories that have brought dishonor to the victors is long and notorious. Britain's victory over China in the Opium War is one case; Britain's victory over the African republics in the South African War is another; Germany's complete defeat and conquest of Belgium in each of the two world wars is a third instance; Fascist Italy's conquest of Ethiopia is a fourth. But which of the combatants won the best result? Not victorious Britain, or Germany or Italy, but the defeated Chinese and Africans and Belgians and Ethiopians.

The Chinese won honor by fighting a losing war to resist having opium forced down their throats; the Belgians and Africans won the glory of freedom by fighting a losing war to vindicate their independence. The power exhibited by Germany in the Second World War was colossal. It was enough to overrun most of Europe and to exterminate six million Jews. It disarmed Germany, and the disgrace was as colossal as the power that was so atrociously misused. At Thermopylae, Xerxes had, and exercised, the power to kill every Greek soldier who stood his ground there against overwhelming odds. But which party won the glory—Xerxes and his victorious host, or Leonidas and his 300?

Today, the United States has it within her power to eclipse the German army's feats in the two world wars, and the French army's feats in Algeria. The United States has the power, if she chooses, to destroy all human life, and all vegetation, life, too, in both parts of Viet Nam. But whatever the military outcome of the present war may be, her moral outcome has already been decided. The Viet Cong and Ho Chi Minh have the honor in the conscience of the human being who releases his power to commit a crime and a sin.

Then is America's honor lost in Viet Nam beyond retrieving? No. Americans, collectively and individually, can retrieve their honor in the Christian way that is open to every human being who has mortgaged his honor by doing wrong. We can retrieve our honor by summoning up the honesty, frankness and courage to admit that we have done wrong, and to stop doing it. When France admitted that she had done wrong in Algeria, and stopped trying to crush the Algerian nationalists, she gained greatly, both in esteem and in self-respect.

America can recover the esteem that she has lost in the world's eyes—and in her own eyes, too—if she now stops trying to crush Vietnamese resistance by force, and genuinely allows the Vietnamese to exercise the freedom for which she professes to be fighting on their behalf. Freedom for the Vietnamese means freedom to choose their own future for themselves, according to the terms of the 1954 settlement. They would probably vote for the reunification of their country under Ho Chi Minh's leadership, and for the ending of foreign intervention.

Would that mean a military and political setback for America in her competition with China for world power? If it did mean that, it would be a small price for America to pay for her moral rehabilitation. However, in reality, a reunited and effectively independent Viet Nam would be a blessing for Viet Nam herself, and for America and China, too. The blessing for Viet Nam is obvious. The blessing for America and China, in so far as it is a blessing, is that the two competing super-powers from each other. America can still save her honor if she has saving second thoughts, and if she acts on them.

For U.K. Island Colonies

A Guiding Hand

By CLIFFORD SMITH from London

THE new British proposals for six colonies in the eastern Caribbean are interesting in themselves, but especially so because they could lead to new thinking about how to solve the constitutional problems of other British dependencies.

Briefly the proposals envisage a new constitutional status for each of the Windward and Leeward Islands under which there would be complete internal self-government with Britain retaining responsibility for external affairs and defence.

But—and here is the novel idea—each of the self-governing states would have within its power the right to become fully independent without further recourse to the British government. It is this last provision that justifies the claim that this new status—association—would be non-colonial.

Of course these proposals were designed specifically to meet the requirements and wishes of the Windward and Leeward Islands. They are not designed as any sort of model for other colonies. It would indeed be rather silly to try to design a standard model for the remaining British colonies—32 in all and each one unique.

This was pointed out to the United Nations general assembly last month by the British minister, Lord Caradon. Another point stressed by Lord Caradon was that in designing solutions to any colonial problem the wishes and interests of the people should prevail. This principle also applies naturally to the Windward and Leeward Islands. The British government would not have put its proposals forward so publicly if it had not already found through informal discussions that its ideas were acceptable to the six Caribbean governments as a basis for negotiations.

Some British colonies are smaller still, and it seems unlikely that many features of the East Caribbean proposals could be applied to places with populations of only a few thousand or a few hundred. Others already have independence before them in the next year or two; for example, British Guiana, Barbados, Bechuanaland, Mauritius and South Arabia. A few more will perhaps follow.

When this has been done, however, the British Colonial Office will still have under its wing a population small in numbers but wishing, like people in much larger countries, to run its own affairs as far as possible.

It must be recognized that the circumstances of the Windwards and Leewards are different from those found anywhere else. In particular these islands have many economic and cultural links which may be strengthened into a firm principle of interdependence or co-operation, if not into true federal links, such as have existed at various times in recent years. And so it is important that the terms of the islands' association with Britain should not vary so much that it would make closer association with each other more difficult.

However, these are matters for negotiation during the series of discussions which is planned for London in the first half of this year, beginning with talks with the Antigua government on the last day of February.

The other five—St. Kitts, Dominica, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and Grenada—will each have talks with the new colonial secretary, Lord Longford, during March or April.

If agreement is then reached on the basic lines of the British proposals, the six territories concerned could then look forward to three distinct gains in the new status of association:

1. Control over their own internal security;
2. Removal of British participation in controlling finance; and
3. The option for independence, which would have to be exercised through proper constitutional methods but could be done entirely within the islands' own institutions.

These lovely islands have much in common, and there are many things which the half million islanders could do more effectively and more cheaply if they worked out their plans together.

Marketing, tourism, overseas representation, higher education, industrial development... there is already some co-operation in these fields, but there could be more. In a few fields co-operation goes well beyond the little six to include larger islands such as Barbados, Independent Trinidad and Tobago, Jamaica and even a British Guiana on the South American mainland.

Some Caribbean leaders feel that the tide is turning towards closer links, and cite the recent declaration of intent to establish a free trade area between Antigua, Barbados and British Guiana. If the smaller islands decide to form closer functional links with each other, they too might prove to be paving the way toward greater unity.

Finally, there is the question of aid. It is already clear that British aid, even budgetary aid, need not stop after a colony becomes independent. But, of course, Britain alone could not supply enough public or private capital to meet all the needs of Caribbean development in the coming years.

So it is particularly encouraging to know that a governmental economic survey is just now getting under way in the Eastern Caribbean, financed jointly by Britain, Canada and, of course, the United States.

Even if this does not lead to a single extra dollar or pound being made available, it should be valuable to the Caribbean governments in helping them to set the right targets for their development plans.

Today In History

George Fox, the founder of the Quaker religious movement, died 275 years ago today—in 1691—aged 67. At the age of 19 he had a religious experience which started his criticism of formal church organizations in favor of far simpler worship and conduct. His disciples were known as "Friends" and "Quakers." When the British monarchy was restored in 1660 the Quakers were suppressed, but they answered their persecutors by simply meeting in silence, which could not be proved unlawful.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—10,000 incendiary bombs fell on Plymouth in a night raid. Major Vidkun Quisling of Norway announced he would recruit a "Homeland" regiment to fight on Germany's side.

Wage Demands Protested

I wonder if local carpenters realize the serious consequences of the latest demands made by their executive. If granted, it means on April 1 that the cost of a carpenter, with fringe benefits, will be approximately $5 per hour not including profit for the contractor. How many carpenters could afford to have one come and do work on their own home? Yet even if one takes into account the carpenter's lost time, their annual earnings exceed that of most ordinary working people and those on superannuation or pension. This means more lost time for carpenters. At this moment there are hundreds of carpenters out of work, yet I know there are also many inside jobs which would be going now if people could afford it. Instead, people will have to do it themselves or employ non-union labor.

When even the premier complains about the high cost of labor on the great dams and other projects, how can the ordinary Joe who lives in Victoria afford these high costs? The school bylaw was defeated. Lost jobs is the result. By the time the next bylaw is submitted, will the bylaw provide enough money? Taxpayers are becoming afraid they cannot afford to build schools. They know they cannot afford to do any work on their homes.

The foregoing, of course, is not merely directed to the carpenters but to all mechanics in the construction industry. There will be less jobs for all if the present madness of well-paid and profit-hungry union executives is allowed to prevail. Higher wages mean higher union dues and, incidentally, higher salaries and profit for those on top in the labor world. The public is fed up with labor union leadership and its irresponsible and exorbitant demands enforced by labor monopoly power.

Pressure Pledged

Much has been written and many views expressed re government-controlled sweepstakes in aid of hospitals, plus the many petitions containing hundreds of thousands of names expressing concurrence; surely these advocates are not "judicious or kiliotic" as suggested by Mr. John Allan?

A properly-organized government-controlled sweepstakes using well-policed assets as others; such as the pools in Britain and sweepstakes in other countries—as examples, Australia and New Zealand.

I have often advocated, by letter and other efforts, the entry into this field by the Canadian government—either federal or provincial—and I shall continue to do so, in spite of the apparent "fear" in Ottawa to air the majority wishes.

I am sure that government control could be as rigid as are most government departments, where national revenue is involved, and apart from the invaluable aid to hospitals such an scheme would create a great increase in employment.

Government-controlled sales would undoubtedly reduce the appearance of phony tickets to a minimum and the "fudicrous and idiotic" would simply fade away.

Fatal Formula

In your paper of Jan. 7, and by Harry Nelson from the L.A. Times, is an article on chemical and biological warfare which is most shocking, particularly since I had just read in the same paper about Pope Paul and his visit to a children's hospital in Rome, wherein His Holiness had felt such compassion for "innocent suffering."

There it is, chapter and verse, how epidemics of influenza (which nearly killed me and did kill many of my contemporaries in 1917), black plague (London, 1665), etc., deliberately started by our fellow humans could be used to con-

Grateful Visitor

We are winter visitors to your fair city and would like to comment on your very excellent police force—especially the plainclothes detectives.

On two separate occasions, we have had the misfortune to call on the law for help—in the past four months. And on both occasions have received the greatest courtesy—and individual attention—accorded in other parts of Canada and U.S.A. only for visiting dignitaries; even to giving up their lunch time to find the stolen articles and return them within hours. Truly, a remarkable record.

And I would like to repeat the old phrase that a city is only as good as its police force. (Mrs.) B. TREMIER.

Sharing Costs

I would like to reply to Puzzled Taxpayer that for hospital construction costs, Ottawa pays 15 per cent and the province 50 per cent.

If, let us say, Duncan has built a new hospital under these terms and receives the 15 per cent from Ottawa, would he expect Victoria to lay claim to this money? If we in Victoria can find the 35 per cent of the construction cost of a new hospital they will get 15 per cent from Ottawa and the province will pay the remaining 50 per cent. I do not think that Ottawa would pay any money towards any provincial surplus. As matters now stand Ottawa refuses to pay anything towards the cost of the PGE, bridges and the new ferries.

Viet Nam: U.S. Looks to Johnson

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Washington

Long before the political season opened with the congressional session this week, it was evident that Vice Nam would be the dominant issue. But will the thrust of domestic politics push the United States deeper into war? Or towards a negotiated settlement?

The answer is not easy to fathom. Public opinion, the supreme arbiter in American politics, is at all times an unknown god. It expresses itself in moods and atmospheres far more than it articulates particular stands on clear issues.

In the case of Viet Nam, the unknown god is particularly hard to define. The purpose of the American role in the conflict is dim—the more so as some of the officially enunciated purposes are at odds and could be better served by other means. At the same time, the sacrifice in lost lives and spent dollars, which usually works wondrously to develop opinion, is also only dimly felt—at least so far. In these murky circumstances, American opinion in the war could easily follow one of two diametrically opposite courses.

On the one hand, opinion might crystallize around the traditional American impulse to get the job done in the most expeditious way. In that event, the great bulk of the public would come to favor strongly an intensification of the war effort.

On the other hand, opinion might crystallize around the set of impulses that find expression in an interest to develop the United States, in idealistic pacifism, and in deep-seated reluctance to be sucked into a major war on the Asian continent. In that case, the pressure would be for cutting losses through a negotiated settlement.

So far, the smart money has been betting on a trend toward a militant hardening of opinion. A year ago, for example, both Sen. Richard Russell, a veteran Georgia Democrat, and Sen. Everett Dirksen, the veteran Republican leader from Illinois, were loath to endorse any intensification of the American war effort in Viet Nam.

But Sen. Russell is already pressing for resumption and extension of the bombing of North Viet Nam. Sen. Dirksen, with a slipperiness that should not escape the notice of those who are dazzled by the brilliance of his performance as a ham actor playing a ham actor, has been mouthing the precept of that other player to the groundings, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, to the effect that there is no substitute for victory.

Important as they may be, however, the views of the two senators are anything but conclusive. For President Johnson has yet to come down unmistakably on one side or the other but for once, and for a limited period anyhow, he seems to have almost absolute power to determine the direction of public opinion.

No one can doubt that the country would follow Johnson if he came out unequivocally for an increased war effort. Winding down public support for the war effort would probably be more difficult and it would probably cost the president some immediate loss in popularity.

But the elements for a campaign for turning public opinion toward peace are certainly in hand. It would require that Johnson declare himself unequivocally against any extension of the war and for a peaceful settlement.

At the same time, he would have to maintain a check on the bombing and arrange ground-operations in a way that would stress defence of the cities, while limiting offensive action with its heavy casualties.

If domestic critics then demanded more action, Johnson would be in a position to retort that they were ready to commit the country to a hopeless and bloody conflict.

It must be added, however, that while Johnson has an almost unique chance to shape opinion now, the opportunity is not forever.

If, in the interests of maintaining perfect consensus, Johnson misses the initiative, others will seize it. Instead of controlling the public now at a bearable cost, he will find himself in the presence of a runaway opinion.

The choice then would be between either a major Asian war or steps that would threaten the Democrats' control of the country.

Power Struggle Feared

Unpopular Nanda Lesser of Evils

By HAROLD MORRISON
From London

Overburdened with poverty and starvation and threatened with financial bankruptcy, India now faces an unwanted internal struggle for political power at a crucial time in its history. On the leader who emerges will rest much of the responsibility to avert internal chaos.

At the moment the leadership is in the hands of Gulzaril Nanda, 67-year-old Hindu nationalist who is viewed with suspicion by Pakistani Muslims and who doesn't seem to have many friends in Western capitals. London experts doubt whether this careerist prime minister has sufficient political influence and ability to ensure his country's stability and unity in the hour of crisis.

Nanda undertook a similar caretaker role when Jawaharlal Nehru died in 1964. He quickly yielded to Lal Bahadur Shastri after the powerful Congress party ended its internal fight with the choice of a compromise candidate.

Now there seems to be stronger New Delhi opinion that Nanda, an astrophysicist, vegetarian, economist and union leader, should be given the chance to show his ability as permanent leader. This view is based in part on the argument that with the crisis gathering at its doorstep, India cannot afford the luxury of a prolonged leadership struggle.

This time it is more than the question of pressing ahead with enforcing the peace pact with Pakistan. India has a huge food shortage and a critical shortage of foreign exchange. Recession and starvation could burst the boundaries of communal peace. India at this juncture needs a tough administrator, who can successfully plead for unity through national popularity.

Looking over the field of possible prospects, Western observers see little room for choice.

Chavan

Moraji Desai, the former finance minister, is 68 and out of favor. Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Nehru's daughter, has popularity and has shown skill as information minister but makes a poor image as one with sufficient power to pull India out of chaos.

Among the others is Defence Minister Chavan, a 53-year-old political veteran who gained popularity through the army's impressive defence during the war with Pakistan last September.

Chavan has demonstrated his ability as an efficient administrator and has gained many friends in London and other Western capitals. He is considered a political moderate who can get along well with both East and West.

Indeed, there is open hope in London that Chavan gets the job though at this point there is little more than hope. A lot will depend on the decision of party kingmakers and the will of politicians to avert the threat of complacency and disaster.

Population Ills Plague Colombia

AP, from Bogota

A population explosion plus a peasant notion that life is better in a city shack than in a farm house is posing an urgent problem for Colombia.

New census figures show that Colombia's population has jumped 6,800,000 to 18,400,000 in the last 13 years and that 60 per cent now live in cities. In 1952, 60 per cent lived in rural areas. The annual rate of population increase is 3.2 per cent, greater than most countries in Asia, Africa and Europe.

The flow of Colombians into 24 cities presents urban areas with shortages in housing, schools, hospitals, and transportation. The exodus from the farms has cut into food production. Government figures show that no more food is being produced in Colombia today than in 1952 when there were 6,800,000 fewer mouths to feed.

Shanty towns are a common sight in Colombian cities and unemployment is rising.

Because of a sharp drop in coffee prices during the last few years, Colombia has curtailed imports of raw materials and industrial equipment. These Colombia boys with revenues from coffee, the chief crop.

Because of the lack of imports, industry is forced to lay off workers. And because farm production is off, food prices climb steadily.

Although a peasant meets hardships when he moves to the city, farm families still have the notion that their livelihood on the farm is even worse, sociologists say. They believe better opportunities await them in factories.

The peasant also feels that in the city he is safe from the banditry that has terrorized the Colombian hills since 1948, and taken about 200,000 lives, almost 90 per cent of them peasants. The government now is putting an end to the slaughter.

'Obscene' Bill Vetoed

TRENTON, N.J. — Gov. Richard Hughes of New Jersey has vetoed a tough anti-obscenity bill which many of its opponents said was itself obscene.

Hughes cited a question of the measure's constitutionality as his reason for killing the bill, but sources close to him said he also feared it would result in legal "chaos."

The bill would have prohibited the sale, loan, gift or distribution of obscene matter to persons under 18. It spelled out exactly what was obscene in such terms that opponents said the bill would have had to be declared obscene.

They said under the measure the bible and many great works of art would have been banned.

LONDON — Ringo Starr was sporting a beard as he flew with his wife and another Beatle and wife for a 15-day Caribbean vacation. "It's just that I haven't been working and I haven't had time to shave," he said. The other Beatle was John Lennon who was clean-shaven.

ROME — Amintore Fanfani, president of the United Nations General Assembly, has gone back to school. The Italian foreign minister, who resigned in a political storm over his role in a later-discovered Hanoi peace feeler, teaches three classes a week in economic history at the University of Rome.

OTTAWA — Rt. Rev. James Carney, 50, has been appointed auxiliary bishop of Vancouver by Pope Paul, the apostolic delegation has announced. Bishop Carney will assist Archbishop Martin Johnson. No date has been set for his consecration.

TIMMINS, Ont. — John Angus, 37, of Timmins, has been charged with issuing a false statement to the Toronto Stock Exchange concerning shares of Bunker Hill Extension Mines. The charge arises out of a continuing Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. investigation.

OTTAWA — Governor-General Vaudreuil and senior government, opposition and diplomatic officials at a memorial service in the Senate, is in hospital undergoing a series of tests, but an aide said there is no indication he will be unable to carry on as leader in the upper house.

MONTREAL — Raymond Barry, treasurer of suburban Lafontaine, has resigned and had his resignation accepted. It followed an auditor's check of the city's financial records authorized by Mayor Gerard Philpott. Barry and his assistant, Adrien Vincent, had been suspended earlier.

OTTAWA — William McWhinney, 26, of Toronto, national director of the Canadian University Service Overseas, has been appointed interim director of the Company of Young Canadians.

AUSTIN, Tex. — A thrice-married, 61-year-old grandmother, Johanne Mae Hackworth, is this year's first formally announced Democratic candidate for governor in Texas. Governor John Connally, a Democrat, has said he expects to bid for another term.

HAMILTON, Ont. — Sir Anthony Blunt, who looks after Queen Elizabeth's collection of paintings, says the world art scene is so confused no one can give an honest evaluation of 20th century painting.

MOSCOW — Canadian Ambassador Robert Ford paid a courtesy call on Soviet Deputy Premier Dmitry Polyansky.

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Riddale, 67, pleaded with a magistrate for a chance to rehabilitate himself after admitting to 143 offences over 28 years. He was remanded for sentence after pleading guilty to 26 counts of false pretences committed between November and December last year. Court was told that Riddale's record of 143 offences dated back to 1938 and included 111 convictions for false pretences.

WINNIPEG — Morris Gray, a 28-year veteran of the Manitoba legislature and a long-time champion of the labor movement, died in hospital at 70.

OTTAWA — Donald M. Stephens, 62, of Winnipeg, and Rene Dupuis, 67, of Beauharnois, Que., have been re-appointed to further two-year terms on the United States-Canadian International Joint Commission.

PRINCE GEORGE — The tri-universities capital fund drive has been slowed to a stop here by wholesale indifference, a member of the drive's committee says.

The committee member said that the group's efforts have run into a definite "what-the-hell attitude."

It was probably sparked by the feeling that private donations to higher education will remain in private wallets until a university is built in the interior, the spokesman said.

Provincial campaign director Alfred Adams of Vancouver said he knew little of the campaign "except that it didn't get off." Mr. Adams said he was not aware the chairman of the Prince George committee, J. E. Miller, had left Prince George for employment in another city.

PICK UP AND DELIVERY
WITHIN 4-MILE CIRCLE

From Vancouver in Eight Hours

Non-Stop to London

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Air Canada this spring will be cutting nearly 1,000 miles and many flying hours by inaugurating a great circle (or incongruously a straight line) flight between Vancouver and London, England.

"It is the first time Vancouver and London have been connected with a non-stop jet service," said Stan Mooney, local manager of the national air line. "We are very pleased about this because it makes the seat of the Commonwealth only 8.55 hours away from the mainland city."

The route to be taken will be roughly the same as that flown by rival Canadian Pacific Airlines between Vancouver and Amsterdam.

HUDSON BAY ROUTE

Air Canada is calling its new service the "Hudson Bay" route, and not the Polar Route used by some other companies. "The Polar route is actually a misnomer for at no time in the journey between Vancouver and London does the plane get anywhere near the Polar regions, nor does it actually fly into the Arctic Circle, some 1,500 miles from the Pole," said Mr. Mooney.

However, the great circle route does go right across the Hudson Bay, and the southern tip of Baffin Island and Greenland.

SAVES MILES

The present Vancouver-London route used by Air Canada via Toronto and Montreal is some 5,689 miles. The new direct route is 4,170 miles, or a saving on the direct flight of 979 miles.

"It will be possible for a person leaving London Airport to have afternoon tea there and dinner in Vancouver, only 1.25 hours later by the sun," said the Air Canada man.

STARTS APRIL 24

The service starts on a three days a week basis on April 24 and becomes a daily flight on May 23.

At the start only the Saturday flight will be direct non stop from Vancouver. On other days there will be intermediate calls at Calgary, Edmonton or Winnipeg, but in every case the saving in time and miles will be considerable.

Two Convicted
In Safe Raid

Sentence will be passed in assize court today on two persons convicted following a Victoria safe raid.

A jury last night found Steve Remington guilty of breaking into Clark and Cordick's feed store, 2503 Douglas, last September and stealing cash and cheques said to be worth $800.

A young Seattle woman, Shirley Lalonde, was acquitted of the same charge but convicted of having possession of stolen money less than $50.

Mr. Justice Victor Dryer postponed sentence to 10 a.m. today after a three-day trial.

Police testified marked bills were discovered on both accused when arrested at a house shortly after the robbery was reported. Pieces of safe ballast were taken from Remington's shoes.

Promoted

Promotion of Lt. Cdr. N. D. Brodeur, 33, of Victoria to the rank of commander has been announced by Ottawa. Commander Brodeur is one of 31 officers on the armed forces promotion list. He is at present serving at HMCS Stadacona in Halifax.

GIs Charged
In Escapes

BERLIN (UPI) — The army announced Wednesday the arrest of two U.S. soldiers on charges they provided uniforms to help refugees get past the wall.

They were identified as PFC Michael Herman, 21, of Portland, and SP4C William Taylor, 22, of Hermington, Tenn.

At the same time West Berlin police announced the arrest of three Germans who were involved in the escape last month in which the uniforms were used.

Elderly Man Admits Possession

An 18-horsepower outboard motor, stolen from a Shawigan Lake boatshed Dec. 22, was found in the trunk of William Lundy's car Jan. 8, central magistrate's court was told Wednesday.

Lundy pleaded guilty before Magistrate William Ostler to having possession of the stolen outboard and was remanded to

Seven Children

Eight Die As Fire Hits Home

PIERRE, S.D. (API) — A woman and seven children died early Wednesday in a fire in a home here.

Firemen said Mrs. Wallace M. Quenzer, 31, and the children, one the daughter of a neighbor, apparently died from smoke inhalation.

Other victims were Marie, 11; Karen, 9; Dean, 7; twins Kim and Kevin, 6; and Karla Quenzer, 3, and Kathy Burris, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Burris. Kathy Burris had celebrated her birthday Tuesday.

THREE ESCAPED: Mr. Quenzer, a station agent for an airline, and two of his children, Paulette, 16, and Barbara, 4, escaped.

Firemen said Mrs. Quenzer appeared to have rushed to the upstairs bedroom to try to rescue the children.

STARTED IN CLOSET: W. H. Walker, deputy state fire marshal, said the fire was believed to have started in a downstairs closet.

Pierre volunteer fire chief Tom Brady, who arrived on the scene three minutes after the alarm, said one of the children was partly hanging out of an upstairs window.

He said the child was dead and had apparently either crawled out the window or the mother had propped it in the open window sill.

Polygamy Ban Congo Decree

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (API) — The Central African Republic has outlawed polygamy, the Congolese press agency reported Tuesday. The decree of the new military government is effective immediately, but not retroactive, the agency said. An estimated 40 per cent of the Central African Republic's 1,250,000 people are Moslems, permitted by their religion to have as many as four wives.

Jan. 20 for a pre-sentence report.

The 74-year-old Lundy, 3179 Ayton, was remanded on bail.

DRIVE YOUTH: RCMP Cpl. George Meyer said that Lundy drove a 16-year-old youth to Shawigan Lake, Dec. 22. The youth then removed the motor from the boatshed and placed it in the trunk of Lundy's car.

"As a result of the investigation of the youth, the motor was recovered Jan. 8, still in the trunk of the car," Cpl. Meyer said.

"He (Lundy) could offer no excuse for his actions," Cpl. Meyer said.

The motor was valued at about $100.

NO PREVIOUS TROUBLE: Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse said Lundy had never been in trouble before. He had met the youth and several others at Brentwood and the youth had told him he knew where he could get an outboard.

"He admits it was a very foolish and stupid thing to have done," Mr. Gatehouse added.

Magistrate Ostler said: "I am rather suspicious that the situation is not as simple as it appears."

Walter Fyfe, 1685 Fort, was sentenced to six months in jail on two counts of possession of stolen goods.

He had pleaded not guilty before Magistrate J. A. Byers, Nov. 5, and was remanded for sentence when he was found guilty after a trial.

The police recovered from Fyfe goods worth $380 stolen from Rankin Ladies' Wear and $388 worth taken from Victoria Color Photo.

Walter Ward, 851 Esquimalt, stopped only briefly after he hit another car on Esquimalt Road Dec. 19, court was told.

Ward pleaded guilty and was fined $350 for impaired driving and $150 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident. His licence was suspended.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Ward hit the rear of a car waiting to turn off Esquimalt Road. He stopped only briefly and was located 40 minutes later by police at his home.

"He admitted he had been drinking," Mr. Birkett said.

A breathalyzer reading of .14 was taken.

Ernest Watts, 948 Latoria, was fined $300 for impaired driving, but Magistrate Ostler agreed with counsel Mr. Gatehouse.

Plane Crashes, Bombs Explode

DA NANG (Reuters) — A U.S. Air Force B-57 jet loaded with bombs has crashed at the huge American air base here.

A heavy explosion rocked the base and the nearby city as the aircraft's engines blew up, detonating the bombs, according to reports.

The jet was en route to a target in North Vietnam when it crashed. The aircraft's engines blew up, detonating the bombs, according to reports.

house that it was not a severe case.

He suspended Watts' licence for four months but allowed him to drive for business reasons between 5:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

INJURED FOOT: Watts was stopped by RCMP overtake when leaving the Colwood Shopping Plaza Dec. 18. Crown witnesses said Watts swayed badly as he walked, but Watts said in evidence that he walked that way because of an injured foot.

A breathalyzer reading of .13 was taken.

A man and wife were fined $50 each after pleading guilty to making false statements on immigration forms.

Lee Yit Hong admitted that he claimed on the form that his true name was Fong Gee Wai and that his true father was Fong Bing.

His wife, Lee May Ling, admitted stating that her then fiancée's name was Fong Gee Wai during an immigration examination.

MINIMUM ASKED: Mr. Birkett said that the Crown asked for the minimum sentence of $50.

Magistrate Ostler: "I think it is a mistake to let the impression get abroad that these offences will be treated lightly."

However, he fined the couple the minimum.

Joseph Poirier, Kemp Lake

Road, ran out of gasoline at Colwood Nov. 21. So his son pumped some colored gasoline into the tank.

The result was a $50 fine for Poirier, who pleaded guilty.

Mr. Birkett said the offence occurred at 2 a.m. and the accused claimed he took just enough gasoline to get home.

For operating as a contractor without a licence, R. S. Scott, 1511 Shorecliffe, was fined $55.

He was also ordered to pay $15 for the licence. He pleaded guilty.

Myrtle Aaston, 305 Cadillac, said she was under a misunderstanding about her licence to operate a kindergarten.

Mrs. Aaston, who pleaded not guilty, said she thought that a licence had been taken out by the woman she rented the premises from.

Magistrate Ostler: "It is clearly your responsibility to see that you have a valid licence."

Mrs. Aaston was fined $25.

Donald Green, 2652 Blackwood, was fined $35 for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Mr. Birkett said Green's car was parked at Portage Inlet Dec. 18. Police found several capped and uncapped bottles of beer in the car.

Ollie's Pen Pal Pays Off

By JIM TAYLOR

You won't see Ollie Goldsmith's assistant coach Saturday when Victoria Chinooks play UBC Jayvees, but he'll be there all right—either stuffed in Ollie's pocket or locked in his head.

Goldsmith, you see, has a secret weapon, and all those worrying about the poor, poor Chinooks (who are in first place) would do well to take note.

Ollie writes letters. Mainly, he writes to a chap named Bobby Boyd in Seattle. Boyd was head basketball coach at Seattle University last year, and now he's with the Converse people, who are very big in shoes and basketball promotion. The answers he gets are amazing.

"I first met him at a coaches' clinic in Vancouver," Goldsmith explained last night as he got Chinooks ready for Saturday's game against UBC Jayvees. "He showed me a lot about this game at the clinic, and he's shown me even more by mail."

Now, Goldsmith may wear glasses, but they are not rose-colored. He's been around this game for a spell, and he knows his Chinooks are going to have to struggle to repeat as Canadian junior men's basketball champions. So when he needs help, he doesn't hesitate to go looking.

"Boyd has been wonderful," he said. "He conducts clinics everywhere and he's answered every question. Write to some coaches and they send back a letter telling you when their next book comes out. Boyd gives answers. He's interested."

It was Boyd, for instance, who helped design the zone-breaker offence Chinooks put into practice last Saturday against Killarney.

The latest letter inquires about setting up an offence without a bucket man, because Chinooks simply aren't that strong in the middle.

"And besides," Goldsmith adds, "when playoffs come you have to have something new. They've seen everything else you've got."

Goldsmith is a realist. He took Chinooks to the Canadian title in his first year with them last season and he knows how tough it is. But he's getting a mile fed up with the breast-beaters who are writing off Chinooks already. They've played 10 games in the Inter-City Junior Basketball League and won nine of them. Saturday's game against Jayvees will probably settle it all.

"We beat them the first time we played them (48-45), and we did it in their gym playing without Barney Spaven," Goldsmith says. "They're good, but I don't see why we can't do it again."

Saturday's game brings together two teams of distinctly opposite styles. Jayvees, who have averaged 99 points per game over their last five, like to fast breaks and they'll run you to death if you let them. Chinooks play it slow and careful, which is the only way to beat UBC.

It also brings together the two best guards in the league—Chinooks' Ken Jackson, the scorer, and Joey Kalner, the pass master and team leader of the Jayvees. They'll be checking each other.

Braves have scored to spare in Sam Vandermeulen, Bob Molinski and Phil Langley, who scored 41 points the other night.

"They can't score if they haven't got the ball," Goldsmith said. "And I'd like to see Langley score 41 with Doug Gregory checking him."

"We get rapped because we didn't run up a big score against Killarney," he went on. "Well, I don't think they'll run up big scores. I like to come out of a game thinking our floor play was working better, or we were stronger defensively."

"We could have scored a lot more points Saturday, but we worked on that zone-breaker, even when Killarney went man to man on us. And I used my bench after four minutes, because what good do they do you just sitting there?" "Our top four scorers—Ron Bowler, Don Frampton, Barney Spaven and Jackson—are as strong as the four we had last year. I'd say the teams are on a par physically."

"We don't get in top shape until after Christmas—deliberately, because there's a month layoff at the holidays, and there's no sense reaching your peak until the end of the season, when it counts. Now I think we're ready."

Goldsmith is firmly convinced that it will be UBC and Chinooks in the Canadian final here March 5, which makes this one an interesting preview.

Between then and now, he'll keep in touch with Boyd, a man never too busy to be interested. When Goldsmith wrote asking for information on the zone-breaker it was smack in the middle of holiday season, but he got a quick answer.

It came in five hand-written pages—written on Christmas Eve.

Italian Sports Event

Manitoba U. Off to Winter Games

OTTAWA (CP)—The University of Manitoba Blues will represent Canada at the world student winter games at Torino, Italy, next month.

Berna, Canadian intercollegiate champion last year, were selected and will be sponsored by the Canadian Union of Students and the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. It's the first time Canada has competed in the student winter games. Last summer 10 Canadian teams took part in the summer games at Budapest and carried off one gold medal and three bronze medals.

The Italian organizing committee felt a Canadian entry in the games might spark more interest than usual and has offered to pay the Canadian living expenses while in Italy.

Other teams will come from Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Finland, Romania, Yugoslavia, Austria, Hungary, and the United States.

There's still some hope that the Russians will have an entry in the games.

Berna have lost a number of players from the team that won the university title a year ago. However they will add graduate defenseman John Trojak.

The team is coached by Bill Robinson. Here's the complete roster:

AMERICA'S GUEST

By JIM MURRAY

The "in" crowd is with us today. Walk-to-all aspects. 7,000 yards of alligator shoes. The jet set. The professional golfers. America has set off on the spur of $3,000,000 in official money and almost that much in fringe benefits ranging anywhere from the Ed Sullivan Show to clinics in Hong Kong for a cigarette company.

They're the new elite of sports. You put a 14-inch ball in a 4 1/2-inch hole. You try not to go by way of Pico Blvd.

You don't necessarily have to beat Palmer. You have to beat you. You get 14 clubs, a caddy and everyone's heartfelt sympathy. You probably came there in a free car from a free room. Some millionaire is always grabbing the cheques. You don't have to pay for your clubs, your balls, your clothes. They pay you. You are America's guest, as long as you break 70.

Athletically, you've got it made. You don't have to be fit (some guys who win have to adjust their stance to see the ball over their bellies). You can be underweight, overweight, or wearing glasses, be hard of hearing, hung-over or have acid indigestion. One great champion was a hay-fever sufferer. Another had to avoid colds because he wouldn't heal. For most, the only cut they have to worry about is the second-round one—the unkind cut of all.

EDGE IS YOURS

You got the edge over every athlete in the world. The human arm wasn't built for throwing a curve ball. The human brain wasn't meant to get hit with a gloved fist. The human knee wasn't hinged to get tackled.

Pro football is up to its hips in damaged quarterbacks. Several prep school kids lost their lives bucking for a first down. It was a bumper year for the crutch and bandage industries. Baseball taunts football, "what do you want, kid, a career or a limp?" Tennis jeers at baseball,

"what do you want, fun or money?"

Golf gets it all. You don't trade a knee for a bank account. You don't train all your life to win a cup for your country and bare expenses for yourself. You can't get a cauliflower ear chipping to a green. You don't need arm surgery every other year. If your back hurts, you're swinging wrong.

It's the pressure that hurts. The pressure is a self-inflicted wound. You're putting for 36 grand every week—but so are 150 other guys. The rules are in your favor if you're one of The Establishment. You don't need shoulder guards, sliding pads, a monkey suit, batting gloves. You can play in an outfit that costs as much as a milk wrap. In fact, you can play in a milk wrap, if you want to.

ALL FOR YOU

The tournament is arranged for you. None of the expenses come off the top—your top, that is. Financiers cheerfully juggle the ropes, repair ball marks on the greens, handle the crowds, take tickets. Doctors and lawyers and Indian chiefs, or at least insurance chiefs, take time out from their offices to insure you have a smooth week. They get nothing for it except they don't have to pay to get in. It's a benefit for you.

You don't have to hustle a bet on the first tee to make ends meet with a golf club anywhere.

You get rich as legitimately as Rockefeller. Keep your left arm straight baby, and you've got it made. Mickey Mantle, phooey! He'd trade places with you. So would Sugar Ray and Dennis Ralston or Jim Brown.

THE RULES

And, finally, there are the customers. Not one (or hardly anyone) ever yelled "miss it, ya bum!" They don't even think it. They pass out—happy help.

Viewing a Tournament? Can you imagine them doing that at Shea Stadium? The Rose Bowl? St. Nick's Arena? You can bring all horns and fireworks to the average sporting event.

To even matters up a bit, then, here are a few of Murray's rules of etiquette for viewers: million-dollar golf this year. After all, why should these guys have everything?

● Carry pocketful of coins. Jingle them on the green as the guy is lining up a putt. Shower them on a nearby rock if the putt is for a tournament tie.

● Wait until the player gets to the top of his back swing with a 2-iron on a crucial shot before you clear your throat. You don't want to get there with that!

● Shake your head wisely when you see a pro pull out a 7-iron for a tricky shot—particularly if you know the 7-iron is the right club.

● Lean over as a pro pulls a 3-wood out of the bag and snap quietly but authoritatively, "Palmer bogied the hole with that five minutes ago. In fact, never mind the film. But be sure to check your insurance."

● If you see a guy's ball lying in the rough, never, never pick it up. That's stealing. Just step on it. If you've got a dry enough, position yourself on the 15th green. You'll be able to do the most good there. Or, the most bad.

● If you do all these things, you'll find it just as much fun and self-satisfying as yelling "strike the bum out!" or "kill 'im!" In fact, even more.

More Fishing For Kootenay

VICTORIA (CP)—Recreation minister Kenneth Klein has announced a change in the B.C. fisheries regulations to permit year-round fishing in Kootenay Lake, except for a small area north of Lost Lake and Salubury Creek.

This area will remain closed to fishing from Feb. 1 to June 30 to protect spawning fish during their migration to the Lardeau River.

FOX TROT TO FAME

TORONTO (CP)—On the theory that tripping the light fantastic may speed up Chin (Tiger) Fraser by a vital hundredth of a second, the Toronto waterweight boxer is taking up dancing.

"He's just about a hundredth of a second slow about," says his manager, Dave Yeak.

Medicare Delay Seen

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation on the welfare package called the Canada Assistance Plan and to set up a $500,000,000 health resources fund are the only major items for Parliament in the health and welfare field.

Health Minister MacEachen, making his debut as head of a big spending department, says he does not expect legislative action on medical care insurance in the early part of the parliamentary session which starts Jan. 18.

NO NOTIFICATION

Main reason for this is that the provinces have not yet formally notified the federal government of their views on Ottawa's offer to pay half the costs of provincial medical care insurance plans which meet certain conditions.

Mr. MacEachen, who moved to health and welfare from the labor department just before Christmas, is considering whether to write the provinces a reminder that they had promised to give a reply to the federal medical care offer by the end of 1965.

ADDITION

Health and welfare, third biggest spending department behind national defence and finance, likely will get into the $1,500,000,000 bracket in the 1966-67 fiscal year with additional welfare costs and health resources spending.

But prospects are slim for any increase in the old age pension of $75 a month paid to all age 65. Mr. MacEachen says he does not want to comment now on this question, a tough one politically with the Conservatives and New Democrats pressing for a boost to $100 a month.

During last fall's federal election campaign, Liberal spokesmen took the stand that needy old age pensioners who require more than the $75-a-month old age pension will be able to get additional amounts through the Canada Assistance Plan.

The old age pension is paid entirely out of federal funds. Canada Assistance Plan benefits will be paid through provincial programs with Ottawa picking up half the cost.

The health department's budget in the current fiscal year ending March 31 is about $1,400,000,000, of which welfare payments totalled more than $800,000,000.

The Canada Assistance Plan lumps into one a number of existing welfare programs, such as unemployment assistance, paid to the needy unemployed, and several new programs.

It was agreed on at a federal-provincial conference last week, the first presided over by Mr. MacEachen as health minister.

Depending on the various optional programs which the provinces may include under the plan, its annual cost to the federal government will range between $185,000,000 and $250,000,000.

The health resources fund is aimed at boosting the facilities available, including doctors and nurses, against the day when a national medical care insurance program goes into effect.

Mr. MacEachen has called a federal-provincial conference of health ministers for the end of this month to make a final allocation of the $500,000,000 offered by Ottawa over the next 15 years.

Prize-Winning Float

Provincial government's kickoff to this year's centennial celebration was float in New Year's Day Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena, Calif., before Rose Bowl college football game. Float won top international honors. Escorted by beekeepers' marching band from Vancouver and troop of 17 mounted RCMP officers, it featured floral reproduction of B.C. coat-of-arms, mound of yellow roses, draped banners of red carnations. Lene Graaten, Miss British Columbia, of Coombs, is seen waving to crowd.

Face Retraining Peterson Urges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor Minister Peterson delivered a retraining-for-automation sales pitch Wednesday to the opening of the truck loggers' convention here.

He told the convention that labor unrest and disputes arising from the introduction of automated procedures are not always the fault of management.

"The reluctance of employees to identify their own interests closely with those of the enterprise in which they work, the fear of union leaders that management attempts to communicate with employees will undermine the union, and an antipathy to change, all these restrain labor's initiative," he said.

"I strongly urge all unions, just as I urge all management, to consider that the time has come for some new and forward thinking."

Mr. Peterson said one theme has been pounded home—"or we thought it had been pounded home"—at three labor-management-government conferences.

TOO LATE
"It was that the time to consider the effects of automation... was not at the bargaining table where negotiations are under pressure, but between bargaining sessions."

He referred to last fall's unrest in the oil industry when the Oil, Chemical, and Atomic Workers Union strike threatened to develop into a province-wide work stoppage.

FUTURE PATTERN
"The terms of settlement in the oil strike, advanced by the government and accepted by both parties in the dispute, are likely to set a pattern for the future, but I hope in the future they will be arrived at without the necessity of government intervention."

He said one of the key clauses in the oil strike settlement provided for company participation in the training and retraining of men facing displacement by new procedures.

DELUSION
The public education system has been revised in recent years. He said, to meet the technological challenge of the age, "but it is sheer delusion for either management or labor to think that all training can be done in pre-employment classrooms."

"This is a mistake that some educators make, and of course industry is quite happy to have its manpower needs served on a silver platter!"

PLACE BLAME
Mr. Peterson said at the same time many workers over the age of 40 are unwilling to involve themselves in retraining and when they find their security endangered by technological change they blame their union, or management, or government.

There are definite advantages to in-plant retraining, he said, including that where such training is done it becomes a matter of routine and production is not disrupted.

REPORT DUE
Such a method also benefits the employee by allowing him the initiative to show his employee he is capable of learning and can handle the new function.

Mr. Peterson said a report from a labor-management-government conference last year on technological change is expected soon and will be placed before a tripartite committee along with another on the shortage of skilled labor in the province.

HMCS Bonaventure

'Hellish' Conditions Will Be Rectified

HALIFAX (CP)—Part of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure's annual refit will include improvements in crew living quarters, Rear-Admiral W. M. Landymore, Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast, said Wednesday.

The admiral told a press conference about $10,000,000 will be spent in the near future on renovations and modernization of the 20,000-ton carrier, a portion of which will go toward "habitability improvements."

A parliamentary delegation aboard the Bonaventure last summer found conditions unsatisfactory and one member said it was "unmistakable hell."

Admiral Landymore said he could not disclose what improvements will be made, but said no matter what is done the size of the ship's "hell" cannot be enlarged.

The admiral also said there is a naval manpower shortage. He said the navy could use more recruits, but attributed the shortage to greater stress on continuance of public education rather than in any loss of appeal due to integration.

Liquor Banned In U.S. County

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—For the first time since prohibition, dry forces have scored a victory in one of the largest whiskey-producing counties in the U.S. Residents of the Swain County community voted 73 to 52 Tuesday to ban the sale of alcoholic beverages. It will be the only dry area in Franklin County.

Troops Killed By Negroes

ALGIERES, Algeria (Reuters)—Negro guerrillas in Mozambique killed more than 70 Portuguese troops and injured nearly 50 more between Nov. 10 and Dec. 6, the Mozambique Liberation Front said.

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP) — Anti-submarine forces of Canada's navy and air force will be placed under integrated command here next Monday, but each service will retain its individual role, Rear-Admiral William M. Landymore announced Wednesday.

Admiral Landymore told a press conference he will head the new Maritime Command and direct operations of navy warships and RCAF aircraft on both the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts. The move is to increase administrative efficiency and the identity of the two services will be maintained, he said.

SUPREMACY AUTHORITY

Command headquarters will be here, the admiral said, and supreme responsibility for Canada's maritime military policy will be his. The titles Flag Officer Atlantic Coast, Flag Officer Pacific Coast and Air Officer Commanding for the Maritime Air Command will be abolished.

He said the new command will be responsible for providing sea transport for Canada's new mobile command, a joint army-air force unit, to any area of the world.

Admiral Landymore said the new command is a further step in administrative amalgamation of the anti-submarine tasks of the two services that began on the Atlantic Coast eight years ago. He said he does not anticipate major operational changes or any reduction in service manpower on either coast.

There are differences between naval and RCAF administrative policies and "naturally, one side or the other will have to bend a bit," he said. However, he expected differences of opinion would be of a minor nature and felt confident compromises could be reached.

The admiral, who is to retain his post as commander of Canada's Atlantic sub-area under NATO's Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, said integration of command facilities among the three services is both efficient and economical, but he said he could not predict what future plans for complete integration will be or how they will be accepted by the armed forces.

NO CHANGE

However, "I don't think that for years to come we'll have any change at the unit level," he said.

Admiral Landymore, a native of Brantford, Ont., said maritime operations—including intelligence, planning, operational research and communications—will remain essentially unchanged. These functions have already been integrated for some time, he said.

BEING INTEGRATED

But support services are being integrated and "these had not been amalgamated before." Support includes personnel administration, finance and security and in this field the latest integration move will affect the army.

Under the new command, Rear-Admiral M. G. Stirling will direct the Pacific Coast maritime operations and there will be a West Coast staff to take care of day-to-day details. The new maritime commander said, "This policy direction in the Pacific comes from headquarters here."

INTEGRATED BASE

The Stadacona naval station here will become an integrated base to provide the three armed services in the Halifax-Dartmouth area, excluding the Shearwater Naval Air Station in Dartmouth, with pay, service documentation and other administrative services.

Asked if there would be any interchange of air force and naval personnel under the new command, Admiral Landymore said he could not see possible duplication of training as being economically feasible, unless one service was suffering a shortage of skilled personnel that the other could supply.

SKILLS SEPARATE

He said there would be both naval and RCAF liaison officers, but could not foresee an amalgamation of individual skills, even among aircraft pilots of both services.

"It would take 18 months to train an RCAF pilot to land on the flight deck of an aircraft carrier and the training is unnecessary if we have our own pilots who are capable of doing the job," he said.

CHIEF OF STAFF

Air Commodore R. A. Gordon, present air officer commanding, has been named chief of staff for operations, while Commodore R. J. Pickford has been appointed chief of staff for logistics and administration. The Maritime Command will also be responsible for overall co-ordination of search and rescue operations in the Atlantic and Pacific regions, although normal functions will be controlled by the separate rescue centres on both coasts.

War Games In Atlantic

LONDON (Reuters) — Warships from four NATO countries — the United States, Britain, Canada and The Netherlands — Tuesday began an anti-submarine warfare exercise, Matchmaker II.

Taxes Rise In Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Liquor and gasoline taxes were raised in the new Swedish budget. Gasoline will be about 84 cents a gallon after the new taxes. Defence is allotted more money, estimated at 4.3 per cent of national gross product.

Rockefeller Backs Lindsay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller flew to New York City from Albany Wednesday "to take whatever steps necessary" to help Mayor John V. Lindsay settle the 12-day-old transit strike.

Rockefeller reminded news men that one of his powers is that of calling out the national guard, but he said he feared this might result in a general strike in support of the Transport Workers Union.

"I don't think the people are looking for a general strike," he said.

ALL HE CAN
Rockefeller said he would continue to support Lindsay and would do anything the mayor asked "as long as I feel he hopefully may find a solution to this situation."

The governor's statement was made shortly after Lindsay ordered his mediation panel to recommend terms for settlement of the subway-bus shutdown in spite of rejection of the plan by the union and the city's transit authority. Lindsay also called the city's religious leaders to city hall for a conference.

LATE DELIVERY
Lindsay received the report mediators' recommendations in writing by 3 p.m., but they were more than 90 minutes late in delivering them to him.

Lindsay had asked for the and talked with the mediators at length at city hall but said he would not make public at this time the contents of the report. The mediators then returned to the Americana Hotel for further meetings with the disputants.

Meanwhile, the Citizens' Committee for Public Safety published an advertisement in Thursday's newspapers calling for an end to the transportation crisis. The committee urged the mayor "if the strike is not ended promptly to request the governor" to call out the national guard to man and operate the buses "as a last resort."

Anthems Cut From Concerts

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra, which used to play both the Queen and O Canada as concert-opener.

Audiences have been told by conductor Victor Feldbrill the trend is away from anthems at concerts and such unless there is a national disaster or royal

The symphony's decision, which went into effect three weeks ago, has prompted one phoned-in protest and at least two complaining letters to the editor.

"The custom of not playing the anthems before a concert is prevalent now," Mr. Feldbrill said Wednesday.

"Even in England the anthems are not played."

Kierans Apologizes To U.S. For Nasty Note

QUEBEC (CP)—Erie Kierans Wednesday sent a second letter to the United States Commerce Department saying he should not have written the first.

There was no mention in Mr. Kierans' new letter of any repudiation of the contents of the first, Jan. 4, signed by him as Quebec's acting minister of revenue.

WROTE TO FOWLER
Mr. Kierans wrote Wednesday to U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler—his second to that official as well.

Its contents were not disclosed. Neither were those of the first message to Mr. Fowler, believed to have dealt with the effect on Quebec of U.S. efforts to curb investment in foreign countries by the subsidiaries of U.S. companies.

WARNED U.S.
Mr. Kierans' first letter to Commerce Secretary John T. Connor said U.S. efforts to improve that country's balance of payments would hurt Quebec and that the province would have to act accordingly.

Mr. Kierans told Mr. Connor he agreed with Premier Lesage that he should not have sent the first letter.

INCIDENT 'CLOSED'
Premier Lesage who announced the new letters at a press conference said the incident now is closed.

Mr. Kierans holds the regular post of health minister in the provincial cabinet.

Mr. Kierans signed his new letter to the commerce secretary in his capacity as health minister.

RESUMES DUTIES
Richard Hyde, the regular minister of revenue who had been absent at the time of the Jan. 4 letter, resumed his duties this week.

Mr. Pearson Friday took exception to what he called the Jan. 4 letter's infringement of federal government rights in the field of foreign affairs.

Strippers Battle Bare-Breasted Dancers

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters) A troupe of African Negro girls, who dance bare-breasted on stage, fought a pit head battle with six Australian strippers in a main street Wednesday night.

Passers-by looked on, as the girls struggled in a flurry of beautiful arms and shapely legs.

The bare-toppers—known as the Bare Top Go-Go Girls—won the fight. The Australian strippers retreated and the African girls staged a victory dance—but with their clothes on.

It all started after a row between the visiting African dancers and the Sydney Amalgamated Strippers' Union.

The African girls are currently appearing at the vast Sydney Stadium. The performers are mainly from South Africa say advertisements: See the Python Mating Dance... Hot... Barking... Daring.

But six of Sydney's best known strippers—all union members—started picketing the African show because, they say, the African girls are interfering with their livelihood.

Indonesian Students Protest Mammoth Cost Increases

JAKARTA (UPI)—Indonesian university students Wednesday staged street demonstrations for the fourth consecutive day to protest the government's economic policy.

A student group which claims a membership of more than 10,000 protested, then announced its members would boycott classes until recent government price increases on gasoline, kerosene, postal rates, train fares and other public utilities are retracted.

The increases were enacted in an attempt to stabilize the sprawling nation's faltering economy.

The government action has triggered signs of economic panic in stores and food markets in Jakarta during the past week. Kerosene, sugar and other household commodities began to disappear from store shelves. Rice selling for 2,800 rupiahs per litre on Jan. 6 was up to 3,600 Jan. 7, 3,800 Jan. 8, 4,000 Jan. 9, 4,200, Jan. 10 and 5,000 Wednesday.

Best selling for 2,000 rupiahs a pound on Dec. 14 doubled in price within the next three days, reached 15,000 rupiahs before New Year's Day and remains about that high. Similar increases came on eggs, fish and cooking oil.

In the case of gasoline, which was cheaper than water at the time of the abortive Oct. 1 communist coup, the price rose 25,000 per cent in two giant price boosts in November and January. Inevitably, the value of the rupiah in relation to the dollar depreciated spectacularly. The dollar was said to have hit 60,000 rupiahs, more than double the level at the new year and treble what it was before introduction of a new currency last month.

The government price increases increased the cost of transport and distribution and the overall increases were only partially offset by a 500 per cent increase in government wages.

Star In Hospital With Hepatitis

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Actor Walter Matthau, star of the Broadway hit The Odd Couple, is under treatment for hepatitis at Midway Hospital, it was disclosed here.

Matthau, 42, here to appear in the film, The Fortune Cookie, starring Jack Lemmon, was hospitalized Sunday night and the illness was diagnosed late Monday, a spokesman said.

The actor's physician said Matthau was in "quite satisfactory" condition and that he would remain in the hospital about three weeks.

Billy Wilder, producer-director of The Fortune Cookie, said there was no plan to replace Matthau in the film and that he would continue to shoot scenes not involving the actor for the next several weeks until he could return to work.

Matthau is on a leave of absence from his role in The Odd Couple, and had expected to return to it in March.

A Wedding They'll Remember

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—No one appeared to mind the snow that clung to the bride's veil or the chill 16 degrees and snow squalls.

On windswept Ambassador Bridge, linking Windsor and

Detroit across the international border, Lena Calcagno, 23, was married Wednesday afternoon to Mario Sciacca, 27.

The ceremony was brief—and in Spanish.

The couple, born in Italy, live in Windsor, but the bride, Recorder's Court Judge Vincent J. Brennan, is from Detroit.

The bride had been granted a Mexican divorce, not recognized in Canada after the breakup of her previous marriage, and a U.S. marriage had therefore been sought. They chose the bridge as their altar and because of the bride's associations with Mexico, the service was in Spanish.

Silent Seven Hours

Pirate Pop Radio Adrift

CLACTON, England (UPI)—A converted American naval minesweeper that is now a pirate pop radio ship broke its moorings in a gale early Wednesday and drifted helplessly for four miles in pounding seas until the crew managed to drop anchor.

Clacton lifeboat stood by the 1,000-ton Galaxy, which houses Radio London, known as Big L to thousands of its fans, until dawn. Then a tug towed it back to its position in the River Thames estuary, after a silence of seven hours.

Radio London, with a crew of 25 men, is one of two major pirate radio stations broadcasting from just outside the three-mile limit marking British territorial waters. The ship was blown just inside the limit by the gale and so stayed off the air until it was back in position.

The radio ship has frequently broken into the news since it started transmission in December, 1964. In April last year its tender rescued an American airman who had bailed out from his air force jet. In August police were called to investigate reports that Radio London was going to be sabotaged. In September a lifeboat went out and rescued its Dutch skipper, who needed an appendix operation. On Christmas Eve police went aboard and removed a man who had gone berserk.

Last month Radio London chief Philip Birch, 38, a former advertising executive, said he was ready to fight any government attempt to get the radio off the air.

"We have taken legal advice and believe we are operating legally, but if it should be made an offence for British firms to broadcast from Radio London, then we would still exist with

Commission Fix Convicts Party Worker

QUEBEC (CPI)—Gerald Martineau, 63, a member of the Quebec legislative council and former treasurer of the Union Nationale party, was sentenced Wednesday to 90 days and fined $49,000 for influence-peddling.

Judge Paul Baillargeon convicted Mr. Martineau under Section 102 of the Criminal Code.

FIXED COMMISSIONS

He was charged with arranging commissions for Union Nationale friends or party supporters on Quebec government purchases.

Mr. Martineau will serve four

months more if he defaults payment of the fine. An appeal will be made.

Mr. Martineau is president of Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League and owner of a typewriter company.

REQUEST GRANTED

The court granted his request for a one-month period in which to pay the fine.

Mr. Martineau was convicted on 13 charges of influence-peddling in connection with sales to the former Union Nationale government by Charles Cusson Ltd. and Brandram-Henderson Ltd.

CHARGES BROUGHT

The charges were brought after a royal commission, established by the Liberal government of Premier Jean Lesage, investigated purchasing practices of the Union Nationale administration between July 1, 1955, and June 30, 1960.

The Supreme Court of Canada recently ordered Mr. Martineau to stand trial for a second time on another 11 influence-peddling charges connected with sales to the government by Sico Paints Ltd.

ACQUITTAL QUASHED

He had been acquitted of the 11 charges in Quebec Superior Court, but the Quebec Court of Appeal quashed the acquittal and ordered a new trial. The Supreme Court upheld the decision of the Appeal Court.

At no time has there been any suggestion Mr. Martineau derived personal profit from the alleged system of unearned commissions on which the cases are based.

$3,000 FINE

Judge Baillargeon sentenced Mr. Martineau Wednesday to a fine of $3,000 and five consecutive days in jail on each of eight charges connected with sales by the Charles Cusson Ltd.

The remaining charges were connected with sales by Brandram-Henderson Ltd. Mr. Martineau was sentenced to a $3,000 fine on each of these charges and to 10 consecutive days in prison on each charge.

NOTHING LOST

On the first eight charges, the province had not lost any money from payment of the unearned commissions, said the judge.

But in the case of the remaining five charges, the province had lost money because the price Brandram-Henderson charged for paint was increased to provide for payment of the commissions.

COURT RULED

The judge said the Supreme Court of Canada ruled unanimously Dec. 14 a member of the legislative council—Quebec's upper house—is a public official within the meaning of Section 102 of the Criminal Code.

The trial of Mr. Martineau on the 13 charges was held more than a year ago. The judge postponed judgment until Wednesday so he would know the outcome of appeals by Mr. Martineau.

Mr. Martineau was released on $1,000 cash bail.

Prison Door Slams Shut

SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF. (L.A.T.)—Convicted abortionist Robert Spears, once a suspect in the bombing of an airliner that killed 42 persons, found today that the revolving door out of prison has been slammed shut.

The 70-year-old, self-styled "doctor," whose 29 arrests span nearly half a century, was refused parole by the California adult authority because he is not "sufficiently rehabilitated."

Spears, now at the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo, started serving a five-year sentence in 1963 on the same day he wound up a 3½-year federal term for driving a stolen car over state lines.

The car belonged to a former prison mate of Spears whom he was suspected of tricking into taking his seat on a flight from Tampa to New Orleans in a plot to collect $10,000 insurance.

The plane crashed in the Gulf of Mexico and the FBI tried but failed to prove Spears had sent adult authority because he is not "sufficiently rehabilitated."

Spears, now at the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo, started serving a five-

Two Experts Clash Over Use of Drug LSD

Raptures or Mental Breakdowns

By BILL STAYDAL

A disarmed Harvard professor of psychology and a Victoria psychiatrist crossed swords Wednesday over LSD, the hallucination-producing drug that evokes "instant religion" for some and horrors for others.

The ex-professor was Dr.

Richard Alpert, 34, fired in 1963 along with another Harvard staff member because of research into chemicals which alter human perception.

The Victoria psychiatrist was Dr. Charles Gregory, director of the provincial mental health centre here.

and who, like Dr. Alpert, has experienced the eerie effects of LSD.

They spoke before several hundred students at the University of Victoria.

Dr. Alpert's message: LSD, and other hallucinogenic drugs, can be used to vastly expand the consciousness of man. With LSD, a person can experience the same mystic raptures that moved the Biblical prophets, and even Christ.

"Colors take on a brilliance you've never seen," said Dr. Alpert, who has used LSD 300 times.

"Sounds become total experience. A trumpet note sounds as though you are standing inside the trumpet.

"You are perfectly lucid. You are a point of awareness. Objects become patterns of energy."

And the public should have the right to use the drug, Dr. Alpert said.

Dr. Gregory, who also said he had taken LSD, opposed relaxing the existing rigid controls on hallucinogens.

He said he was not against use of the drug in controlled situations.

But taken just for kicks, the psychiatrist said, LSD is nothing more than "mental masturbation."

"We cannot escape our environment, whatever we do," he said.

"The important thing is: what does it (LSD) do in terms of behavior afterward?"

"I have yet to be convinced that this induced reality is any more valid than the reality we now have," said Dr. Gregory.

Giving LSD indiscriminately is "wrong, harmful and immoral," he declared.

Dr. Alpert, who termed himself an explorer "reporting back to society from inner space," said there was reason to believe that man had never learned to use more than a tiny fraction of his 13,000,000,000 brain cells.

The mystics and visionaries, including Christ, "had a series of experiences which were outside our own," he said.

"Because these experiences were alien to use, we have tended to reject them. We say they're nutty."

He said the relaying of Christ's messages via the apostles, the Bible and the neighborhood minister amounts to "a second-hand religious experience."

"Let's say that there is a chemical which for one-half cent per person could give everyone the same experience Christ had."

"What then would happen to institutionalized religion?"

Dr. Alpert said LSD was non-addictive and not physically harmful. But he admitted that in a poor setting and taken by a person with mental trouble or a wrong attitude, LSD could produce "a horrible experience."

However, among large numbers of subjects who had undergone LSD, 75 per cent said it was the most profound experience of their lives, he added.

Dr. Gregory said that use of LSD on a schizophrenically-inclined patient here in Victoria had induced a mental breakdown.

He said the use of LSD could produce profound depression, and had caused suicide.

Peninsula Eyes B.C. Action

Victoria's Move In Water Fight

The next move is up to Victoria in the dispute over the sale of water from Elk Lake. If an acceptable proposal is not received from the city, Saanich Peninsula water users will go to the Provincial Government.

Suspended Sentence For Escape

An Ontario youth who made a short-lived escape from Wilketon Road Jail last October received a one-year suspended sentence in Victoria County Court Wednesday.

Michael Connolly of Kitchener, who had asked for trial by judge when he appeared in magistrate's court on the charge, pleaded guilty before Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt to escaping from lawful custody.

Ferry Beefs Aired

A dispute of the B.C. Ferries crews about the 1955 shift schedule was aired before the Civil Service Commission Wednesday.

Dr. Hugh Morrison, commission chairman, said afterwards that he would probably bring down his findings in "about 10 days."

The 24-hour hearing was held behind closed doors at the Legislative Buildings, where lawyer Mrs. Marney Stevenson presented the complaints of some 270 dock and catering department employees who work on the ferry runs out of Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

The government-owned B.C. ferries system was represented by lawyer Louis Lindholm.

Parties involved in the dispute were asked not to divulge details about the hearing until after the commission's finding is released.

But it was reported earlier that the unionized employees on the ferry service between here and the Lower Mainland were disgruntled because the new schedule of 10 days on and four days off would give them only two weekends at home with their families during the year.

Dr. Morrison said he would present his non-binding report, in the form of a recommendation, to counsel for the ferry employees who requested the commission hearing.

Driver and Victim

Negligence Found In Traffic Fatality

A coroner's jury Wednesday found negligence both on the part of a driver and the person his car fatally injured.

Inquiring into the death Dec. 6 of Mrs. Annie Bradley, 76, the jury found that driver Barrie Neff had shown negligence by driving a car which did not conform to Motor Vehicle Act safety standards.

They also found Mrs. Bradley had shown negligence by jaywalking, in dark clothing, on a night when visibility was limited.

DIED OF INJURIES

Mrs. Bradley was struck on Pandora by a car driven by Mr. Neff Dec. 5, as she left the Open Brethren Church. She died of her injuries the following day.

Mr. Neff said he felt the car was in "adequate" condition the night of the accident.

He testified he did not see

Mrs. Bradley, or her son-in-law, R. N. Grubb, step out from the curb into the path of his car.

"I felt a bump. I can't understand it. As far as I can see they must have stepped out from between parked cars," he said.

Bus Drivers to Go Afar A-Praising

The Wayward Boosters

A couple of Victoria bus drivers who have been praising the beauties of Victoria for tourists for years intend to reach farther for a bigger audience.

Wayne McArthur and John Bamford leave early in May for a month-long tour of the Prairie provinces during which they will hold Victoria and Vancouver Island out as the ideal place to spend a holiday. They will also make a pitch to people who are looking for a place to retire.

The tour will be prefaced by publication of a booklet entitled Call of the Coast, 15,000 copies of which will be distributed.

The venture is a private one and, although the drivers don't expect to make anything this year or perhaps next they hope to pay expenses by the sale of advertising in the booklet and build up a receptive clientele for future tours.

The trip begins in B.C. at Cache Creek and Kamloops. From there the pair will head for Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon and Winnipeg.

Program will consist of slide showing at a booth location, along with lectures and the showing of color films in the evenings. An effort will be made to reach all organizations which might be instrumental in sending Prairie tourists to the West Coast.

Literary Panel Digs In Heels Over Censorship

By IAN ARROL

No censorship, not even censorship of hate literature was the stand taken Wednesday night by two University of Victoria educators, members of a panel on censorship and literature held in the Student Union Building.

Taking this view were Professor Tony Emery and research librarian Mrs. Helen Rodney.

Both Mr. Emery and Mrs. Rodney cited surveys which showed most of those involved in sexual crimes were not readers of anything, not even pornographic or smut literature.

One of the purposes for the meeting by the Institute of Victoria Librarians, to which book-sellers and magazine distributors were invited, was to hear views of the local Section 150 Committee.

This committee has sponsored the showing to PTAs and service groups of a film called Perverse for Profit. Many in these groups have signed petitions asking the attorney-general's office to set up a citizens' committee on obscene literature. The Section 150 Committee was not represented at the meeting. Mr. Emery said a committee spokesman had declined an invitation to appear because they felt "the time not opportune" for an expansion of their views to the librarians.

In regretting the lack of opposing sentiment, Mr. Emery asked, "Is there no shocked alderman here?"

The reference was to Alderman Clyde Savage of Victoria who last summer expressed his disgust with the book Last Exit to Brooklyn by Hubert Selby, Jr.

"It is an important book," said William Duthie of Vancouver, a member of the panel, concerning the Selby novel.

Compulsory Das Kapital

"Selby worked on the book for 10 years to portray a group which does exist, not only in Brooklyn, but in Vancouver and Victoria."

Mr. Duthie said that although violence was depicted and the language used often vile, people should know about this way of life because it does exist.

The Vancouver bookseller has just recently defended the Selby book in court (and lost) and will appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. The book was seized by police in his store and a charge laid against the book.

Although Mr. Duthie was not himself charged, he chose to defend the book to maintain his right to sell the books he stocks on his shelves.

"No intelligent person believes or approves of censorship," said Mr. Duthie.

A number of those in the audience had reservations, particularly in respect to hate literature.

"Hate literature will be produced whether there are laws against it or not," said Mrs. Rodney.

She said the "bastion of morality" was at the root, the family.

Mr. Emery said he had never found anyone who could make a case that this world would be a worse place if there were no censorship.

"The best way of making sure a person would not become a Communist would be to make Das Kapital compulsory reading," said the professor by way of illustration.

Victoria Sikhs Bid Farewell To Lal Bahadur

The haunting rhythm could have been a lonely Moorish shepherd's song or a Levantine lover's lament.

But it was a hymn from the Punjab plains that rose to the plaid Victorian rafters of the Sikh Temple on Topaz Avenue Wednesday night.

Victoria's Sikhs were saying good-bye to Lal Bahadur Shastri.

The piping minor tones of the six-voice women's choir were accompanied by a melodeon. On the Turkey-red figured carpeting, men sat along one side of the temple, women along the other. Most of the men were clean shaven. Few wore beards and turbans. All were in western dress.

Scarves covered the women's heads. There was only one sari. Most wore sarkars, the Punjab trousers. "Bahadur means brave—a hero—strong, steady, steadfast, persevering in trials and tribulations."

"Shastri means learned, wise, intellectual. He was expert in the study of Hindu Scripture. He was a pandit, a philosopher of divine knowledge."

"He lived up to his name, a great son of India, a patriot who fought for freedom since the early 1920s."

The prime minister was a man from the masses working for the poor and the weak, a spiritual being with no love of material things.

"He sacrificed his life fighting for peace."

Bhan Singh, a grey-bearded patriarchal figure in a blue turban, took his place behind the Rumala, a covering of purple, gold and blue satin covering the Granth-sahib, the Sikh bible.

He read a Sikh mourning hymn, intoning it as if it were a Gregorian chant.

There were more hymns, haunting, minor, of the earth.

"The Lord sends his servants here wherever they are needed," said secretary Singh. "Then they go back to their Master and Creator, Shastri did his job."

Dr. Surat Singh Bath spoke of the dead prime minister, whom he had known in India. Dr. Singh came to Victoria from the Punjab only a month ago.

"There are no photographs of Shastri as a boy," he said. "His family was so poor they couldn't afford photographs."

The service ended with a prayer in Punjab intoned by the congregation, standing and facing the Rumala and the Granth-sahib.

It was here the congregation, shoeless, had one-by-one bowed as they entered. Most of the women had touched their heads to the floor in front of the traditional canopy.

"The canopy was originally designed as protection against the sun in India," explained Kuldeep Bains after the service.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am beginning to think my mother was right. She once told me that there is not a decent, clean-thinking man in this world. I'm convinced she knew what she was talking about.

I am 48, and have been married twice. Both my husbands were skirt chasers—morning, noon, and night. The office manager made a play for me the second day I started to work here. The window washers and the janitor made goo goo eyes at me the same week.

Yesterday the meter-reader made an indecent proposal. This morning the bus driver gave me a come-on wink of the eye. I am so sick of sex maniacs I don't know what to do.

What advice do you have? Is there an escape? Please don't tell me to see a doctor for a check-up. The last time I went to see a doctor he propositioned me right in his office.—DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: I think you ought to see a psychiatrist. But make sure you select a female. And I am not kidding.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to say a word to the grandmother who signed herself "Beck and Call." She was annoyed because her married daughters used her as a sitter, a cook and a seamstress. They also had a habit of dropping off their children at her house when they went away for weekends.

I am in the same boat, so I know how she feels. But the solution you suggested won't work for me. Here is my story: Several months ago my daughter asked if I would take her children for four days while she and her husband went out of town. When I hesitated, she said, "Well, if you have to think about it, skip it." She hung up and would not speak to me for three months. I missed the children so much it almost killed me.

Now when she asks if I will take her youngsters I say yes without hesitation. The price for refusing is more than I want to pay. Maybe you will say I am a damned fool, but I love my grandchildren.—L. A. GRANNY

Dear Granny: Don't look now but your daughter is blackmailing you, and she is using her children as bait. I hope, for your sake, Mother, that there are no more at home like HER. One is enough.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 and going steady with one of the coolest cats in the senior class. We haven't done anything wrong yet and that is why I am writing. I believe in preventing trouble before it starts. Please give me some advice.

After four dates I let Ronnie kiss me. Now that is all he wants to do. I can't get him interested in going to a movie, bowling, playing records or looking at TV. I even tried your formula of asking him questions about himself to get a good conversation going, but no dice. Ann, Ronnie would rather make out than do anything.

Last night he said if I cared for him as much as he cares for me I wouldn't fight him on this. I don't want him to ditch me, but I don't want to give in either. Please give me some advice and fast.—HANGING ON BY MY FINGERNAILS

South African Model State Could Reshape Republic

There is a growing realization in the Republic of South Africa today that other racial groups must be allowed a far wider range of self-determination and more responsibility in their own affairs, members of the Women's Canadian Club were told Wednesday.

Mrs. R. J. Bower, wife of the Daily Colonist publisher and editor-in-chief, spoke to an overflow audience in the Empress Hotel.

Rhodesian-born, she has recently returned from an official tour of South Africa where she was deeply impressed with a pilot scheme set up by the republic's government in the Transkei.

The Transkei, a small state about "half the size of Scotland" has an elected native government, receiving guidance from a white South African administrator.

The people of the Xhosa race of Bantu number about two million. They have their own first minister, cabinet and elected representatives.

Under a constitution set up in 1963 they received statehood, distinctive citizenship, a Xhosa flag, national anthem and freedom to speak Xhosa as one of the official languages.

"The Transkei," said Mrs. Bower, "is the most consolidated homeland, and politically the most advanced community in South Africa."

"This is South Africa's answer to the winds of change in Africa. The government firmly believes that Britain, France and Belgium handed over their colonies to irresponsible Africans far too quickly, long before indigenous peoples were able to govern themselves. As proof they point to the bloody history of the Congo and the chaos in Kenya."

"White South Africans will tell you they refuse to allow this kind of chaos to develop in areas under their political control and impress that they are determined to hand over the reins of government when they are convinced the Bantu is ready to accept them."

Mrs. Bower said that when the Bantu is ready to take over his own destiny, the white supervisory government will withdraw, but until then, it will treat the Transkei as a "developing country."

Mrs. Bower explained that the Transkei Bantu government runs itself and only calls on the South African (white) government capital in Pretoria on matters such as defence, foreign affairs and some forms of communication.

It is hoped this model, experimental state will serve as a blueprint for eight more areas now in the planning.

Right now, the Transkei is served by four branch railway lines and a wide network of road transport services.

White capital and ownership of property is not permitted. Industries established include furniture manufacture, light metals, meat canning and grain mills.

Educationally the Transkei stands out.

It has 630 schools, 5,000 Bantu teachers and over 270,000 Bantu pupils.

There are also teacher-training colleges producing 3,000 teachers annually, industrial schools, a special school for disabled children and a training school for the sons of chiefs and headmen.

Mrs. Bower's talk was illustrated by a color movie showing some of the most glorious scenery. There were waterfalls, skies of brilliant blue, undulating fields of arable land, vast pastures, breathtaking mountains—and, in the foreground, the people themselves.

There were the Bantu in ochre robes, the doctors in surgical green, young men in ashes bathing for an initiation in a river, girls picking cotton, teachers training the blind to read, a young man being sworn into the local government—all the contrasts from the primitive to the most highly developed states.

As Mrs. Bower pointed out, since the end of the war Africa has undergone changes unequalled in any other area of the world, and the three great powers that once governed most of the country, have all but withdrawn from Africa.

The speaker pointed out that South Africa consists of 11 national groups, made up of 3,000,000 white, 1,000,000 Cape Coloreds, 600,000 East Indians and 12,000,000 Bantu.

Each group has a distinct identity, a way of life determined by language, culture and environment.

"Each group has evolved in its own way according to its stage of development and way of life," she said.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Women's Canadian Club entertained at tea Wednesday afternoon in the Empress Hotel in honor of guest speaker, Mrs. R. J. Bower, wife of the publisher and editor-in-chief of The Daily Colonist. Wallace, Miss Jessie Gordon, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Frank Mack, Mrs. T. C. Evans, Mrs. D. MacLeod, Mrs. C. L. Smith, Mrs. A. S. Stringer, Miss M. Ashworth, Miss Kathleen Agnew and Mrs. T. H. Johns. Students Seek Equal Opportunities

University of Victoria students from all over the province will lobby their MLAs in support of equality of opportunity for higher education when the 1966 session begins Jan. 27.

Paul Williamson, president of the University of Victoria student council, said Wednesday that students were preparing themselves for the job, brushing up on educational financing issues.

"We aren't forming a pressure group," said Mr. Williamson. "We simply want to present the facts to our MLAs."

"We think there'll be a lot of debate on education at this session, much more than usual."

University students here have led a nation-wide campaign against rising education costs by temporarily withholding a $56 fee increase announced last year.

The students are fighting for "universal accessibility" to higher education, not necessarily the elimination of tuition fees.

About half of University of Victoria students have withheld their $56 fee increase. They will pay it Jan. 27, the day the legislature opens.

Conference

Peterson To Meet Students

Education Minister Peterson will address a meeting of B.C. student leaders here Jan. 29 and 30 at the University of Victoria.

The conference, first of its kind in the province, will draw about 30 delegates from 11 post-secondary level education centres.

It is being organized by Paul Williamson, president of the university student council, and Kathleen Harvey, former secretary of the council.

Mr. Peterson is expected to speak on the relative roles of post-secondary educational institutions in B.C., Mr. Williamson said Wednesday.

One result of the conference may be a joint submission to the government on education issues, said Mr. Williamson.

Student representatives will come from universities, community colleges, technical schools and even nursing schools.

They will discuss education financing, aid to students, responsibilities of student governments, campus-community relations and the relative roles of their institutions.

Germans Aid South Viet Nam

BONN (Reuters)—West Germany will send a fully-equipped hospital ship to South Viet Nam as part of its aid plan, it was announced Wednesday.

Eshkol Hits Arabs

JERUSALEM (AP)—Premier Levi Eshkol Wednesday accused the Arabs of trying to "change the map of the Middle East" and said Israel would continue to consolidate its military strength.

Presenting his new 18-member cabinet to the Israeli parliament (Knesset) Eshkol said: "A strong state of Israel is the first guarantee for the maintenance of peace in our area."

SOVIET SUPPLIES Eshkol protested what he termed "covert arms supplies from the Soviet Union" to Arab states "on easy and convenient terms of payment" and added that "recently Western powers, too, have started selling arms in considerable quantities to states that threaten to attack a neighboring state."

At the end of his speech, Eshkol read out a list of ministers in his new cabinet.

Yanov Shimon Shapira replaced Joseph and Abba Eban succeeded Mrs. Meir.

That's What Her Chickens Lay

Pastel Green Eggs?

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Mrs. C. R. Seay has two black pullets that lay pastel green eggs.

Not eggs with greenish yolks, which is possible if chickens eat a lot of alfalfa. Eggs with green shells. And the green goes right through the thickness of the shell.

Mrs. Seay keeps about two dozen hens because she likes to have her own fresh eggs. Most of them lay either white or brown eggs, as chickens are supposed to do.

All the chickens, Mrs. Seay said, eat the same thing—cracked corn—drink the same water and have the run of the yard.

J. Victor Nuckols, supervisor of egg graders for the Virginia department of agriculture, said he's never heard of chickens laying green eggs.

He said he'd do some more checking.

If War with Arabs ...

'We'd Prefer to Fight Alone' Israeli Tells U.S. Audience

LOS ANGELES (LAT)—Gen. Moshe Dayan, former Israeli army chief of staff, says his nation would prefer to "fight alone" against the surrounding Arab world if war between them comes again.

But he does not expect Israel's Arab neighbors to attack in the foreseeable future.

Dayan commanded the Israeli forces that whipped the Egyptians in the 1956 Sinai campaign. He made his comments in an interview here shortly after Premier Levi Eshkol, in Jerusalem, accused Arab leaders of "fostering the idea of preparation (for) war."

SUCCESSOR? Now a minority member of the Knesset (parliament) and tabbed as a probable successor to ex-Premier David Ben-Gurion, Dayan approved Eshkol's implied appeal to the United States and Russia to guarantee the security of Middle East boundaries.

Such a move by the two powers would be a "deterrent" to the Arabs, he said, but added there would be no need for troops of either nation on Israel's side if war came, despite 50 million Arabs, compared to Israel's 2,500,000 population.

"When it comes to a practical war," Dayan said, "the actual number of jet fighters and armor count, not the figure of the population."

"It would be difficult, but we can defeat them."

Declaring armored weapons the most important weapons in desert warfare — such as any renewed Arab-Israeli conflict would be — Dayan said Israel's arsenal at present was high in "quality but not in quantity."

EYE LOST

The general, who lost his left eye fighting for the British against the Vichy French in Syria in the Second World War, pointed out that almost the entire Israeli population could be mobilized if needed.

All Israeli men serve two years in the active army, women serve 18 months unless they are married or have religious reasons against it, and all are under a yearly retraining program.

RESPECTS ARABS

Dayan, agriculture minister under Ben-Gurion, did not downgrade the quality of Arab fighting men, however, a point that has become controversial in his homeland with the recent publication of his history of the Sinai campaign.

Viet Nam Visit Criticized

'Mollycoddling' Ends

WASHINGTON (LAT)—Rep. B. F. Sisk of California said Wednesday he had been assured by defense officials that they would end what the congressman called "mollycoddling" of unofficial visitors to Viet Nam.

The assurance came after Sisk complained to defense secretary Robert McNamara following a four-and-one-half day visit to South Viet Nam last fall by Los Angeles Mayor Samuel Yorty.

LEFT GROUP

Yorty arrived in Saigon Nov. 28 after leaving a trade promotion group which was touring other far eastern cities to drum up trade for Los Angeles. Once in Viet Nam, the Los Angeles mayor was given VIP treatment, including an air-conditioned limousine and a military DC-3 with a four-man crew to tour the country.

As a result of his tour, Mayor Yorty has made numerous public statements on the course of the Viet Nam war, including a suggestion that the U.S. should consider using nuclear weapons to win the war.

KENT CLIPPINGS

In a Dec. 6 letter to McNamara, Sisk attached numerous newspaper clippings on the Yorty visit to Viet Nam and complained that conducting

"mere sightseeing tours" for "casual visitors" took too much time, effort and equipment needed for the war effort, as well as providing fuel for enemy propaganda.

Wednesday Sisk said the defense department has informed him that "policies have been formulated to avoid interference with our fighting operations or unnecessary diversion of aircraft, motor vehicles and the time of high-ranking personnel from our serious war effort."

Sisk said: "I trust this will also include elimination from parade duty by exhausted fighting men for review by VIP visitors whose official status has no war connection."

Job Scene Glows Across Nation

OTTAWA (CP) — Non-farm employment showed an unusual jump between November and December to give Canada its brightest December job picture in 10 years, it was reported Wednesday.

Unemployment rose by 32,000 to 252,000 in December from 220,000 in mid-November. It was 284,000 in December, 1964. The percentage of the labor force out of work stood at 3.5 per cent, lowest for any December since 1955.

A joint report by the labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said employment in non-farm industries rose by 47,000 from November to reach 6,463,000. Normally there is a decline in this period. Farm employment sagged by 53,000 to 470,000, wiping out the non-farm improvement.

There also was an unusual rise in the size of the labor force which added 26,000 in the month to hit 7,185,000.

JOBS RISE

Comparing December to the same month of 1964, non-farm jobs were up 362,000 or 5.9 per cent, the labor force rose by 273,000 or 3.9 per cent and the total at work was 305,000 or 4.6 per cent higher.

The jobless rate of 3.5 per cent compared to 3.1 per cent in November and 4.1 per cent in December, 1964.

RATE DOWN

After adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the rate was 3.4 per cent, compared to 3.6 per cent in November and 3.9 the previous December.

The job climb was most noticeable in the Atlantic region where the gain was 6.9 per cent. However, the region continued to have the highest unemployment rate, 7.1 per cent.

Quebec had 4.8 per cent of its labor force out of work in December, Ontario 2.3 per cent, the Prairies 2.4 and British Columbia 3.3.

Four Lost As Tugs Hit Tanker

NEW YORK (AP) — A pre-dawn collision between two tug boats and a small tanker sent one of the tugs to the bottom Wednesday. Four of its crew were thrown into the icy water and presumably drowned.

The tugs Patricia Moran and Diana Moran and the 264-foot coastal tanker Morania Marlin were involved.

The Patricia Moran sank, dumping 10 crew members into the 42-degree water. Six were rescued, but four others were missing. A search is continuing.

NORAD Defences To Be Put to Test

A force of invasion aircraft will test Canadian and United States defence units of the Seattle sector of NORAD between 1 and 5 p.m. today, but people on the ground won't even know what is happening.

To guard against sonic boom incidents, the exercise, Bannock Echo III, will be held at high altitudes, especially over populated areas.

If visibility is good, jet contrails may be seen over Washington, northern Oregon, British Columbia and western Alberta, and off the coast.

INVADERS

On the invasion force will be CF-100 Canucks from Comox, and T-33 jet trainers from McChord and Paine Field, Wash., Portland International Airport, Ore., Malmstrom Air Force Base, Great Falls, Mont.; and Cold Lake, Alta. In support will be F-102 Delta Daggers from Paine Field and McChord Field-based F-106 Delta Darts.

DEFENDERS

Meeting the invaders will be RCAF and USAF fighter interceptors from the Comox station, Paine Field and McChord, and Washington and Oregon National Guard fighters.

Close-in defence action will be Washington National Guard Nike-Hercules air defence units of the Seattle-Tacoma defence in simulated missile firings.

Handling target detection will be the RCAF and USAF land-based radar squadrons based in British Columbia, Alberta, Washington and northern Oregon, and USAF airborne early warning aircraft patrolling off the coast.

Crime Study Outcry Grows In Wake of Charge

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner's charge that the federal government is "soft" on organized crime last night sparked a new outcry for a Royal Commission into the administration of justice in Canada.

Tory leader Diefenbaker called it the "worst indictment of the administration of justice ever made in this country."

DEMANDS EMPHASIZED

It emphasized his demand that a Royal Commission is needed to investigate organized crime. New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas demanded that the federal government answer, point by point, the charges made by Mr. Wagner.

He pressed for a Royal Commission to study the "growing ramifications of organized crime in Canada."

LISTED POINTS

Mr. Wagner, who attended a federal-provincial conference on organized crime in Ottawa last week, said yesterday in Quebec City:

● He was disappointed by the conference and some of the participants were "soft as dough and more interested in playing petty politics and being careful not to tread on toes" than in the struggle against crime.

● "In Ottawa dust was thrown in our eyes."

● Quebec and Ontario were the only provinces that presented concrete proposals.

● The RCMP had done everything in its power to kill Quebec's idea for a Canadian Interpol.

● Quebec Provincial Police, he claimed, had done more in one year to combat organized crime than the RCMP had done since 1951.

It was time for Justice Minister Cardin "to say something about it, if it comes under his jurisdiction."

"I can't say what he administers any more," Mr. Diefenbaker added, referring to the recent carving up of ministerial responsibility to give the war on organized crime to Solicitor-General Larry Pennell.

In the change, Mr. Diefenbaker added, President of the Privy Council Guy Favreau became responsible for bankruptcies.

In 1965, he said, bankruptcies in Canada hit $500,000,000, more than twice the figure for 1964.

"One of the most lucrative practices in Canada today," he added, "is going into bankruptcy."

The federal government has taken no action at all to curb its growth. And now Mr. Favreau was responsible for combatting it.

Turning to other federal-provincial problems, particularly Quebec's new attack on federal powers and Eric Kierans direct protests to Washington. Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"I think it was a week of play-acting."

He hinted that Premier Lesage's secret visit to Ottawa to confer with Mr. Pearson, a few days before the explosion, set the scene.

'We're Willing To Act For Neutrality'

OTTAWA (Special) — Canada is willing to participate in action to protect the neutrality and territorial integrity of Cambodia, acting Prime Minister Paul Martin announced Wednesday.

Speaking at a press conference, he said that Canada had "reacted positively" to Cambodian suggestions that the power of the International Control Commission be used to protect its borders.

Mr. Martin's statements were significant because they follow news reports that the United States is considering carrying the Viet Nam war into Cambodia which it claims is a haven for Viet Cong troops.

NOT AWARE
But Mr. Martin told newsmen he was "not aware of any direct threat to Cambodia."

The Cambodian government has suggested that the three member ICC exercise some control and supervision of military equipment crossing its borders. Mr. Martin said there has been no request for Canadian troops.

SYMPATHETIC
He said Canada "is fully sympathetic with Cambodia's desire to protect its neutrality and territorial integrity" and is "anxious to promote any action by the ICC which would contribute effectively to that goal."

He said Canada is studying ways in which the ICC could fulfill the requests made upon it.

NOT MET STANDARDS

This nation is concerned that the area remain stable. The action of the ICC so far "has not met the standards set by the Cambodian government."

"We have maintained that in order to meet the requirements of the Cambodian government the control exercises by the ICC must be effective and credible," he said.

NO POWER
"We hope we will be able to persuade the other delegations (Poland and India) to agree to more meaningful procedures," he said.

He admitted that the ICC doesn't have the power to really protect the border of any country. The power it does have is largely through "observation," he said.

NOTHING TO SAY
At the same conference he was asked about reports that Commonwealth Secretary Arnold Smith is working on another major Commonwealth peace proposal for Viet Nam. "There is nothing that I can usefully talk about," he answered. Leaving the whole question unanswered.

Canada Aids Nigeria

LAGOS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday Canada has decided to participate jointly with Nigeria in the construction of a technical school in Benin, capital of the midwestern region of the African country.

He said the two countries have reached an agreement in principle on the project and plans for the school will be prepared by Canadian architects and engineers, working in collaboration with Nigerian authorities.

Canada would contribute $1,500,000 and also would supply teaching personnel for five years after it opens.

The agreement also provided for bringing Nigerians to Canada for technical training, in preparation for teaching jobs at the school.

BOROUGH RANKS CITIES

More factory workers live in Brooklyn, New York, than in Pittsburgh and Detroit combined.

SALISBURY (CP) — Three British Labor members of Parliament were manhandled Wednesday at the close of a rowdy public meeting they had called to discuss the Rhodesian situation.

None of the MPs, who are on a fact-finding mission in this rebellious colony of Britain, was injured.

MPs David Ennals, 63, Christopher Rowland, 38, and Dr. Jeremy Bray, 33, had announced they would answer only two more questions and were preparing to close the meeting when a crowd of hooting, hollering Rhodesians surged towards the speaker's table.

HAND CAME OUT
"I was sitting there when I saw a hand come out from the throng and grab for my papers," Rowland said later.

"The papers contained all the notes made on this visit, as well as letters and messages."

"I went after the hand and was pulled over the table to the floor, where I managed to grab the papers, some of them on the floor."

WENT TO AID
The crowd moved in on the struggling Rowland. Some came to help. Some came to join in the pummeling Rowland was undergoing.

Dr. Bray, a slight, wiry man, and Ennals both went to the rescue of their colleague, but a police detective quickly intervened and rescued Rowland.

Deputy Information Minister Peter van der Byl of Rhodesia said the incident probably never would have occurred had the British MPs accepted an offer by his ministry to organize the program for them.

He said the matter is to be regretted, but the visitors had infringed regulations concerning meetings.

CONFORM
Under existing emergency regulations it is illegal to hold or attend a public meeting of more than 15 persons without government permission.

Van der Byl added it is hoped future British visitors will conform with the laws of the country.

PULLED TO FLOOR
Dr. Bray moved across the speaker's table to help Rowland and someone grabbed him by his hair and pulled him to the floor. Ennals ran around the end of the table to help Rowland.

As Dr. Bray was propelled across the table someone emptied a pitcher of water on Rowland's head. Another man poured his glass of beer over him.

DISARRAY
Not everyone joined in the fray. There were shouts: "Let him alone."

Bray's tie was askew, his hair mussed and his coat pulled part way off. Rowland, too, was in disarray when the fracas ended after a few minutes.

They were hustled quickly by the detective to a private room in the hotel where the meeting had been held.

There were no immediate arrests.

Rowland said he thought it might have been an "accidental incident."

"If the man hadn't grabbed the papers it might not have happened."

The three MPs had gone through nearly two hours of heckling, booing and hip-hip-hoorays for Prime Minister Ian Smith when the rough stuff started.

LITTLE PROGRESS
They had invited Rhodesians to a ballroom of the hotel to attempt to explain their view of the Rhodesian situation and answer questions.

It was difficult to make any progress, however, against the constant hollering. Once, from what impulse it is hard to say, the crowd began singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" while one of the MPs was speaking.

Men shouted constantly, even when Rhodesians were speaking. "You try governing Britain, never mind Rhodesia," one man yelled.

Code Amendments Studied?

Major Changes Could Affect 3000 Prisoners

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says a major change in the division of federal and provincial responsibilities for sentenced persons likely will be made this year.

It says the effect of the amendments contemplated for the Criminal Code will be that: ● The federal government will be responsible for anyone sentenced to more than a year in prison.

● Provincial governments will be in charge of those sentenced to six months or less.

● There will be no sentences between six months and a year to accommodate the new policy.

An estimated 3,000 prisoners who now are in provincial custody will be transferred to federal institutions.

Provincial ministers of reform institutions will be able to proceed without delay on their corrections projects.

Those now sentenced to two years or more serve their time in federal penitentiaries. Those with terms under two years go to provincial institutions.

WITHIN MONTHS

The newspaper says Lawrence Penwell, the solicitor-general, will confer with provincial authorities on ways to expedite the new policy within the next two or three months. It adds there has been no decision on whether

'Medicare Useless To Emotionally Ill'

OTTAWA (CP)—"The great swell of the emotionally and socially distressed who now clog our mental health clinics and our social agencies" will not benefit from medical care insurance, a director of the Canadian Mental Health Association said Wednesday.

Dr. John Griffin, said this is because psychiatrists could not decide who needed medical treatment in connection with emotional illness, and whose problems could be dealt with by ancillary personnel such as social workers and psychologists.

He told the institute on mental health services the problem of financing mental health services arose with the growing trend towards community mental health services. In the past, the planning and administration of services had been a provincial responsibility.

"The spectrum of disability is a very wide one," the Toronto delegate said, "and it is very difficult to establish clear-cut lines separating its different parts. Undoubtedly some disabled people are proper psychiatric patients, some are more suitable for social case work and psychological counselling, and some can respond to a program of discipline and retraining."

British Pottery Goes On Display

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

Due to the gap created by the Christmas and New Year holidays in our winter program of exhibitions at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, and to the almost impossible weather conditions during the last week of December, only the prospect of having new shows on our walls in January has kept our spirits up.

The first completely new one is some British Pottery by the Distinguished Potters, which has been circulated in Canada by the National Gallery of Canada.

When distinguished potters are mentioned, the name of Bernard Leach first comes to mind, as the place of Britain in the ceramic markets of the world in the present century has been maintained through the art of Bernard Leach, now in his 77th year.

His pottery at St. Ives in Cornwall was established on his return from many years of study in Japan under Ogata Kenzan—the sixth in line from the great Kenzan of the 17th century—and has been a Mecca for students and for lovers of modern studio pottery ever since.

At The Gallery

Eventually Bernard Leach was raised to the status of the seventh Kenzan.

When I was in the Art Gallery for my first look at pottery that was being arranged in the showcases, I was disappointed to find that only two pieces of Bernard Leach's had arrived, but many more are expected.

The work of his wife, Janet, is included in this collection. She also studied in Japan and now works with her husband and assists with the management of the Leach Pottery, St. Ives. She is represented in many collections in England, the United States, Holland and Denmark.

Students of the Bernard Leach pottery whose work is included in this exhibition are Richard Batterham, William Marshall, John Reeve (now well established in Canada), Gwyn and Louis Hammen (internationally known potters and teachers), and Lucie Rie (whose pottery relies more upon the experimental character of the use of her immature glazing than upon well established forms).

Immature glazing, which is achieved by checking the fusing of the glaze before it becomes too fluid, can create novel and interesting surfaces, but when merely partly baked the result is unpleasant to touch.

A well thrown "pot" reveals its true texture chiefly through the sense of touch.

The best pots are those whose beauty of form and quality of surface are left unswayed by decoration or by misuse of texture.

This exhibition will continue until Jan. 23.

New Political Era Follows Shastri

From AP-Reuters

NEW DELHI (CP)—India's leaders began preparations for a new political era Wednesday night hours after a sacred fire of Hindu cremation consumed the body of Lal Bahadur Shastri before the eyes of a mourning mass of countrymen.

New Delhi buzzed with reports of political maneuvering, and Shastri's immediate successor as prime minister, Buzarji Lal Nanda, conferred with political advisers on the shape of things to come.

TO MAKE BID?

There were increasing indications Morarji Desai, once finance minister in the Nehru government, was likely to make a strong bid for the leadership.

Indian newspapers saw him as a key figure who might force a contest, in contrast to the election of Shastri by consensus after Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's death in May, 1964.

HOLDS KEY

Kumaraswami Kamaraj, president of the ruling Congress party, who holds a key position in the talks on the selection of a new leader, will do his best to persuade candidates to withdraw if they lack sufficient support, but some commentators believe Desai may refuse.

An ascetic orthodox Hindu who favors prohibition and whose favorite hobby is spinning, Desai is a controversial figure who has twice missed the chance to succeed to the premiership. As Nehru's finance minister, Desai was ranked second in the cabinet until nine months before Nehru's death, when he was persuaded to leave office to do party work.

Indian commentators had suggested this was a device designed to ensure Desai would not automatically step into power in the event of Nehru's death.

OFFER REFUSED

When Shastri formed his cabinet, he invited Desai to join it but the offer was refused because Shastri would not give Desai the No. 2 spot. If he had been given the second post, he would have succeeded on Shastri's death and would today have been prime minister of the caretaker cabinet instead of Nanda.

OTHER POSSIBLE

Others being mentioned as likely candidates are Defence Minister Y. B. Chavan, Food Minister Swadhamaram Subramaniam, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Information minister and Nehru's daughter, and Kamaraj himself.

The Congress party's working committee, a policy-making body, meets Friday to consider the leadership.

It has been suggested in some quarters that Nanda should remain prime minister until elections next year.

'Hostile to Homeland'

Two Soviet Writers Languish in Jail

MOSCOW (AP)—The government acknowledged Wednesday that two arrested writers have been publishing anti-Soviet material in the West under assumed names.

The government newspaper Izvestia said Andrei D. Sinyavsky is "Abram Tertz" and Yuli M. Daniel is "Nikolai Arzhak." Both are 40.

'WEREWOLVES'

Izvestia called the two writers "renegades" and "werewolves" and said their writings "cannot be considered as otherwise than hostile to the homeland."

It was the first official confirmation of the identity of Tertz and Arzhak.

BOOKS CRITICAL

These names have appeared on books published in the West that have been sharply critical of Russian life. Western critics have praised the books.

Sinyavsky is a critic who wrote for the Soviet magazine Novy Mir. Daniel is a translator.

The two writers were ar-

Woman Escapes Injury

A woman had a narrow escape from injury when her car skidded on slippery planks on a small bridge near Sooke Tuesday night.

She was Sharon Gray, Goodrich Road, Sooke. Police said the car smashed through the bridge's guard rails and hung on the broken timbers. Below was 20 feet of water.

Another woman received head injuries in a two-car collision at Oak Bay and Foul Bay Tuesday night.

Lee Matheson, 1940 Fort, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital. She was a passenger in a car driven by James Robinson, 1965 Oak Bay.

Police identified the other driver as Wayne Fairbanks, 1125 Hillside.

City Policemen Seek Pay Boost

A nine per cent pay increase for all ranks is one of the 1966 demands of the Victoria City Police Union.

This would mean an increase of about $48,000 to the city payroll.

Speaking for the union, Constable Lorne Shandley told members of the police commission Wednesday that there might be some "give" in the nine per cent demand with regard to probationary officers, but there would be none with regard to the more senior men.

A first class constable now gets $328 a month.

SEEMS NEW BANK

Reading a brief statement of the position of the commission, Chief Constable J. F. Gregory said that he intended to seek the establishment of a new rank—sergeant-major, disciplinarian.

Union position, said Const. Shandley, was that such a post should be made competitive for all members of the force and a choice made on the basis of examinations in law.

CHIEF BALKS

The chief balked at this, emphasizing that his conception of the job was maintenance of discipline.

Inasmuch as the meeting was a preliminary skirmish between the commission and union representatives, the question was not pursued.

UNION TO OPPOSE

The police commission will also ask abolition of service pay and telephone allowance. These proposals will be opposed by the union, Constable Shandley said.

PAINT LANES

The growing Victoria practice of passing on the right hand side on unmarked streets sparked a survey by the traffic division of the police force.

PAINT LANES

The report, presented Wednesday, proposed that lanes be painted on the following streets: Esquimalt Road west from Harbor Road to Springfield.

Yates Street west from Douglas to Government.

Hillside west from Shelbourne to Cedar Hill Road.

Cook at Bay, left-turn cutoff in both directions and a marked curb lane in both directions.

Infernal Machine Goofed Badly!

BURTON-ON-TRENT, England (AP)—The biggest brewery in this home of British brewing is busily pouring barrels by the thousand into the public drains.

The trouble started with a computer used by Bass's brewery to estimate demand for the Christmas and New Year's trade.

The oracle guessed wrong to the tune of 2,800,000 pints worth £250,000 ($750,000) at bar prices. All has to be poured away.

The brewery for a while denied it was happening. But Wednesday its spokesman said:

"I'm afraid it is absolutely true. Nearly 10,000 casks have to be disposed of."

"Most of the beer was stockpiled from late November so it would mature for the Christmas rush. But it wasn't needed and we decided to get rid of it because some of it might have gone off."

"The error was caused by the group's computer. The clerks who previously forecast the year-end trade were far more accurate."

Magistrate Awaits Resurrection

PORT ELIZABETH (AP)—South African court officials still are waiting for Negro witch doctor Wilson Rodolo to make good his boast that he would "resurrect" a man.

Rodolo, charged with theft by false pretenses, also claimed during his trial in magistrates court here last month that a man would give evidence that he had been dead and had been resurrected.

The court was due to sit again Tuesday but Rodolo did not appear and the case was adjourned to Jan. 28.

Rodolo had promised to bring back a Negro woman's son from the dead but she never saw him or the £20 ($60) she paid him again.

Flames Destroy Station Wagon

VANCOUVER (CP)—A station wagon was destroyed and five cars damaged when a gas pump exploded on a parking lot in downtown Vancouver. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze before it would spread to two 1,000-gallon underground gasoline tanks. The blaze was caused by a short circuit in the gas pump.

Defectors Honored

TAIPEI (AP)—A monument is to be erected in Formosa to the three Chinese Communist sailors who defected to the off-shore island of Matsu, then perished when the airplane carrying them to Formosa was shot down over the Formosa Strait by Chinese Communist MIGs. This was announced by Defense Minister Chiang Ching-kuo.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

If we should get a reasonably dry spell within the next few weeks—and my fingers are crossed as I write this—one job I want to tackle is some repair work on our front lawn, for this is one of those chores which so often gets pushed into the back-ground in the rush of spring sowing and planting. Unless the job is done during the slack season, chances are the lawn goes into the summer with a patchy and moth-eaten appearance.

We have one out-of-the-way corner in our back lawn, which doesn't get much traffic, and of recent years I have been using this bit as a sort of turf nursery. When I get a bad patch out front, I cut and lift a few squares of sod from the backyard, wheel it around to the front and use it to replace the worn or bare bit. The denuded section of the back lawn has a little fresh soil and fertilizer added, plus a sprinkle of grass seed, and is covered with a few tree branches to discourage trespassers. Pretty soon it is back in business.

When thin or worn sod is taken up from the bad patch in the front lawn, it is only common sense to find out just what caused the trouble and put it right. Abnormal winter traffic is one common source of trouble—the milkman and newsboy taking illicit shortcuts while frost is on the grass, for instance.

More often, though, something is wrong with the soil at that particular spot. If grubs of any kind are found in the soil, work in a dressing of aldrin or chlordane dust before the new sod is laid. Probe around a bit with an iron rod or crowbar, too, to see if sheet metal, plaster or other builder's rubbish is buried beneath, for this is a frequent cause of lawn troubles in new homes.

It is always a good idea, when patching a lawn, to take out an inch or two of the old soil and replace it with fresh stuff from some other part of the garden. Use this fresh soil "as is," though, without attempting to enrich it with manure or fertilizer. Too generous treatment would cause the repaired patch to green up more than the rest of the lawn, standing out like a sore thumb.

Never try to reduce a hummock or high spot in the lawn by rolling or beating it, for this will only compact the soil to the point where air and water cannot penetrate to the roots. Instead, cut and lay back a strip of sod over the high spot, remove enough soil to make it level, then replace the turf.

Low spots can be brought up to the surrounding level over a period of time by putting down a thin layer of soil, never more than a half-inch layer at any one time. Allow the grass to grow up through this and become established at the new level before adding more, for a too-thick layer of soil can smother your grass. All this takes time, of course, and personally I would sooner do the job the hard way, taking up a section of sod, adding soil to the required level, then relaying the turf.

It is difficult to do much about drainage in an established lawn—drainage troubles should have been corrected before the lawn was put down. Only too often, though, this work is skimped, and you wind up with sections of the lawn where puddles lie in wet weather, and the moss-moves in while the grass moves out.

Occasionally, in troubles of this sort, I have seen a dramatic improvement effected by taking up a section of sod over the wet spot and digging a deep hole in the ground, 18 inches or deeper, filling it with chert, coarse gravel or other drainage material. Add soil to bring it up to the general level and replace the sod.

How ART BUCHWALD Would Solve Strike

Only Women Essential

NEW YORK—It's probably hindsight, but it seems to me that Mayor John Lindsay's biggest mistake at the beginning of the subway strike was when he appealed to men to stay out of New York City unless they considered themselves essential.

No man could admit to his boss he wasn't essential, and all hell broke loose when everyone rushed into New York at the same time to prove they were needed.

Had Lindsay asked ALL men to stay home during the strike, New York would not be in the economic shape it is today.

It is no secret that the only essential people in New York are women. They are the ones who support the department stores, the hairdressers, the specialty shops, and the restaurants. If they were not coming to town, there would be no need for anyone else to be in the city, as so many department owners have sadly discovered.

But, someone may argue, aren't men needed to run the various businesses in New York City that have nothing to do with retailing or entertainment? The answer is, of course, no.

Most businesses in New York are run by secretaries who know more about what is going on than their bosses. Proof of this is that a boss can be out for a month and nothing will happen, but a secretary can be sick for one day and any business will collapse.

During the strike the secretaries of New York could have easily handled any problems that came up, and without their bosses' interfering. Might have even brought about some much needed reforms in the business world.

We now know there isn't one essential job in New York City that women couldn't handle.

If Lindsay had put an embargo on all men during the strike, women would have rushed to New York and the city might have enjoyed the greatest economic boom in its history. With business thriving, the Transit Workers Union would have had to give in on its demands, and the strike could have been ended in a few days.

The question arises, what would New York City's men have done if they weren't permitted to come in? It would have been quite simple for the mayor to arrange with the New York Giants and the New York Jets to replay old football games on television during the duration of the strike.

No man wants to go to work when he knows there is a football game on TV, and every male New Yorker would have been content to stay at home, particularly if he knew his wife was going into the city.

Some critics might point out that most of the women going into the city would have to drive in, and this could cause tremendous traffic accidents and a great loss to life and limb. But this is not necessarily so.

Women drivers only get into accidents when there are men drivers around. Every woman knows instinctively what every other woman is going to do and, without men trying to outguess them, I believe metropolitan traffic accidents would have gone down.

The only problem, as I see it, is that, if Mayor Lindsay had adopted this drastic plan, many men would suddenly realize they weren't essential at all, and this could cause large scale depression amongst the male population of the city.

This could easily have been alleviated by Mayor Lindsay's replacing all the old Haglitz Harrod films on television.

The final question that must be answered is, if Mayor Lindsay asked all men to stay at home, could he in good conscience go to work himself? The answer to that one is no. But there is nothing to prevent Mrs. Lindsay from working out a subway settlement with the wives of union leaders.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

What Julie Wants--

Julie Andrews, the top money-making actress of 1965, would like to have Christopher Plummer as her leading man when she makes The Story of Gertrude Lawrence in London this summer. They did well together in The Sound of Music, in which I enjoyed Plummer's performance as much as I did Julie's. . . . Whatever Miss Andrews wants today she can have—money, leading man, director and approval of everything.

Claudia Auger, the girl who does the water sequence with James Bond in Thunderball (her bikini floats to the top while they are at the bottom of the ocean), went to the London showing in as low cut a dress in front as you can get without being topless. It was a top-up as to who was more bare in the front department, Claudia or Lays Wild, the current or past wife of Sean Connery. I haven't seen the couple lately and you never know.

David Niven almost didn't make it back to the British set of 12. Instead, he nearly made it to the bottom of a ravine near his home in Gstaad, Switzerland. Driving over some snow that concealed a hole in the mountain, he and his wife were suspended until rescued umpteen hundred feet in the air. I can't imagine a movie industry without the indefatigable David.

Mona Chennery failed to show at the London premiere of Thunderball. Although advertised as appearing, Sean is like Richard Burton. Hates to see himself on the screen—except in secret. Wife Diana (Helo) explained that they had already had a private chowing in Hollywood and didn't want to sit through the movie again! This is amusing because as many other avid James Bond lovers will see each epic as often as they can get in.

Darryl Zanuck had a flying experience that may put him off flying for a while. He was practically half way to London when the plane developed a leak in the fuel tank. It turned around and went back to New York where there was a wait of several hours before heading back to London. "It took me 20 hours to get here," said Darryl, who came to London to see the rough prints of The Blue Max which starred George Peppard, James Mason and Ursula Andress, and Modesty Blaise, from the cartoon character, with Terence Stamp and Monica Vitti.

We Want Too Much

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

It is always easy to delude ourselves into believing that we are heroes.

This is the style of those who choose—but share no responsibility for the decisions. In the comfort of our drawing room it is simple to sit back and redraw the map of the world or to change all political systems.

It is relatively easy to be critical of human conditions and to spawn facile solutions—as long as we are not responsible for living with and standing behind these fateful decisions.

The real test of our faith and courage is determined by our ability to remain responsible for the decisions long after we've made them.

Mature people need to learn how to reconcile the realities of man's stubbornness, adjusting the ethical possibilities to the human situation—always recognizing the imperfection of any given solution.

If only we could learn to live with an imperfect answer, recognizing it for what it is, critical of its wrong, but still not lose faith in the possibility of improving and refining it, we will have learned a major lesson in living.

Too many of us refuse to reconcile ourselves with reality and thus wrongly expect one of two things: either the best or the worst. If we cannot have the best we assume that we can only have the worst.

This approach to life corrupts our faith and weakens our will. When we refuse to choose less than the best because we believe that it is the worst, we will often not choose at all!

A paralysis of human will sets in on those who suggest that one must have all or hope for nothing at all. Too many people around the world are quite prepared to give up their freedom for the sake of some promised Utopia—give up your freedom now, and in just a little while you will get it back, once we set everything right in the world!

This attitude of "all or nothing at all" is one of the most pernicious and destructive obstacles to human freedom.

It is clear that this is precisely what makes man unfree. We cannot have "all"—no man can have all of his dreams, his desires or his hopes fulfilled. (Indeed no man even knows what are his profoundest dreams, desires or hopes.) Once we are told that we must have all or can have none at all, we are willing to settle for almost nothing at all.

Life is a lesson in the value of slow wisdom moving towards larger hopes with little steps. It is difficult to take a big jump without missing something in between.

One teacher taught that the biggest room in the world is the room for improvement. But if we seek perfection, we will not be satisfied with "mere" improvement.

Often we give up before we've begun for a curious reason: We were thinking of the "best" and when we saw that we could not have the "best" everything else looked like the "worst."

Some people don't marry because they never learn this lesson. Some people do not rear their children wisely because they have not learned this lesson. Some democratically-minded people become totalitarian because they have not learned this lesson.

Moral courage is not the peculiar property of those who shout and scream about what must be done. It belongs rather to those who are willing to do what can be done, and knowing what can be done, refuse merely to talk about it. They proceed to do it.

Slowly, perhaps, but surely, at least.

East German Minister Fired

BERLIN (UPI) — The East German government announced Wednesday it had fired Minister of Culture Hans Bentsen for "allowing grave mistakes."

The government announcement did not explain what mistakes the 39-year-old East-sien had made or how he had failed in his duties. It said he had been replaced by Klaus Gyal, 53, who has headed an East German publishing house for the past nine years. There was no news concerning Bentsen's fate.

Clark Rites Friday

Retired Doctor David Alexander Clark, 1020 Burnside Road, died here Tuesday. He was 85.

Dr. Clark was formerly of New Westminster, B.C.

During the First World War he served with the 12th Field Ambulance Corps.

He is survived by the widow, Jessie; one daughter, Mrs. J. M. (Kathleen) MacKinlay, and three grandsons in Kamloops.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Friday in Haywards Funeral Chapel.

down, and it's due to the weather, according to Christmas Seal Society president R. A. Barnard.

Mr. Barnard blamed snow in the Fraser Valley for a $9,000 drop in contributions in the Vancouver-Lower Fraser Valley area.

Only $275,000 of the B.C. objective of $325,000 has been collected.

However, in Victoria, returns are up $1,000 over last year's total. The city group has collected $28,714 so far and hopes contributions will reach $30,000 before the Jan. 31 campaign closes.

From jazz to politics in three days is the program lined up by the University of Victoria Student Activities Council.

At 12:30 p.m. Friday, the Mitchell Ruff Jazz Trio from New York City will entertain students at the Gordon Head Campus gymnasium. Admission is 50 cents.

Monday's it's Highways Minister Gagliardi's turn. He goes on stage at 12:30 p.m., and will speak on the Lighter Side of Politics, at Room 108, the Elliott Building, Gordon Head campus.

Volunteer drivers are still needed to aid the blind of Greater Victoria on weekly outings.

Cecil Hinchcliffe, supervisor of services to the blind, said Wednesday that the volunteer work is needed to get members of the White Cane Club to Wednesday meetings at the Canada dian National Institute for the Blind centre at 1609 Blanshard.

A tender of $113,473 to build a classroom block and auditorium at Fairburn Elementary School has been accepted by Greater Victoria School Board.

Health and Welfare Minister Martin gave his support Wednesday to the forthcoming Marching Mothers' fund drive on behalf of B.C.'s disabled.

The one-day blitz will be held Jan. 31, and seeks $275,000.

Nurse Won MBE

A woman who won the MBE in recognition of her services as a public health nurse in Winnipeg and Brandon, Man. died Tuesday.

Miss Mary Gennell had been a resident of Victoria for the past 18 years.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Bros. funeral chapel at 3 p.m. Friday.

Jack Webster Burns Guest

The annual Burns dinner, concert and ball sponsored by the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society will be held at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 22 in Holyrood House.

Guest speaker will be Jack Webster.

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the big undecided questions about medical care insurance is how many provinces must have plans operating for the federal government to carry out its offer to pay half the costs.

Health Minister MacEachen, still learning the ropes of the portfolio he took over at Christmas, says this is one major aspect of medical care insurance to which he now is giving study.

NEEDS HALF

If the precedent of the hospital insurance program is followed, it will require half the provinces with at least half the nation's population.

Mr. MacEachen says he is aware of this precedent but he does not necessarily indicate it will be followed with respect to medical care insurance.

PRESS FORWARD

He maintains he intends to press forward on medical care insurance, aiming at a national program by July 1, 1967—the target date set when Ottawa made its offer last summer.

At that time, it was estimated such a program would cost about $600,000,000 annually of which the federal government would be paying $300,000,000. However, the figure was a rough estimate and probably too low.

REJECTS IDEA

Mr. MacEachen rejects the idea that medical care insurance may be slowed by the huge outlays of money to expand education requested of the federal government by the Economic Council of Canada and the universities.

"We haven't changed our timing on medicare," he says. "Undoubtedly education is an important priority but the problems involved in the field of education were fairly well known when our policy on medicare was made known."

NET CONDITIONS

The federal offer of half the costs was conditional on provincial medical care programs meeting four basic conditions.

Provincial plans would have to pay benefits which would be portable from one province to another. Benefits would have to cover all the services rendered by a doctor with minor exceptions. Coverage would have to be extended to 85 per cent of the population of a province within three years of the start of the plan.

Caution Urged By Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul warned Roman Catholic theologians Wednesday against excessively free interpretations of Vatican ecumenical council decrees. Speaking at his weekly general audience, the Pope said:

"The council . . . does not allow that there enter in the philosophical, theological and scriptural school of the church the arbitrariness, uncertainty, servility and desolation that characterize so many forms of modern religious thinking when it is deprived of the help of ecclesiastical teaching . . . Care must be taken."

The pontiff said the 16 council documents are only part of the entire church doctrine and do not modify its essentials.

"The teachings of the council do not constitute an organic and complete system of Catholic doctrine. This is much more ample, and it is not questioned by the council or substantially modified."

Commitment Sought

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada has asked for a "firm commitment" from Iran on what that country intends to do with 90 Canadian-made jets it wants to buy from West Germany, sources said Wednesday.

Under the original sale contract of the Sabre-jets by Canada to Germany the West Germans agreed to "consult" Canada before selling them to any other country.

WANTS TO KNOW

Canada was consulted, but before agreeing to the sale this country wants to know definitely what Iran intends to use the jet fighters for and is seeking assurances they won't be sold

Cheque Artist Faces Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — George McLaughlin, 33, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to 78 counts of false pretenses and was remanded to Jan. 19 for sentence. McLaughlin said that over a two month period he passed worthless cheques to obtain goods and cash with a total value of $3,000.

again by Iran to some Communist nation.

SECOND TIME

Canada's objection to any sale is not binding on West Germany, but in the past it has respected Canadian wishes. Canada protested a similar German plan some time ago to sell Canadian-made jets to Portugal and they sale fell through.

Canada is touchy about where its military hardware ends up and is particularly anxious made-in-Canada weapons don't appear on the Communist side of the world flareups.

EXCLUSIVE ARMS

This country has trade agreements with Communist countries—including China—but they meticulously exclude anything that could be used in warfare.

Canada maintains a neutral position in Viet Nam and with India and Poland is a member of the International Control Commission there.

It also prides itself in its peace-keeping role in other trouble-spots such as Cyprus and the Middle East and takes every step to ensure the image isn't shattered by allowing military equipment to get into the wrong hands.

Thetis Roads Kept Open

THETIS ISLAND — Despite heavy snow that taxed the resources of the Department of Highways crews here, roads were kept open by an around-the-clock effort.

Limited equipment owned by the department was supplemented with hired tractors and bulldozers.

R. Ringma, foreman of the department here, said, "By the evening of Dec. 28 we had all roads open for traffic."

He added that the condition of island roads was not a factor in getting power restored during the six-day blackout.

Johnson on Viet Nam: U.S. Will Stay until aggression has stopped

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Wednesday night he will pursue peace but the United States will stay in Viet Nam "until aggression has stopped." He backed this pledge with a record $112-800,000,000 budget that did not call for a general tax boost. Johnson reported to Congress in person and to the people of the United States by radio and television on the state of the home front and on efforts to bring about peace talks in Viet Nam. He said the peace campaign so far has produced "no response to prove either success or failure."

Johnson sounded no threats or ultimatums, but he said "we do not intend to abandon Asia to conquest."

At the end of his lengthy address, Johnson said "I am hopeful, and I will try, to end this battle and return our sons to their families."

Johnson did not say how long the United States might continue its pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam. Viet Nam was the overriding item of interest and attention in this year's State-of-the-Union address.

Johnson dealt also with the domestic scene and said that the war in Viet Nam must not halt the drive towards what he calls "the Great Society."

In the new budget, however, the increased spending will go largely towards military purposes. Officials said the defence budget will climb to $38,000-000,000 in the next fiscal year starting July 1, from about $34,400,000,000 this year. The non-military budget would increase by only $600,000,000. Johnson said he will not hesitate to ask for more appropriations and revenues "if the necessities of Viet Nam require it."

Johnson set forth a 10-point domestic program and said: "I believe we can continue"

South Backs Truce

SAIGON (Reuters)—The South Vietnamese armed forces will observe a three-day truce during the lunar new year holiday starting next week, the official government press agency reported today. The agency said details are still under study and there may be no official announcement about it.

The Viet Cong have already proposed a ceasefire for four days beginning at midnight Thursday, Jan. 20.

U.S., Russia 'Using' Shastri Rites

HONG KONG (Reuters)—A Communist newspaper claimed Wednesday that the United States and the Soviet Union were using the funeral of Indian Prime Minister Shastri to develop backstage contacts on Viet Nam. (See also Page 28.)

The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao noted that U.S. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin were represented at the ceremony in New Delhi Wednesday.

Peking Stop Indicated For Shelepin

BELGRADE (AP)—Soviet trouble-shooter Alexander Shelepin will talk with the Chinese on a 24-hour stopover in Peking en route home from Hanoi, the official Yugoslav news agency said Wednesday night.

Quoting sources in Peking, the Tanjug agency's correspondent said "the Soviet delegation will receive semi-official treatment and have talks on a corresponding level."

Shelepin is due to leave Hanoi today. He has been in the North Vietnamese capital since Jan. 7, discussing the Viet Nam war. He made a brief stop in Peking en route to Hanoi.

Reporting his imminent departure, Moscow radio made no mention of a stay in Peking.

But No Thanks, Says Strachan

Premier Babysits Yale While Hartley Appeals

Premier Bennett has appointed himself as watchdog during the coming session for the interests of Yale constituency whose New Democrat member was unseated by a court ruling this week.

William Hartley was ousted Tuesday by a Supreme Court ruling.

Yale's seat is one of two that will be vacant during the session. The North Okanagan seat was vacated by the recent death of Socred member George McLeod.

Premier Bennett said that because these two constituencies will be unrepresented in the House he will pay special attention to representations which are made to the government from these areas.

'SPECIAL WATCHDOG'

"The premier will be a special watchdog," he said. But Opposition members said, no thanks, they would prefer to see Mr. Hartley back in the seat which he has held for two sessions since the controversial election case began.

Vancouver lawyer Gordon Dowling, an NDP (-) MLA who represented Hartley in the case, said he will file an appeal against the decision which was brought down in the Supreme Court Tuesday by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

BOTH CLEARED

Both Mr. Hartley and Social Credit candidate Irvine Corbett, who had held the seat since 1952, were cleared of any involvement when Mr. Justice Ruttan handed down his decision.

In nullifying the 1963 election, Judge Ruttan said he had found at least nine irregularities which were more than enough to offset Hartley's six-vote win over Corbett.

VOTERS BLAMED

Blame for these irregularities was attached to the returning officers and voters of the Yale constituency.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged Wednesday that Corbett had waited for two years before starting court action because the Socreds were afraid provincial Conservative leader Davie Fulton might split the vote and allow the NDP to walk into office.

'CHECK BACK'

"You check back—Fulton said after the 1953 election that he would contest any and all by-elections," said Mr. Strachan. "And as long as that situation existed, they (Socreds) were not prepared to push for a by-election."

The NDP leader said that once Mr. Fulton had again committed himself to federal politics and was "safely away from the provincial political scene," the Socreds started to push their case in the courts.

'CROOKED POLITICS'

"This is the political connivance I was talking about. It's crooked politics," said Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Dowling said he had advised Mr. Hartley not to try to take his seat in the House this session because it would be illegal until such time as the Supreme Court decision is set aside by the B.C. Appeal Court.

But Mr. Strachan said that because legal procedures are still pending he could see no

Pearson Plan Wins at Lagos

LAGOS (CP)—Commonwealth leaders, acting on a suggestion by Prime Minister Pearson, set up a watchdog committee Wednesday to check on results of economic sanctions against Rhodesia. They agreed to meet again in July if the Rhodesian rebellion was not ended.

They decided not to use force now against the white-minority government in Rhodesia, but said in a communique issued at the end of the Commonwealth conference in Nigeria, they agreed use of force "could not be precluded if this proved necessary to restore law and order."

The meeting of 20 Commonwealth countries set up the watchdog committee to assess the effectiveness of economic sanctions against Rhodesia, to advise Commonwealth governments on possible action by them or by the United Nations, and to provide help for Zambia, Rhodesia's northern neighbor.

Conference sources described Pearson as confident the sanctions will work. He also proposed a committee to consider means of Commonwealth co-operation in planning Rhodesia's future, particularly by training people for jobs. The communique indicated that a committee of this kind will be set up also, to work in conjunction with the Commonwealth Secretariat in London.

The watchdog committee, whose makeup has not been disclosed, will sit in London.

ONLY TWO

One conference source said that while there was a good deal of talk about aid to Zambia, it seemed clear to many delegates that the only countries that will be able to provide meaningful aid are the two already on the scene, Britain and Canada.

The communique said the Commonwealth leaders affirmed their determination "that the rebellion must be brought to an end."

NOT SWAYED

It made clear that the conference had not been swayed by the demands of some of its most militant members for immediate military and air action to bring down the Rhodesian government.

Pearson told the conference additional measures against Rhodesia should be considered, unless there are indications "within a matter of weeks" that existing sanctions are taking effect.

MUST END

The Commonwealth leaders affirmed their determination "that the rebellion must be brought to an end," the communique said.

Prime Minister Pearson of Canada told the conference addi-

Rio Death Toll Continues Climb

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—The list of dead or missing climbed to more than 700 Wednesday night as heavy rains pounded the Greater Rio area for the third consecutive day. Police said 232 bodies had been recovered from mud and debris by late Wednesday in Rio and the suburbs of Niteroi and Petropolis. Another 430 persons were officially listed as missing.

2,000 TREATED

In Rio alone, police said, 2,000 persons had been treated for injuries at first aid stations while 700 others were in hospital.

Nearly 20,000 were reported homeless in the "City of the Sun," suffering from the worst recorded downpour in its 401-year history.

TORRENTS OF WATER

Most of the deaths were caused by mudslides precipitated by torrents of water pouring down the steep hillsides surrounding Rio.

The fire department said houses, mostly slum dwellings, were collapsing at the rate of 30 an hour. The weather bureau reported 14 inches of rain since Monday afternoon and predicted another 24 hours of downpour before conditions improve.

Invitation to Citizens

Budget Kibitzing A Sharp Idea

OTTAWA (UPI)—Any ideas on what Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp should do with his budget?

Now's your chance.

He has invited representations from taxpayers or associations on the budget.

Mr. Sharp wants any ideas in writing before Feb. 12. He said he will even try to squeeze in time for a conference with the people behind some of the more important budget briefs sent him.

The invitation for ideas is traditional and all are taken into consideration in the preparation of the budget.

Presentation of the budget is not expected until March.

Mr. Sharp has said the report of the Royal Commission on Taxation will not be presented before March.

Sir John A's Home Soon Parking Lot

TORONTO (CP)—Sir John A. Macdonald's former city home will soon become a parking lot.

The Ontario Conservative party has apparently abandoned their efforts to preserve the home from demolition. A party member said Wednesday they last lost interest in trying to buy the 156-year-old Samuel Trees home where Sir John lived for a year in 1874.

B.C. Sightings Whet Official Curiosity

Either It Is, Oryx, Not

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Persistent reports of sightings of an African type of antelope in the frigid northwestern tip of British Columbia have whetted the curiosity of provincial game officials.

The thing has been sighted from the Stikins River through the Atlin Lake region near the top of the Alaska Panhandle.

It has been described by eyewitnesses as an African oryx, an animal which is sand-colored and has horns curving back from its head toward its haunches.

But fish and game branch information officer Bill Ward said Wednesday, "It is impossible for this species to be there."

"There is not one within

5,000 miles of there, and if they were introduced they could not live there—it is not the right terrain for them and the winters are too tough."

Game officials say there may be an animal which was mistaken for the oryx, but what it can be is anybody's guess.

"This creature is like the Sasquatch—B.C.'s version of the abominable snowman of the Himalayas—in that its existence has never been proved and its species has not been identified.

"It has been popping up over the past years, much the same as the Sasquatch or Ogopogo type of thing. It is strictly a fanciful thing, with no shred of evidence—except that it is reported by people who sound reasonable," said Mr. Ward.

Oryx

'Oryx' Sighted in North?

Mr. Robinson said the unusual animal in the northwest is probably some species of goat which has long horns.

There is an area called the Spatzizi Plateau just south of the Stikine River, and Spatzizi is an Indian word which means "land of the red goat," he said.

Oxidation of iron ore in this area gives off a substance which is bright red in color and "goats are great for rolling in this stuff," said Mr. Robinson.

Bennett Babysits Yale

Another unusual case was that of Archibald MacDonald who won the Lillooet riding in 1904, only to be disqualified because he had inadvertently continued to work for the provincial

But the House took pity and passed a special act which provided that Mr. MacDonald could represent Lilboost during the remainder of the session.

The session was followed by a byelection in which Mr. MacDonald legally won back the seat.

Old Wives' Tales Just Stupid; Few Problems In Pregnancies

or (b) laugh her out of it; or (c) be plain spoken: "But my doctor told me he had heard that story, and there was absolutely no truth to it. How did you ever swallow such nonsense?"

Dear Dr. Meiner: What effect would a considerable number of X-rays (taken before the third month of pregnancy) have on the baby? X-rays such as teeth, or other parts of the body, like arms or legs.—MRS. E.

Doubtless no effect. X-rays of the teeth or arms or legs don't reach the baby anyway. But when other X-rays are required the slight danger, if any, of exposing the baby is many times overbalanced by the mother's urgent needs.

MRS. M. O. "Encephalalgia" means pain in the head. A "lumbur puncture" means a puncture (a very tiny one) in the lower part of the spine, to get a sample of fluids. This is an extremely useful and important procedure.

Rockefeller Backs Lindsay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller flew to New York City from Albany Wednesday "to take whatever steps necessary" to help Mayor John V. Lindsay settle the 12-day-old transit strike.

Rockefeller reminded newsmen that one of his powers is that of calling out the national guard, but he said he feared this might result in a general strike in support of the Transport Workers Union.

"I don't think the people are looking for a general strike," he said.

ALL HE CAN
Rockefeller said he would continue to support Lindsay and would do anything the mayor asked "as long as I feel he hopefully may find a solution to this situation."

The governor's statement was made shortly after Lindsay ordered his mediation panel to recommend terms for settlement of the subway-bus shutdown in spite of rejection of the plan by the union and the city's transit authority. Lindsay also called the city's religious leaders to city hall for a conference.

LATE DELIVERY
Lindsay received the report mediators' recommendations in writing by 3 p.m., but they were more than 90 minutes late in delivering them to him.

Lindsay had asked for the end talk with the mediators at length at city hall but said he would not make public at this time the contents of the report. The mediators then returned to the Americana Hotel for further meetings with the disputants.

Meanwhile, the Citizens' Committee for Public Safety published an advertisement in Thursday's newspapers calling for an

Board Rejects Removal

Non-teaching employees of Public School Board have applied for removal of bargaining representation by the Langford and Public School Board Employees' Federation Union, Local 159.

E.C. Labor Relations Board, however, rejected the application after hearing submissions by employees and the trade union.

It was not satisfied the trade union had agreed to represent the employees, it said.

Strippers Battle Bare-rBeasted Dancers

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (Reuters) — A troupe of African Negro girls, who dance bare-breasted on stage, fought a pitched battle with six Australian strippers in a main street Wednesday night.

Passers-by looked on, as the girls struggled in a flurry of beautiful arms and shapely legs.

The bare-toppers—known as the Bare Top Go-Go Girls—won the fight. The Australian strippers retreated and the African girls staged a victory dance—with their clothes on.

It all started after a row between the visiting African dancers and the Sydney Amalgamated Strippers' Union.

The African girls are currently appearing at the vast Sydney Stadium.

The performers are mainly from South Africa say advertisements. See the Python Matting Dance . . . Hot . . . Stark . . . Daring.

But six of Sydney's best known strippers—all union members—started picketing the African show because, they say, the African girls are interfering with their livelihood.

Indonesian Students Protest Mammoth Cost Increases

JAKARTA (UPI) — Indonesian university students Wednesday staged street demonstrations for the fourth consecutive day to protest the government's economic policy.

A student group which claims a membership of more than 10,000 protested, then announced its members would boycott classes until recent government price increases on gasoline, kerosene, postal rates, train fares and other public utilities are retracted.

The increases were enacted in an attempt to stabilize the sprawling nation's faltering economy.

The government action has triggered signs of economic panic in stores and food markets in Jakarta during the past week. Kerosene, sugar and other household commodities began to disappear from store shelves.

Rice selling for 2,800 rupiahs per litre on Jan. 6 was up to 3,500 Jan. 7, 3,800 Jan. 8, 4,000 Jan. 9, 4,200 Jan. 10 and 5,000 Wednesday.

Beef selling for 2,000 rupiahs a pound on Dec. 14 doubled in price within the next three days, reached 15,000 rupiahs before New Year's Day and remains about that high. Similar increases came on eggs, fish and cooking oil.

In the case of gasoline, which was cheaper than water at the time of the abortive Oct. 1 communist coup, the price rose 25,000 per cent in two giant price boosts in November and January.

Inevitably, the value of the rupiah in relation to the dollar depreciated spectacularly. The dollar was said to have hit 60,000 rupiahs, more than double the level at the new year and treble what it was before introduction of a new currency last month.

The government price increases increased the cost of transport and distribution and the overall increases were only partially offset by a 500 per cent increase in government wages.

Star In Hospital With Hepatitis

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Walter Matthau, star of the Broadway hit The Odd Couple, is under treatment for hepatitis at Midway Hospital, it was disclosed here.

Matthau, 42, here to appear in the film, The Fortune Cookie, starring Jack Lemmon, was hospitalized Sunday night and the illness was diagnosed late Monday, a spokesman said.

The actor's physician said Matthau was in "quite satisfactory" condition and that he would remain in the hospital about three weeks.

Billy Wilder, producer-director of The Fortune Cookie, said there was no plan to replace Matthau in the film and that he would continue to shoot scenes not involving the actor for the next several weeks until he could return to work.

Matthau is on a leave of absence from his role in The Odd Couple, and had expected to return to it in March.

Anthems Cut From Concerts

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra, which used to play both the Queen and O Canada as concert-openers.

Audiences have been told by conductor Victor Feldbrill the trend is away from anthems at concerts and such unless there is a national disaster or royalty is present.

The symphony's decision, which went into effect three concerts ago, has prompted one phone-in protest and at least two complaining letters to the editor.

"The custom of not playing the anthems before a concert is prevalent now," Mr. Feldbrill said Wednesday.

"Even in England the anthems are not played."

Kierans Apologizes To U.S. For Nasty Note

QUEBEC (CP) — Eric Kierans Wednesday sent a second letter to the United States Commerce Department saying he should not have written the first.

There was no mention in Mr. Kierans' new letter of any repudiation of the contents of the first, Jan. 4, signed by him as Quebec's acting minister of revenue.

WROTE TO FOWLER
Mr. Kierans wrote Wednesday to U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler—his second to that official as well.

Its contents were not disclosed. Neither were those of the first message to Mr. Fowler, believed to have dealt with the effect on Quebec of U.S. efforts to curb investment in foreign countries by the subsidiaries of U.S. companies.

WARNED U.S.
Mr. Kierans' first letter to Commerce Secretary John T. Connor said U.S. efforts to improve that country's balance of payments would hurt Quebec and that the province would have to act accordingly.

Mr. Kierans told Mr. Connor he agreed with Premier Lesage that he should not have sent the first letter.

INCIDENT 'CLOSED'
Premier Lesage who announced the new letters at a press conference said the incident now is closed.

Mr. Kierans holds the regular post of health minister in the provincial cabinet.

Mr. Kierans signed his new letter to the commerce secretary in his capacity as health minister.

RESUMES DUTIES
Richard Hyde, the regular minister of revenue who had been absent at the time of the Jan. 4 letter, resumed his duties this week.

Mr. Pearson Friday took exception to what he called the Jan. 4 letter's infringement of federal government rights in the field of foreign affairs.

A Wedding They'll Remember

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — No one appeared to mind the snow that clung to the bride's veil or the chill 16 degrees and snow squalls.

On wind-swept Ambassador Bridge, linking Windsor and

Detroit across the International border, Lena Calcagno, 23, was married Wednesday afternoon to Mario Sciacca, 27.

The ceremony was brief—and in Spanish.

The couple, born in Italy, live in Windsor, but the judge, Recorder's Court Judge Vincent J. Brennan, is from Detroit.

The bride had been granted a Mexican divorce, not recognized in Canada after the breakup of her previous marriage, and a U.S. marriage had therefore been sought. They chose the bridge as their altar and—because of the bride's associations with Mexico, the service was in Spanish.

Silent Seven Hours

Pirate Pop Radio Adrift

CLACTON, England (UPI) — A converted American naval minesweeper that is now a pirate pop radio station broadcast from just outside the three-mile limit marking British territorial waters. The ship was blown just inside the limit by the gale and so stayed off the air until it was back in position.

The radio ship has frequently broken into the news since it started transmission in December, 1964. In April last year its tender rescued an American airman who had bailed out from his air force jet. In August police were called to investigate reports that Radio London was going to be sabotaged. In September a lifeboat went out and rescued its Dutch skipper, who needed an appendix operation. On Christmas Eve police went aboard and removed a man who had gone berserk.

Last month Radio London chief Philip Birch, 38, a former advertising executive, said he was ready to fight any government attempt to get the radio off the air.

"We have taken legal advice and believe we are operating legally, but if it should be made an offence for British firms to broadcast from Radio London, then he would still exist with advertising from American and other international firms," he said.

Commission Fix Convicts Party Worker

QUEBEC (CP)—Gerald Martineau, 63, a member of the Quebec legislative council and former treasurer of the Union Nationale party, was sentenced Wednesday to 30 days and fined $49,000 for influence-peddling.

Judge Paul Baillargeon convicted Mr. Martineau under Section 102 of the Criminal Code.

FIXED COMMISSIONS

He was charged with arranging commissions for Union Nationale friends or party supporters on Quebec government purchases.

Mr. Martineau will serve four

months more if he defaults payment of the fine. An appeal will be made.

Mr. Martineau is president of Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League and owner of a typewriter company.

REQUEST GRANTED

The court granted his request for a one-month period in which to pay the fine.

Mr. Martineau was convicted on 13 charges of influence-peddling in connection with sales to the former Union Nationale government by Charles Cusson Ltd., and Brandram-Henderson Ltd.

CHARGES BROUGHT

The charges were brought after a royal commission, established by the Liberal government of Premier Jean Lesage, investigated purchasing practices of the Union Nationale administration between July 1, 1955, and June 30, 1960.

ACQUITTAL QUASHED

He had been acquitted of the 11 charges in Quebec Superior Court, but the Quebec Court of Appeal quashed the acquittal and ordered a new trial. The Supreme Court upheld the decision of the Appeal Court.

At no time has there been any suggestion Mr. Martineau derived personal profit from the alleged system of unearned commissions on which the cases are based.

$3,000 FINE

Judge Baillargeon sentenced Mr. Martineau Wednesday to a fine of $3,000 and five consecutive days in jail on each of eight charges connected with sales by the Charles Cusson Ltd.

The remaining charges were connected with sales by Brandram-Henderson Ltd. Mr. Martineau was sentenced to a $3,000 fine on each of these charges and to 10 consecutive days in prison on each charge.

NOTHING LOST

On the first eight charges, the province had not lost any money from payment of the unearned commissions, said the judge.

But in the case of the remaining five charges, the province had lost money because the price Brandram-Henderson charged for paint was increased to provide for payment of the commissions.

COURT RULED

The judge said the Supreme Court of Canada ruled unanimously Dec. 14 a member of the legislative council—Quebec's upper house—is a public official within the meaning of Section 102 of the Criminal Code.

The trial of Mr. Martineau on the 13 charges was held more than a year ago. The judge postponed judgment until Wednesday so he would know the outcome of appeals by Mr. Martineau.

Mr. Martineau was released on $1,000 cash bail.

On Abortionist

Prison Door Slams Shut

SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIF. (L.A.T.)—Convicted abortionist Robert Spears, once a suspect in the bombing of an airliner that killed 42 persons, found today that the revolving door out of prison has been slammed shut.

The 70-year-old self-styled "doctor," whose 28 arrests span nearly half a century, was refused parole by the California adult authority because he is not "sufficiently rehabilitated."

Spears, now at the California Men's Colony in San Luis Obispo, started serving a five-year sentence in 1963 on the same day he wound up a 3½-year federal term for driving a stolen car over state lines.

The car belonged to a former prison mate of Spears whom he was suspected of tricking into taking his seat on a flight from Tampa to New Orleans in a plot to collect $10,000 insurance.

The plane crashed in the Gulf of Mexico and the FBI tried but failed to prove Spears had sent William Taylor aboard with a bomb. The abortion charges were pending in Los Angeles when Spears was arrested in Arizona with Taylor's car.

Secretary
Of Fund
Resigns

NANAIMO—Executive secretary of the United Appeal here, Stuart Fark, resigned Wednesday afternoon. He has held the post for the past four years and has been responsible for organizational details of the fund drive.

"I am a firm supporter of United Appeal and believe completely in this work, but due to the growth of both my accounting practice and the United Appeal movement, I find that it is necessary for me to devote my full time to my practice," Mr. Fark said.

LAUDS DIRECTORS

"I would like to congratulate the present directors of the United Appeal for their untiring efforts, and for their success in the recent campaign by exceeding all past goals," he said.

Ralph Hutchinson, United Appeal president, expressed his regret at losing Mr. Fark's services.

APPRECIATE EFFORTS

"We of the United Appeal know the time and energy Mr. Fark has generously given, and we appreciate all he has done for our cause," Mr. Hutchinson said.

"However, we do understand his position and accept his decision with sincere regret."

OFFICES NEEDED

The United Appeal will also have to look for new office space, Mr. Hutchinson said, because the present offices are in Mr. Fark's premises on Commercial Street.

Feb. 17 at the Shoreline Hotel has been set for the annual meeting when new officers will be elected.

THREE-YEAR TERM

Ralph Hutchinson is precluded from sitting on the board another term because the constitution only permits a three-year stay.

He said he would probably assume some ex-officio position as past president.

The appeal collected $63,500 in the campaign just ended, $4,000 short of its 1965 target.

City council has been asked to help make up the difference but so far no decision has been made.

Play Entries
At Duncan
Due Feb. 7

DUNCAN—The 17th Cowichan School Drama Festival will be held from Feb. 14 to 19, and the entry deadline is Feb. 7, said organizer Neil Campbell.

In the past years entries from public and private schools within the Cowichan area ranged from 15 to 21.

Awards will be made in the junior and senior sections for best actor and actress and best supporting actor and actress.

Mr. Campbell said this year again a number of optional awards will be available to be presented by the adjudicator for best team work, best cast, best set and as a first this year, for best lighting.

Bids Likely
In Spring

NANAIMO (CP)—Tenders will be called in late spring for a $750,000 addition to the Vocational Training School here.

Plans call for addition of a third floor to the present building, construction of a 34-bed dormitory for girls and construction of a shop to accommodate new courses.

Education Officials Need to See School

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN—Provincial government education officials would be well advised to pay a visit to the Arcadian School for retarded children at Duncan.

At the last Cowichan school board meeting a week ago trustees here were advised in a letter from the B.C. School Trustees Association that the deputy minister and his staff are not eager for the transportation to pay part of the transportation cost for retarded children.

The letter from the association stated "they (the department officials) noted that many retarded children are quite capable of walking to bus stops and that the walk limits for elementary children are reasonable as applied to them."

Retarded Children Able 'To Walk to Bus Stops'

That was the answer from the officials who obviously don't have all the answers correct.

At last year's convention of the BCSTA, a resolution of the BCSTA, a resolution asked to put transportation for retarded children on a shareable basis.

It passed then and was passed on to the department but the letter to the board from the association concludes, "In any case, further indications of the department's reaction will be available when legislative changes or alterations in regulations are brought forward."

That does not mean the remaining four or five that matter the 15 children cannot walk.

The four students who use regular school buses must be taken to the bus stops by taxi.

The other 11 use the taxi between the school and their homes.

Principal of the Arcadian School Mrs. A. E. Boyle has considerable experience and an understanding of retarded children because she has been teaching them since 1959, six years before the Cowichan school board took over the school last September.

She said none of the 15 pupils should walk long distances unattended.

Mrs. Boyle said, "I think it would be very risky."

"If they have to walk by themselves I would be very worried."

Chairman of the Cowichan school board Will Dobson said, "The children certainly will not suffer for lack of transportation money, but we shall try to convince the provincial government that transportation for the retarded children should be a shareable expense."

The Cowichan school board at tonight's meeting probably will receive a more detailed report from its management committee. Before the Cowichan school district took over the Arcadian School it was operated by the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children.

Mrs. Boyle said, "It took a long time for some people to realize that a retarded child is not something to be ashamed of."

The annual meeting of the B.C. Association will be held in Nanaimo in May and the Courtenay chapter will be responsible for making delegate folders and also for 350 favors.

EQUIPMENT
Several items for classroom equipment and teachers aids received authorization for purchase. The general public have been asked to help in securing a follow-up cot for use at the day school. Anyone having such a cot they wish to donate may contact Leo Ageson at 338-8185 or Mrs. R. McKellar at 336-2486.

Mrs. Lil Lefcoe gave an interesting talk on the work of the adult group. The meeting decided to promote and expand where possible this phase of their work in the coming year.

Trustee's Election Invalidated

COURTENAY — Trustees of School District 71 have decided to bring educational television into focus through a special committee.

On the recommendation of district superintendent C. E. Ritchie, two board members, Dr. Dennis Bullen and Betty Moore will form an investigating committee to include teachers, representatives of B.C. Telephone Co. and allied agencies.

The survey will cover one year and a report presented to the board with the findings of the committee.

Acting on a further recommendation from Mr. Ritchie the B.C. Research Council was endorsed in principle. The organization spearheaded by UBC is a voluntary one and works on donations received from such bodies as school boards.

The council is the only body in B.C. which conducts research into education. "Research is one of our most urgent activities," Mr. Ritchie told trustees.

The actual amount to be placed in the budget as a donation will be determined later.

Port Alberni

Expert to Aid Labor
With Pollution Brief

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Weather may have superseded pollution as the chief conversation topic, but it is far from forgotten.

At the Alberni and District Labor Council meeting Tuesday night, it was learned specialized help is coming to aid in preparation of the council's brief to the provincial government.

GATHERING DATA
Just back from a visit to B.C. federation of labor headquarters in Vancouver, Maurice Corbett had heartening news for the Alberni committee which has been gathering material for many months concerning pollution problems and control all over the world.

"In the next two or three weeks, we are going to borrow the research director from the B.C. Federation of Labor to help us prepare our brief in a professional manner," Mr. Corbett said.

BEST BRAINS

"The federation's research bureau has some of the best brains in the province," Mr. Corbett said. "They have just finished presenting a brief on air and water pollution in general to the provincial government. But the federation agrees that we should prepare another brief dealing specifically with the Alberni Valley's problems, which we feel are the worst in the province."

Collection of material, study and research have been going on for many months at the local level, by a committee headed by chairman Archie Cardinal.

NEVER LET UP

"Perhaps progress has seemed slow to come," labor council president Dan Connell commented, "but work on this project has never let up for a minute."

"We feel it is essential to untangle fact from fiction, and make sure we have a brief that cannot be shot down for lack of sound technical background."

LITTLE EMOTIONAL

"Here in the valley, where pollution is such a nuisance, perhaps we end to get a little emotional on the subject."

"Outsiders, in government offices, are going to be interested only in hard, cold facts. We would be doing a dis-service to the people of the valley if we failed to present a well-planned, fully-authenticated brief the first time round. Such an important problem is well worth the extra effort."

Information collected at federation headquarters in Vancouver will be added to the stockpile of information gathered by the local labor council for use of the research director and the local pollution committee.

The work of the B.C. Federation's research council is maintained from the per capita fees paid by the various unions within the federation, officials explained, and is not to be confused with the government subsidized B.C. Research Council.

NANAIMO — An irregularity has invalidated the election of Dr. Sven Jensen to the board of school trustees for District 68.

Chairman William Lurch told an inaugural meeting of the board Wednesday night Dr. Jensen's election was invalid because his name had not been on the voters list for sufficient time prior to the election.

Dr. Jensen was elected at a public meeting. He represented the rural district of Lantzville. Chairman Lurch said he would submit the name of Seth Storey to the provincial government to fill the vacancy.

Mr. Storey was defeated by Dr. Jensen at the Lantzville meeting.

Given Blame

COURTENAY — A coroner's jury blamed Roger Jackson, 38, for an accident that took his own life and that of Barry Joseph Hodgins, 16, in a head-on car crash Dec. 23.

The inquest, held here Wednesday night, heard medical evidence that showed Jackson had a blood alcohol content of .23.

In returning their verdict the jury said "while Jackson was driving south he caused an accident because his judgment was impaired by alcohol causing him to miscalculate the position of a car on the side of the road."

His car struck the Hodgins vehicle, which was travelling north.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am beginning to think my mother was right. She once told me that there is not a decent, clean-thinking man in this world. I'm convinced she knew what she was talking about.

I am 48, and have been married twice. Both my husbands were skirt chasers—morning, noon, and night. The office manager made a play for me the second day I started to work here. The window washers and the janitor made goo goo eyes at me the same week.

Yesterday the meter-reader made an indecent proposal. This morning the bus driver gave me a come-on wink of the eye. I am so sick of sex maniacs I don't know what to do.

What advice do you have? Is there an escape? Please don't tell me to see a doctor for a check-up. The last time I went to see a doctor he propositioned me right in his office.—DESPERATE

Dear Desperate: I think you ought to see a psychiatrist. But make sure you select a female. And I am not kidding.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to say a word to the grandmother who signed herself "Beck and Call." She was annoyed because her married daughters used her as a sitter, a cook and a seamstress. They also had a habit of dropping off their children at her house when they went away for weekends.

I am in the same boat, so I know how she feels. But the solution you suggested won't work for me. Here is my story: Several months ago my daughter asked if I would take her children for four days while she and her husband went out of town. When I hesitated, she said, "Well, if you have to think about it, skip it." She hung up and would not speak to me for three months. I missed the children so much it almost killed me.

Now when she asks if I will take her youngsters I say yes without hesitation. The price for refusing is more than I want to pay. Maybe you will say I am a darned fool, but I love my grandchildren.—L. A. GRANNY

Dear Granny: Don't look now but your daughter is blackmailing you, and she is using her children as bait. I hope, for your sake, Mother, that there are no more at home like HER. One is enough.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 16 and going steady with one of the coolest cats in the senior class. We haven't done anything wrong yet and that is why I am writing. I believe in preventing trouble before it starts. Please give me some advice.

After four dates I let Ronnie kiss me. Now that is all he wants to do. I can't get him interested in going to a movie, bowling, playing records or looking at TV. I even tried your formula of asking him questions about himself to get a good conversation going, but no dice. Ann, Ronnie would rather make out than do anything.

Last night he said if I cared for him as much as he cares for me I wouldn't fight him on this. I don't want him to ditch me, but I don't want to give in either. Please give me some advice and fast.—HANGING ON BY MY FINGERNAILS

Dear Hanging On: I'm typing as fast as I can and I hope I am not too late. Give this creep a final no and tell him to stop pestering you or to find another girl. If he ditches you, you haven't lost much.

Crime Study Outcry Grows In Wake of Charge

By FRASER KELLY
Columnist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner's charge that the federal government is "soft" on organized crime last night sparked a new outcry for a Royal Commission into the administration of justice in Canada.

Tory leader Diefenbaker called it the "worst indictment of the administration of justice ever made in this country."

He pressed for a Royal Commission to study the "growing ramifications of organized crime in Canada."

LISTED POINTS
Mr. Wagner, who attended a federal-provincial conference on organized crime in Ottawa last week, said yesterday in Quebec City:

● He was disappointed by the inference and some of the participants were "soft as dough" and more interested in playing petty politics and being careful not to tread on toes than in the struggle against crime.

● "In Ottawa dust was thrown in our eyes."

● Quebec and Ontario were the only provinces that presented concrete proposals.

● The RCMP had done everything in its power to kill Quebec's idea for a Canadian Interpol.

● Quebec Provincial Police claimed, had done more in one year to combat organized crime than the RCMP had done since 1951.

It was time for Justice Minister Cardin "to say something about it, if it comes under his jurisdiction."

"I can't say what he administers any more," Mr. Diefenbaker added, referring to the recent carving up of ministerial responsibility to give the war on organized crime to Solicitor-General Larry Pennell.

In the change, Mr. Diefenbaker added, President of the Privy Council Guy Favreau became responsible for bankruptcies.

In 1965, he said, bankruptcies in Canada hit $500,000,000, more than twice the figure for 1964.

"One of the most lucrative practices in Canada today," he added, "is going into bankruptcy."

The federal government has taken no action at all to curb its growth. And now Mr. Favreau was responsible for combatting it.

Turning to other federal-provincial problems, particularly Quebec Welfare Minister Rene Levesque's new attack on federal powers and Eric Klerans direct protests to Washington.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "I think it was a week of play-acting."

He hinted that Premier Lesage's secret visit to Ottawa to confer with Mr. Pearson, a few days before the explosion, set the scene.

Mob Manhandles Parliamentarians

'We're Willing To Act For Neutrality'

OTTAWA (Special) — Canada is willing to participate in action to protect the neutrality and territorial integrity of Cambodia, acting Prime Minister Paul Martin announced Wednesday.

Speaking at a press conference he said that Canada had "reacted positively" to Cambodian suggestions that the power of the International Control Commission be used to protect its borders.

Mr. Martin's statements were significant because they follow news reports that the United States is considering carrying the Viet Nam war into Cambodia which it claims is a haven for Viet Cong troops.

NOT AWARE
But Mr. Martin told newsmen he was "not aware of any direct threat to Cambodia."

The Canadian government has suggested that the three member IOC exercise some control and supervision of military equipment crossing its borders. Mr. Martin said there has been no request for Canadian troops.

SYMPATHETIC
He said Canada "is fully sympathetic with Cambodia's desire to protect its neutrality and territorial integrity" and is "anxious to promote any action by the IOC which would contribute effectively to that goal."

He said Canada is studying ways in which the IOC could fulfill the requests made upon it.

NOT MET STANDARDS
This nation is concerned that the area remain stable. The action of the IOC so far "has not met the standards set by the Cambodian government."

"We have maintained that in order to meet the requirements of the Cambodian government the control measures by the IOC must be effective and credible," he said.

NO POWER
"We hope we will be able to persuade the other delegations (Poland and India) to agree to more meaningful procedures," he said.

He admitted that the IOC doesn't have the power to really protect the border of any country. The power it does have is largely through "observation," he said.

NOTHING TO SAY
At the same conference he was asked about reports that Commonwealth Secretary Arnold Smith is working on another major Commonwealth peace proposal for Viet Nam.

"There is nothing that I can usefully talk about," he answered. Leaving the whole question unanswered.

'Medicare Useless To Emotionally Ill'

OTTAWA (CP)—"The great well of the emotionally and socially distressed who now close our mental health clinics and our social agencies" will not benefit from medical care insurance, a director of the Canadian Mental Health Association said Wednesday.

Dr. John Griffin, said this is because psychiatrists could not decide who needed medical treatment in connection with emotional illness and whose problems could be dealt with by ancillary personnel such as social workers and psychologists.

He told the Institute on mental health services the problem of financing mental health services arose with the growing trend towards community mental health services. In the past, the planning and administration of services had been a provincial responsibility.

"The spectrum of disability is a very wide one," the Toronto delegate said, "and it is very difficult to establish clear-cut lines separating its different parts. Undoubtedly some disabled people are proper psychiatric patients, some are more suitable for social case work and psychological counselling, and some can respond to a program of discipline and retraining."

Canada Aids Nigeria

LAGOS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday Canada has decided to participate jointly with Nigeria in the construction of a technical school in Benin, capital of the midwestern region of the African country.

He said the two countries have reached an agreement in principle on the project and plans for the school will be prepared by Canadian architects and engineers, working in collaboration with Nigerian authorities.

Canada would contribute $1,500,000 and also would supply teaching personnel for five years after it opens.

The agreement also provided for bringing Nigerians to Canada for technical training, in preparation for teaching jobs at the school.

Code Amendments Studied?

Major Changes Could Affect 3000 Prisoners

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says a major change in the division of federal and provincial responsibilities for jailed persons likely will be made this year.

It says the effect of the amendments contemplated for the Criminal Code will be that:

● The federal government will be responsible for anyone sentenced to more than a year in prison.

● Provincial governments will be in charge of those sentenced to six months or less.

● There will be no sentences between six months and a year to accommodate the new policy.

● An estimated 3,000 prisoners who now are in provincial custody will be transferred to federal institutions.

Provincial ministers of reform institutions will be able to proceed without delay on their corrections projects.

Those now sentenced to two years or more serve their time in federal penitentiaries. Those with terms under two years go to provincial institutions.

WITHIN MONTHS

The newspaper says Lawrence Pennell, the solicitor-general, will confer with provincial authorities on ways to expedite the new policy within the next two or three months. It adds there has been no decision on whether

Dead Woman Identified

RICHMOND (CP)—The woman who died when her car flipped into a ditch at the side of Doss Island Thursday here this week has been identified as Margaret Wynn Hardwick, 58, of Richmond. Police said her compact car flipped off the driveway and landed upside down in six feet of water in a ditch.

WENT TO AID
The crowd moved in on the struggling Rowland. Some came to help. Some came to join in the pummeling Rowland was undergoing.

Dr. Bray, a slight, wiry man, and Ennals both went to the rescue of their colleague, but a police detective quickly intervened and rescued Rowland.

Deputy Information Minister Peter van der Byl of Rhodesia said the incident probably never would have occurred had the British MPs accepted an offer by his ministry to organize the program for them.

He said the matter is to be regretted, but the visitors had infringed regulations concerning meetings.

CONFORM

Under existing emergency regulations it is illegal to hold or attend a public meeting of more than 12 persons without government permission.

Van der Byl added it is hoped future British visitors will conform with the laws of the country.

PULLED TO FLOOR

Dr. Bray moved across the speaker's table to help Rowland and someone grabbed him by his hair and pulled him to the floor. Ennals ran around the end of the table to help Rowland.

As Dr. Bray was propelled across the table someone emptied a pitcher of water on Rowland's head. Another man poured his glass of beer over him.

DISARRAY

Not everyone joined in the fray. There were shouts: "Let him alone."

Bray's tie was askew, his hair rumpled and his coat pulled part way off. Rowland, too, was in disarray when the fracas ended after a few minutes.

They were hustled quickly by the detective to a private room in the hotel where the meetings had been held.

There were no immediate arrests.

Rowland said he thought it might have been an "accidental incident."

"If the man hadn't grabbed the papers it might not have happened."

The three MPs had gone through nearly two hours of heckling, booing and hip-hip-hoorays for Prime Minister Ian Smith when the rough stuff started.

LITTLE PROGRESS

They had invited Rhodesians to a ballroom of the hotel to attempt to explain their view of the Rhodesian situation and answer questions.

It was difficult to make any progress, however, against the constant hollering. Once, from what impulse it is hard to say, the crowd began singing For He's a Jolly Good Fellow while one of the MPs was speaking.

Men shouted constantly, even when Rhodesians were speaking.

"You try governing Britain, never mind Rhodesia," one man yelled.

Job Scene Glows Across Nation

OTTAWA (CP) — Non-farm employment showed an unusual jump between November and December to give Canada its brightest December job picture in 10 years, it was reported Wednesday.

Unemployment rose by 32,000 to 252,000 in December from 220,000 in mid-November. It was 284,000 in December, 1964. The percentage of the labor force out of work stood at 3.5 per cent, lowest for any December since 1955.

A joint report by the labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said employment in non-farm industries rose by 47,000 from November to reach 6,463,000. Normally there is a decline in this period. Farm employment sagged by 53,000 to 470,000, wiping out the non-farm improvement.

There also was an unusual rise in the size of the labor force which added 26,000 in the month to hit 7,185,000.

JOBS RISE

Comparing December to the same month of 1964, non-farm jobs were up 362,000 or 5.9 per cent, the labor force rose by 273,000 or 3.9 per cent and the total at work was 305,000 or 4.6 per cent higher.

The jobless rate of 3.5 per cent compared to 3.1 per cent in November and 4.1 per cent in December, 1964.

RATE DOWN

After adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the rate was 3.4 per cent, compared to 3.5 per cent in November and 3.9 the previous December.

The job climb was most noticeable in the Atlantic region where the gain was 6.9 per cent. However, the region continued to have the highest unemployment rate, 7.1 per cent.

Quebec had 4.8 per cent of its labor force out of work in December, Ontario 2.3 per cent, the Prairies 2.4 and British Columbia 3.3.

Four Lost As Tugs Hit Tanker

NEW YORK (AP) — A pre-dawn collision between two tug boats and a small tanker sent one of the tugs to the bottom Wednesday. Four of its crew were thrown into the icy water and presumably drowned.

The tugs Patricia Moran and Diana Moran and the 264-foot coastal tanker Morania Marlin were involved.

The Patricia Moran sank, dumping 10 crew members into the 42-degree water. Six were rescued, but four others were missing. A search is continuing.

Milk Price Boosted

COURTENAY—Milk users here began to pay more for this commodity on Monday morning. A one-cent rise brings Comox Creamery products into line with other suppliers from the remainder of the Island and the mainland.

The increase was brought about by a substantial union-negotiated wage increase.

The increase went into effect in other areas last November but in the North Island was effective Jan. 1.

The Comox Co-operative Creamery has served the people of this valley for 65 years continually expanding its facilities and increasing its equipment.

BUTTER WINS

Local dairy farmers met in 1961 to discuss formation of a creamery. The minutes of the first meetings, which were kept in a file, were recently found as a part of the valley's history.

The processing of butter from cream won many awards for the creamery long before the present expansion was even dreamed of.

LOUR SOLD

Through the years the creamery has changed from a multi-purpose agency to one dealing exclusively in dairy products. At one time it was an agent for flour-machinery, operated a hardware department, sold flour and feed, operated an egg grading and selling department and acted as a vegetable marketing board.

Over the years one by one these were eliminated and expansion began to take place.

NO RAW MILK

The coming of the Second World War and establishment of service camps in the Comox Valley helped in the expansion. There was a demand for pasteurized milk and the creamery installed the needed equipment. A special item of interest is that today no raw milk is sold in the valley even by special permit.

The vast area served by the creamery sometimes causes headaches but the milk deliveries are made one way or another.

FRESH PRODUCT

With the inauguration of the Comox-Powell River ferry service, the paper town was added to the list of those receiving fresh milk deliveries daily.

On days the ferry has been unable to sail because of high seas the milk has been trucked to Horseshoe Bay and up the Sunshine Coast.

This is the route that will probably be followed when the "Queen" goes off the run Jan. 24 for her annual overhaul.

MANY DEPOTS

The creamery now has established depots in many island points.

Although farms here have been reduced in numbers from 100 in the twenties to 34 today, production per farm has increased greatly. Today the 34 farms produce three times as much milk as the 100 did 20 years ago.

NEW CARTONS

In 1966 the creamery continues to expand and modernize. Soon cartoning machinery will be converted to handle plastic impregnated containers. The wax carton will then be obsolete.

Dairy production in Comox Valley is far ahead of other island centres and the creamery looks with pride to its past and with faith and hope to its future.

Grant Approval Just Routine

COMOX—Sister Eugenie of St. Joseph's Hospital here said Wednesday night the announcement of federal approval of a $214,213 grant to the hospital is merely routine.

Approval in principle for the grant was given months ago and construction work on new buildings and renovation at the hospital is well advanced. It is hoped equipment can be moved into the new building in February. Completion date has been set for April.

Around the Island

Courtenay Calm On Ferry Idling

COURTENAY — While anguished howls are being heard from Powell River over the suspension of ferry service between the paper town and Comox from Jan. 25 to 29, the Comox Valley appears to be taking the move quietly. The vessel is to undergo a routine overhaul.

Retiring president of the chamber of commerce, Charles Pearce said "They are required by law to have this overhaul and if they have nothing suitable to place on the run there is not much point in creating a disturbance about it."

It was also learned that the matter would receive some discussion at the directors meeting Jan. 13.

The ferry has not been able to operate on numerous occasions during the year due to high winds and extremely rough seas.

Recently the minister of municipal affairs, Dan Campbell, said a new ferry is on the drawing board.

LADYSMITH — RCMP here are investigating the theft of one mounted tire from each of two trailers belonging to a company which is engaged with sewer construction here.

Police said the trailers were located on First Ave. and Victoria Crescent.

Total value was about $30.

DUNCAN — Saskatchewan resident Kenneth O. Björkverud was convicted of driving without due care and attention and was fined $35.

He was the driver of a car Nov. 17 that struck and fatally injured 84-year-old Alice Hilliard on Lakes Road when she crossed coming from her mailbox.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Justice of the Peace John Roberts found Shengma Singh Charn guilty of failing to stop for a police officer, and fined him $50 in court Wednesday.

Charn had pleaded not guilty to the charge, which arose when he ignored a detour sign placed to steer traffic round an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway at Mill Bay Nov. 28.

CHEMUNUS — A fifty-four year-old Duncan man, Edward Clarence Sandhoe, was convicted of impaired driving after he pleaded not guilty and was fined $200.

His licence was lifted for one year except for driving to and from work.

Caution Urged By Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul warned Roman Catholic theologians Wednesday against excessively-free interpretations of Vatican ecumenical council decrees.

Speaking at his weekly general audience, the Pope said: "The council . . . does not allow that there enter in the philosophical, theological and scriptural school of the church the arbitrariness, uncertainty, servility and desolation that characterize so many forms of modern religious thinking when it is deprived of the help of ecclesiastical teaching . . . Care must be taken."

The pontiff said the 16 council documents are only part of the entire church doctrine and do not modify its essentials. "The teachings of the council do not constitute an organic and complete system of Catholic doctrine. This is much more ample, and it is not questioned by the council or substantially modified."

Cheque Artist Faces Jail

VANCOUVER (CP) — George McLaughlin, 33, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to 78 counts of false pretences and was remanded to Jan. 19 for sentence.

McLaughlin said that over a two month period he passed worthless cheques to obtain goods and cash with a total value of $3,000.

Commitment Sought

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada has asked for a "firm commitment" from Iran on what that country intends to do with 90 Canadian-made jets it wants to buy from West Germany, sources said Wednesday.

Under the original sale contract of the Sabre-jets by Canada to Germany the West Germans agreed to "consult" Canada before selling them to any other country.

WANTS TO KNOW

Canada was consulted, but before agreeing to the sale this country wants to know definitely what Iran intends to use the jet fighters for and is seeking assurances they won't be sold.

Canada's objection to any sale is not binding on West Germany, but in the past it has respected Canadian wishes. Canada protested a similar German plan some time ago to sell Canadian-made jets to Portugal — and they sale fell through.

Canada is touchy about where its military hardware ends up and is particularly anxious made-in-Canada weapons don't appear on the Communist side of the world flareups.

EXCLUSIVE ARMS — This country has trade agreements with Communist countries — including China — but they meticulously exclude anything that could be used in warfare.

Canada maintains a neutral position in Viet Nam and with India and Poland is a member of the International Control Commission there.

It also prides itself in its peace-keeping role in other trouble spots such as Cyprus again by Iran to some Communist nation.

Thetis Roads Kept Open

THETIS ISLAND — Despite heavy snows that taxed the resources of the Department of Highways crews here, roads were kept open by an around-the-clock effort.

Limited equipment owned by the department was supplemented with hired tractors and bulldozers.

R. Ringma, foreman of the department here, said, "By the evening of Dec. 28 we had all roads open for traffic."

He added that the condition of island roads was not a factor in getting power restored during the six-day blackout.

Repair Lawn Now

By M. V. CHESNUT

If we should get a reasonably dry spell within the next few weeks—and my fingers are crossed as I write this—one job I want to tackle is some repair work on our front lawn, for this is one of those chores which so often gets pushed into the background in the rush of spring sowing and planting. Unless the jobs are done during the slack season, chafers are the lawn goes into the summer with a patchy and moth-eaten appearance. We have one out-of-the-way corner in our back lawn which doesn't get much traffic, and of recent years I have been using this bit as a sort of nursery. When I get a bad patch out from it and lift a few squares of sod from the backyard, wheel it around to the front and use it to replace the worn or bare bit. The denuded section of the back lawn has a little fresh soil and fertilizer added, plus a sprinkle of grass seed, and is covered with a few tree branches to discourage trespassers. Pretty soon it is back in business.

When thin or worn sod is taken up from the bad patch in the front lawn, it is only common sense to find out just what caused the trouble and put it right. Abnormal winter traffic is one common source of trouble—the milkmilk and newsboy taking illicit shortcuts while frost is on the grass, for instance.

More often, though, something is wrong with the soil at that particular spot. If grubs of any kind are found in the soil, work in a dressing of aldrin or chlordane dust before the new sod is laid. Probe around a bit with an iron rod or crowbar, too, to see if sheet metal, plaster or other builder's rubbish is buried beneath, for this is a frequent cause of lawn troubles in new homes.

It is always a good idea, when patching a lawn, to take out an inch or two of the old soil and replace it with fresh stuff from some other part of the garden. Use this fresh soil "as is," though, without attempting to enrich it with manure or fertilizer. Too generous treatment would cause the repaired patch to green up more than the rest of the lawn, standing out like a sore thumb.

Never try to reduce a hummock or high spot in the lawn by rolling or beating it, for this will only compact the soil to the point where air and water cannot penetrate to the roots. Instead, cut and lay back a strip of sod over the high spot, remove enough soil to make it level, then replace the turf.

Low spots can be brought up to the surrounding level over a period of time by putting down a thin layer of soil, never more than a half-inch layer at any one time. Allow the grass to grow up through this and become established at the new level before adding more, for a too-thick layer of soil can smother your grass. All this takes time, of course, and personally I would sooner do the job the hard way, taking up a section of sod, adding soil to the required level, then relaying the turf.

It is difficult to do much about drainage in an established lawn—drainage troubles should have been corrected before the lawn was put down. Only too often, though, this work is skipped, and you wind up with sections of the lawn where puddles lie in wet weather, and the moss moves in while the grass moves out.

Occasionally, in troubles of this sort, I have seen a dramatic improvement effected by taking up a section of sod over the wet spot and digging a deep hole in the ground, 18 inches or deeper, filling it with cinders, coarse gravel or other drainage material. Add soil to bring it up to the general level and replace the sod.

How ART BUCHWALD Would Solve Strike

Only Women Essential

NEW YORK—It's probably hindsight, but it seems to me that Mayor John Lindsay's biggest mistake at the beginning of the subway strike was when he appealed to men to stay out of New York City unless they considered themselves essential.

No man could admit to his boss he wasn't essential, and all hell broke loose when everyone rushed into New York at the same time to prove they were needed.

Had Lindsay asked ALL men to stay home during the strike, New York would not be in the economic shape it is today.

It is no secret that the only essential people in New York are women. They are the ones who support the department stores, the hairdressers, the specialty shops, and the restaurants. If they were not coming to town, there was no need for anyone else to be in the city, as so many department owners have sadly discovered.

But, someone may argue, aren't men needed to run the various businesses in New York City that have nothing to do with retailing or entertainment? The answer is, of course, no.

Most businesses in New York are run by secretaries who know more about what is going on than their bosses. Proof of this is that a boss can be out for a month and nothing will happen, but a secretary can be sick for one day and any business will collapse.

During the strike the secretaries of New York could have easily handled any problems that came up and without their bosses' interfering. Might have even brought about some much needed reforms in the business world.

We now know there isn't one essential job in New York City that women couldn't handle.

If Lindsay had put an embargo on all men during the strike, women would have rushed to New York and the city might have enjoyed the greatest economic boom in its history. With business thriving, the Transit Workers Union would have had to give in on its demands, and the strike could have been ended in a few days.

The question arises, what would New York City's men have done if they weren't permitted to come in? It would have been quite simple for the mayor to arrange with the New York Giants and the New York Jets to replay old football games on television during the duration of the strike.

No man wants to go to work when he knows there is a football game on TV, and every male New Yorker would have been content to stay at home, particularly if he knew his wife was going into the city.

Some critics might point out that most of the women going into the city would have to drive in, and this could cause tremendous traffic accidents and a great loss to life and limb. But this is not necessarily so.

Women drivers only get into accidents when there are men drivers around. Every woman knows instinctively what every other woman is going to do and, without men trying to outguess them, I believe metropolitan traffic accidents would have gone down.

The only problem, as I see it, is that if Mayor Lindsay had adopted this drastic plan, many men would suddenly realize they weren't essential at all, and this could cause large scale depression amongst the male population of the city.

This could easily have been alleviated by Mayor Lindsay's replaying all the old Brigitte Bardot films on television.

The final question that must be answered is, if Mayor Lindsay asked all men to stay at home, could he in good conscience go to work himself? The answer to that one is no. But there is nothing to prevent Mrs. Lindsay from working out a subway settlement with the wives of union leaders.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

What Julie Wants--

Julia Andrews, the top money-making actress of 1965, would like to have Christopher Plummer as her leading man when she makes The Story of Gertrude Lawrence in London this summer. They did well together in The Sound of Music, in which I enjoyed Plummer's performance as much as I did Julie's. . . . Whatever Miss Andrews wants today she can have—money, leading man, director and approval of everything.

Claudine Auger, the girl who does the water sequence with James Bond in Thunderball (her bikini floats to the top while they are at the bottom of the ocean), went to the London showing in as low cut a dress in front as you can get without being topless. It was a top-up as to who was more bare in the front department, Claudine or Liza Minnelli, the current or past wife of Ron Randall. I haven't seen the couple lately and you never know.

David Niven almost didn't make it back to the British set of 12. Instead, he nearly made it to the bottom of a ravine near his home in Gstaad, Switzerland. Driving over some snow that concealed a hole in the mountain, he and his wife were suspended until rescued umpteenth hundred feet in the air. I can't imagine a movie industry without the indefatigable David.

Sean Connery failed to show at the London premiere of Thunderball. Although advertised as appearing, Sean is like Richard Burton. Hates to see himself on the screen—except in secret. Wife Diane Cilento explained that they had already had a private showing in Hollywood and didn't want to sit through the movie again! This is amusing because so many other avid James Bond lovers will see each epic as often as they can get in.

Darryl Zanuck had a flying experience that may put him off flying for a while. He was practically half way to London when the plane developed a leak in the fuel tank. It turned around and went back to New York where there was a wait of several hours before heading back to London. "It took me 20 hours to get here," said Darryl, who came to London to see the rough prints of The Blue Max which starred George Peppard, James Mason and Ursula Andress, and Modesty Blaise, from the cartoon character, with Terence Stamp and Monica Vitti.

It is always easy to delude ourselves into believing that we are heroes. This is the style of those who choose—but share no responsibility for the decisions. In the comfort of our drawing room it is simple to sit back and redraw the map of the world or to change all political systems. It is relatively easy to be critical of human conditions and to spout facile solutions—as long as we are not responsible for living with and standing behind these fateful decisions.

The real test of our faith and courage is determined by our ability to remain responsible for the decisions long after we've made them. Mature people need to learn how to reconcile the realities of man's stubbornness, adjusting the ethical possibilities to the human situation—always recognizing the imperfection of any given solution.

If only we could learn to live with an imperfect answer, recognizing it for what it is, critical of its wrong, but still not lose faith in the possibility of improving and refining it, we will have learned a major lesson in living. Too many of us refuse to reconcile ourselves with reality and thus wrongly expect one of two things: either the best, or the worst. If we cannot have the best we assume that we can only have the worst.

This approach to life corrupts our faith and weakens our will. When we refuse to choose less than the best because we believe that it is the worst, we will often not choose at all! A paralysis of human will sets in on those who suggest that one must have all or hope for nothing at all. Too many people around the world are quite prepared to give up their freedom for the sake of some promised Utopia—give up your freedom now, and in just a little while you will get it back, once we set everything right in the world!

One teacher taught that the biggest room in the world is the room for improvement. But if we seek perfection, we will not be satisfied with "mere" improvement. Often we give up before we've begun for a curious reason: We were thinking of the "best" and when we saw that we could not have the "best" everything else looked like the "worst."

Johnson on Viet Nam: U.S. Will Stay until aggression has stopped

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Wednesday night he will pursue peace but the United States will stay in Viet Nam "until aggression has stopped." He backed this pledge with a record $112,800,000 budget that did not call for a general tax boost. Johnson reported to Congress in person and to the people of the United States by radio and television on the state of the home front and on efforts to bring about peace talks in Viet Nam. He said the peace campaign so far has produced "no response to prove either success or failure." Johnson sounded no threats or ultimatums, but he said

"we do not intend to abandon Asia to conquest." At the end of his lengthy address, Johnson said, "I am hopeful, and I will try, to end this battle and return our sons to their desires." Johnson did not say how long the United States might continue its pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam. Viet Nam was the overriding item of interest and attention in this year's State-of-the-Union address. Johnson dealt also with the domestic scene and said that the war in Viet Nam must not halt the drive towards what he calls "the Great Society." In the new budget, however, the increased spending will go largely towards military purposes.

Officials said the defence budget will climb to $38,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year starting July 1, from about $34,400,000,000 this year. The non-military budget would increase by only $600,000,000. Johnson said he will not hesitate to ask for more appropriations and revenues "if the necessities of Viet Nam require it." Johnson set forth a 10-point domestic program and said: "I believe we can continue" (Continued on Page 3)

South Backs Truce

SAIGON (Reuters) — The South Vietnamese "used forces will observe a three-day truce during the lunar new year holiday starting next week, the official government press agency reported today. The agency said details "are still under study and there may be an official announcement about it." The Viet Cong have already proposed a ceasefire for four days beginning at midnight Thursday, Jan. 10.

U.S., Russia 'Using' Shastri Rites

HONG KONG (Reuters) — A Communist newspaper claimed Wednesday that the United States and the Soviet Union were using the funeral of Indian Prime Minister Shastri to develop backstage contacts on Viet Nam. (See also Page 29.) The Chinese-language Ta Kung Pao noted that U.S. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Russian Premier Alexei Kosygin were represented at the cremation in New Delhi Wednesday.

Peking Stop Indicated For Shelepin

BELGRADE (AP)—Soviet trouble-shooter Alexander Shelepin will talk with the Chinese on a 24-hour stopover in Peking en route home from Hanoi, the official Yugoslav news agency said Wednesday night. Quoting sources in Peking, the Tanjug agency's correspondent said "the Soviet delegation will receive semi-official treatment and have talks on a corresponding level." Shelepin is due to leave Hanoi today. He has been in the North Vietnamese capital since Jan. 7, discussing the Viet Nam war. He made a brief stop in Peking en route to Hanoi. Reporting his imminent departure, Moscow radio made no mention of a stay in Peking.

But No Thanks, Says Strachan

Premier Babysits Yale While Hartley Appeals

Premier Bennett has appointed himself as watchdog during the coming session for the interests of Yale constituency whose New Democrat member was unseated by a court ruling this week. William Hartley was ousted Tuesday by a Supreme Court ruling. TWO SEATS VACANT Yale's seat is one of two that will be vacant during the session. The North Okanagan seat was vacated by the recent death of Socred member George McLeod. Premier Bennett said that because these two constituencies will be unrepresented in the House he will pay special attention to representations which are made to the government from these areas.

'SPECIAL WATCHDOG'

"The premier will be a special watchdog," he said. But Opposition members said, no thanks, they would prefer to see Mr. Hartley back in the seat which he has held for two sessions since the controversial election case began. Vancouver lawyer Gordon Dowding, an NDP MLA who represented Hartley in the case, said he will file an appeal against the decision which was brought down in the Supreme Court Tuesday by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

BOTH CLEARED

Both Mr. Hartley and Social Credit candidate Irvine Corbett, who had held the seat since 1952, were cleared of any involvement when Mr. Justice Ruttan handed down his decision. In nullifying the 1963 election, Judge Ruttan said he had found at least nine irregularities which were more than enough to offset Hartley's six-vote win over Corbett.

VOTERS BLAMED

Blame for these irregularities was attached to the returning officers and voters of the Yale constituency.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged Wednesday that Corbett had waited for two years before starting court action because the Socreds were afraid provincial Conservative leader David Fulton might split the vote and allow the NDP to walk into office.

'CHECK BACK'

"You check back—Fulton said after the 1953 election that he would contest any and all by-elections," said Mr. Strachan. "And as long as that situation existed, they (Socreds) were not prepared to push for a by-election."

The NDP leader said that once Mr. Fulton had again committed himself to federal politics and was "safely away from the provincial political scene" the Socreds started to push their case in the courts.

'CROOKED POLITICS'

"This is the political connivance I was talking about. It's crooked politics," said Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Dowding said he had advised Mr. Hartley not to try to take his seat in the House this session because it would be illegal until such time as the Supreme Court decision is set aside by the B.C. Appeal Court.

But Mr. Strachan said that because legal procedures are still pending he could see no

PEARSON PROPOSAL TRIUMPHS AT LAGOS

LAGOS (CP) — Commonwealth leaders, acting on a suggestion by Prime Minister Pearson, set up a watchdog committee Wednesday to check on results of economic sanctions against Rhodesia. They agreed to meet again in July if the Rhodesian rebellion was not ended.

They decided not to use force now against the white-minority government in Rhodesia, but said in a communique issued at the end of the Commonwealth conference in Nigeria, they agreed use of force "could not be precluded if this proved necessary to restore law and order."

The meeting of 20 Commonwealth countries set up the watchdog committee to assess the effectiveness of economic sanctions against Rhodesia, to advise Commonwealth governments on possible action by them or by the United Nations, and to provide help for Zambia, Rhodesia's northern neighbor.

Conference sources described Pearson as confident the sanctions will work. He also proposed a committee to consider means of Commonwealth co-operation in planning Rhodesia's future, particularly by training people for jobs. The communique indicated that a committee of this kind will be set up also, to work in conjunction with the Commonwealth Secretariat in London.

The watchdog committee, whose makeup has not been disclosed, will sit in London.

ONLY TWO

One conference source said that while there was a good deal of talk about aid to Zambia, it seemed clear to many delegates that the only countries that will be able to provide meaningful aid are the two already on the scene, Britain and Canada.

The communique said the Commonwealth leaders affirmed their determination "that the rebellion must be brought to an end."

NOT SWAYED

It made clear that the conference had not been swayed by the demands of some of its most militant members for immediate military and air action to bring down the Rhodesian government.

Pearson told the conference additional measures against Rhodesia should be considered, unless there are indications "within a matter of weeks" that existing sanctions are taking effect.

MUST END

The Commonwealth leaders affirmed their determination "that the rebellion must be brought to an end," the communique said.

Mr. Pearson said additional Lucien Lamoureux, deputy speaker in last Parliament will be nominated for Speaker Jan. 18, acting Prime Minister Martin announced Wednesday. He also said Senator Sydney Smith of Kamloops has been appointed Speaker of Senate.

Transit Strike Nearing End

NEW YORK (AP)—Douglas MacMahon, acting head of the striking Transport Workers' Union, said early today that union negotiators are recommending acceptance of a mediator's proposal for ending the 12-day subway and bus strike immediately. (Earlier story, Page 21.)

Rio Death Toll Continues Climb

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — The list of dead or missing climbed to more than 700 Wednesday night as heavy rains pounded the Greater Rio area for the third consecutive day. Police said 292 bodies had been recovered from mud and debris by late Wednesday in Rio and the suburbs of Niteroi and Petropolis. Another 430 persons were officially listed as missing.

2,000 TREATED

In Rio alone, police said, 2,000 persons had been treated for injuries at first aid stations while 700 others were in hospital.

Nearly 20,000 were reported homeless in the "City of the Sun," suffering from the worst recorded downpour in its 401-year history.

TORRENTS OF WATER

Most of the deaths were caused by mudslides precipitated by torrents of water pouring down the steep hillsides surrounding Rio.

The fire department said houses, mostly slum dwellings, were collapsing at the rate of 30 an hour. The weather bureau reported 14 inches of rain since Monday afternoon and predicted another 24 hours of downpour before conditions improve.

Invitation to Citizens

Budget Kibitzing A Sharp Idea

OTTAWA (UPI)—Any ideas on what Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp should do with his budget?

Now's your chance. He has invited representations from taxpayers or associations on the budget.

Mr. Sharp wants any ideas in writing before Feb. 12. He said he will even try to squeeze in time for a conference with the people behind some of the more important budget items.

The invitation for ideas is traditional and all are taken into consideration in the preparation of the budget.

Presentation of the budget is not expected until March. Mr. Sharp has said the report of the Royal Commission on Taxation will not be presented before March.

Sir John A's Home Soon Parking Lot

TORONTO (CP)—Sir John A. Macdonald's former city home will soon become a parking lot.

The Ontario Conservative party has apparently abandoned their efforts to preserve the home from demolition. A party member said Wednesday they had lost interest in trying to buy the 196-year-old Samuel Trees home where Sir John lived for a year in 1874.

B.C. Sightings Whet Official Curiosity

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Persistent reports of sightings of an African type of antelope in the frigid northwestern tip of British Columbia have whetted the curiosity of provincial game officials.

The thing has been sighted from the Stikine River through the Atlin Lake region near the top of the Alaska Panhandle.

It has been described by eyewitnesses as an African oryx, an animal which is sand-colored and has horns curving back from its head toward its haunches.

But fish and game branch information officer Bill Ward said Wednesday, "It is impossible for this species to be there."

"There is not one within

5,000 miles of there, and if they were introduced they could not live there—it is not the right terrain for them and the winters are too tough."

Game officials say there may be an animal which was mistaken for the oryx, but what it can be is anybody's guess.

This creature is like the Sasquatch—B.C.'s version of the abominable snowman of the Himalayas—in that its existence has never been proved and its species has not been identified.

"It has been popping up over the past years, much the same as the Sasquatch or Ogopogo type of thing. It is strictly a faithful thing, with no shred of evidence—except that it is reported by people who sound reasonable," said Mr. Ward.
